Industry divided on egg order

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — Based on responses from one-third of the nation's egg producers, the proposed egg industry marketing order will include four provisions, according to marketing order committee chairman Gerald Weber, who addressed a Pa. Egg Marketing Association meeting last Friday night at Lancaster's Conestoga Resort.

About 250 egg industry representatives attended the session to hear committee chairman Weber, Penn State ag economist Tony Stemberger and Canadian producer-processor Stan Steen discuss the advantages and pitfalls of egg supply management

Although two-thirds of the marketing order survey respondents indicated a need for some form of quantity controls, nationwide opinion remains divided on exactly how to get the job done

Though industry feedback indicated a preference for controlling the number of hens, Weber indicated that egg allottments would be preferable from a regulatory standpoint In computing initial egg allottments the committee opted for a three-year historical base period from Sept. 30, 1981, to the same date in 1984 Quotas would be issued to producers one year in advance, Weber said.

Weber pointed out that countries already on egg quota systems tend to experience continual cutbacks in layer numbers, since the system

This 172-pound pumpkin sold at Good's Wholesale Vegetable Auction this week at Leola could be considered symbolic of the auction's first season — it's been a whopping success and there are a lot of happy faces around.

This gigantic "gourd" was grown by Dale Johnson, of Catawissa RD, Columbia County. Shown with the pumpkin is Sterling Gottshall, of Catawissa, who trucked it to Good's.

Johnson grew 14 of the monsters this year, including a 289-pound patch-mate that was displayed at the Bloomsburg Fair. The 14 stalks had plenty of water, including creek irrigation, and two 80-pound bags of fertilizer.

"The main problem," according to Gottshall, "is that they'd grow so much some evenings, they'd grow themselves right off the vine."

Vegetable auction reports successful first season

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LEOLA — In its first season of operation, Good's wholesale vegetable auction at Leola expects to do about a half-million dollars in business.

"We've already done about $450,000 in business," David H. Good said, "and we should reach a half-million dollars before we close for the season.

"It has surpassed anything we expected."

But Good was quick to credit both the excellent weather, which provided an abundant and continuing supply of produce, and the cooperation of both growers and buyers for the initial success of the wholesale auction, which has been open for the past four and one-half months.

Participating farmers increased from about 150 in the beginning to some 750. They came from Maryland, New York and as far west as Breezewood and Tyrone in Pennsylvania.

It's estimated that about 80 percent of the business was generated by Lancaster County growers.

Buyers also steadily increased during the season and came from a five-state area, including Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, New York and Virginia.

With the auction scheduled to stay open until about Thanksgiving, depending on the weather and produce supply, Good is already looking toward some changes for next year.

Dairy roundup - local promotion, rabies & heifers in wings

31 groups apply for milk funds

HARRISBURG — With a Monday, Oct. 15, deadline, 31 local promotion groups submitted funding requests to the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program Advisory Board, according to state Agriculture Secretary and Advisory Board Chairman Penrose Hallowell. Requests were received from 31 groups for a total of 61 local dairy promotion projects.

"We are pleased with the diversity and interest demonstrated by these promotion requests," said Hallowell. "It is refreshing to know that so many

Second cow falls victim

NEW BOLTON CENTER—A five-year-old Holstein dairy cow from Fauquier County, Va., was admitted as a rabies suspect to the large animal hospital at New Bolton Center, University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, on Wednesday, Oct. 3. The results of tests confirmed the diagnosis of rabies on Tuesday, Oct. 9.

When the cow was admitted to New Bolton Center, she was placed in isolation and was humanely destroyed two days later after diagnostic tests revealed no evidence of a disease that could be treated easily. Subsequent pathological studies performed at the State Public Health Laboratory in Lionville confirmed the rabies diagnosis.

This is the first rabid cow seen at the Center since November, 1982. The first cow, from a Lancaster County dairy herd, was apparently bitten by a rabid bat.

Rabies, a virus that attacks the neurological system of warm-blooded animals, usually is spread by direct bites. In this case, the cow was not known to be bitten by a wild animal, although the owner reported that numerous skunks have been seen in the cow pasture.

The virus also is shed in large quantities in the saliva of an infected animal and can be transmitted when it comes in contact with open wounds or mucous membranes.

20 million spigots about to turn on

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

DAIRYLAND, USA — She observed her first birthday a few months ago.

Lately, it's been a carefree life of warm Indian Summer days and nights.

There are no real cares for the coming winter with a warm barn and overflowing silos that promise full stomachs.

She looks forward to impending initial motherhood in spring.

And then finally beginning a lifetime career to which she has been born, bred and groomed – turning out milk; adding four more milk spigots to the national dairy herd.

This scenario hasn't changed much over the years on dairy farms as heifers continually move into the milking herd to replace members of the older generation "retired" to McDonald's or whatever.

But this coming year there will be a real difference.

That heifer may be joined by a record number of "sisters" – perhaps five million, adding some 20 million milk spigots that – when opened – may provide a spring flush such as this nation has never seen.

And these spigots will open at the conclusion of a painful adjustment period designed to bring supply and demand back into closer balance.

How many replacement heifers are really out there? Who knows.

Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, October 18
Report supplied by USDA

MARKET COMMENT: Prices are unchanged to lower with large in the weakest position. Cartoned egg movement in general was light to fair although an occasional dealer noted orders as fairly good Jumbos were in a better balance but most dealers were still rationing their supplies. Floor stocks of extra large and large were at least ample.

Offerings of additional production continue to be heavy and have only found a limited buying interest. Mediums and smalls were in a much better position than large. The demand was not that aggressive for the smaller sizes but the supply has lessened and there was at least some inquiry. Undertone unsettled.

A Extra Large .60-.65; A Large .59-.64; A Medium .53-.56.

Eastern Pa. & N.J. Poultry

Wednesday, October 17
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were unchanged for this week's arrival. Undertone is steady on prices for next week's deliveries. Slaughter schedules are moderate with most plants not running to capacity. Offerings are adequate but not as heavy as anticipated.

Prices Paid at Farm:

Light Type Hens: 10-11½, mostly 11.

F.O.B. Plant: 14½-15½, mostly 15.

Peoria Cattle

Thursday, October 18, 1984

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, October 18
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Movement of ready to cook whole birds was irregular. Some plants indicated that demand was fairly good and supplies were clearing. Others found the demand light and supplies building and difficult to clear Breast cutlets and wings were moving satisfactorily while legs and leg quarters had slowed. The overall slaughter was moderate as an occasional plant was not operating today. Live supplies were at least adequate. Weights were irregular although tended to fall in a range of desirable to heavy. Overtone remained unsettled.

Today's L.T.L. asking prices are lower on U.S. Grade A at 47-53 cents.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva (000).

Estimated 10/18 1,814,000; Actual 10/11 1,960,000; Actual 10/16 1,984,000; Average Weights 10/16 4.46; Average Weights 10/9 4.43.

New HI-YIELD #528 is a specially formulated MAXIMUM ENERGY dairy concentrate. Since energy is nutrient that most often keeps cows from reaching their maximum productive and reproductive potential, Pennfield has developed a line of high energy feeds.

Hi-Yield feeds contain REFINED ANIMAL FAT which was recently shown by university research to be a better energy source for ruminants than vegetable oil. In addition to the added energy from fat, Hi-Yield feeds are formulated with BUFFERS, BY-PASS PROTEIN, METHIONINE - an amino acid which has been shown to increase milk and butterfat production, and ZINPRO® - a zinc supplement that has been shown to decrease somatic cell count in milk and decrease the incidence of foot rot.

Ag legislative needs

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

Ag legislative needs are a lot in the news these days

In Harrisburg, farm groups are beating the drums for their favorite bills they'd like to see passed during the upcoming Lame Duck session that combines Thanksgiving with deer hunting

The milk dealers want to make sure the PMMB is retained

And, a lot of lobbying is proceeding behind the scenes.

Well, let me throw a couple of ag bill ideas into the Harrisburg hopper

--All taxpayer-funded allocations to agriculture for research and bailouts be put strictly on an equal matching fund basis

--Fairs which now receive State money directly out of the Pa. General Fund be required to file an annual audit to give taxpayers a complete accounting of their financial activities.

To me, some recent phone calls from a dairy co-op to Harrisburg were the final straw concerning taxpayer bailouts of agriculture

Recently, more than $2.5 million dollars in tax monies went to help bail out some dairymen caught in the bankrupt Milk Security Fund. The bailout gave dairymen 65 cents on the dollar on their losses in the Scheps Cheese fiasco

This co-op caller was inquiring in Harrisburg if the bailout couldn't be brought up to 100 percent payments to the dairymen

To this caller and any others like him we say [illegible]

A couple million for Avian and more to the dairymen Where does it all end?

There's psuedorabies and Johne's

What next?

Potomac Fever in horses? Virus in muchrooms? Or maybe even rabies in farm cats and dogs?

If farm and commodity groups can't show enough interest in their own welfare to come up with equal matching funds, nothing should come from the taxpayer

Ag will never really help to get its own house in order as long as it can drink freely at the public trough

It always seems a bit hypocritical to me, too Most in agriculture espouse the conservative theme, particularly at the federal level, but their actions at the state level don't live up to their words

Now, to the fairs.

Here in Lancaster County, two fairs literally thumb their noses at the public concerning full disclosure of their financial activities And besides, both Ephrata and New Holland also close down their main streets -- state highways no less -- and turn them into midways of glitter, games and gluttony

Are there any other fairs in the state who so blatantly disregard the taxpayer's right to know?

And with taxpayer funds paying for fair premiums, we think livestock competition should be limited to junior shows. Most open competition at fairs only amounts to a handful of participation and indirect subsidization of that handful of breeders.

If fairs want open competition, let the respective breed associations pay for premiums through entry fees or whatever

We don't expect any such legislative action this lame duck session, if ever State legislators will have only time enough this year to buy their cranberry sauce and air the mothballs out of their hunting duds.

To Reduce Egg Breakage

Egg breakage is costing poultry producers a great deal. You would be surprised how much. Some poultry producers do not realize how many eggs they are losing because they do not keep an accurate record of them. In studies where this has been checked carefully, we find the percentage of eggs broken ranging from 2% to 5% up to 20%.

With a flock of 30,000 layers averaging 70% production, a loss of 4% is 84,000 eggs or 7,000 dozen a year. This loss comes to $3,500 when eggs sell for 50 cents per dozen.

Check the nests or cages for needed repair. Often we find eggs being broken right in the cages. Check the egg trays. If these are bent, they can break many eggs. Careful handling will reduce breakage if eggs are gathered by hand. Trying for too much speed in gathering may cause more loss than a little extra time.

With mechanical gathering, check the escalators to be sure they are timed properly and are not breaking eggs. Check the orientors to be sure eggs are not piling up. This is an egg cracker on many farms.

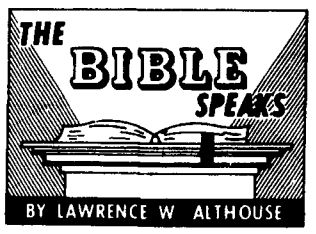
To Evaluate Farm Records

The 1984 cropping season is about over and soon it will be time to summarize your farm accounts and be reporting to the IRS. In addition to the need of good farm records for tax reporting purposes, I'd like to suggest these farm records be used for future farm planning and in making major farm decisions. When time permits and as the outside work winds down this fall, it is a good idea to spend some time in your office and do some "pencil pushing" regarding the most profitable parts of your farming business. Your records of success or failure of the various enterprises are the best guide to future expansion or termination.

To Control Mice and Rats

Birds may migrate south for the winter, but mice and rats migrate from the outdoors to the indoors. And they may choose your home.

When nights become chilly, mice and rats move into garages, storerooms and barns. And if there is food in these areas, they're



THE SOUL HAS A BODY
October 21, 1984

Background Scripture:
1 Corinthians 3:9-17; 6:12-20; Ephesians 5:15-20.

Devotional Reading:
1 Corinthians 4:1-5.

Although Jesus himself demonstrated more concern for people's physical bodies than probably any other religious leader, Christianity has historically tended to ignore the human body and place all of its attention on the human soul. At best, Christians have been indifferent to their bodies; at worst, they have been downright hostile to them.

Some people have tended to blame Paul for this development, pointing to his frequent references to the "dangers of the flesh." But the term, which in English we translate as "flesh," did not mean the physical body so much as it meant the lower part of our human nature.

GOD'S TEMPLE

As a matter of fact, Paul had a very high concept of the human body. In 1 Corinthians 3 he states it in lofty terms: "Do you not know that you are God's temple and that God's Spirit dwells in you?" (3:16). And again: "For God's temple is holy, and that temple you are" (3:17).

Now, Paul is not just speaking symbolically, for God does actually dwell in each and every one of us. Our bodies are the physical means whereby the Spirit of God is expressed in the world. Just as the presence of God in a building makes it a sacred place, a temple, so the presence of God in us makes our physical bodies a sacred place as well.

In 1 Corinthians 6, Paul uses another analogy to stress the importance of the human body "Do y[illegible] now that your bodies are members of Christ?" (6:15). In other words, our union with C[illegible] is not only a spiritual union, but a physical one as well. Therefore, the way we regard and treat our physical bodies is also very much a part of our Christian discipleship

If we fail to take good care of our bodies, if we use them in dishonourable ways, if we fail to keep them as pure as we attempt to keep our souls, we will be judged accordingly. The body is not just an empty shell for the spirit, as some people seem to think, it is part of the totality that God gives us and we must treat that physical self with due reverence and respect.

GLORIFY GOD

Thus, Christians need to be reminded, not only that they have a soul to keep and safeguard, but that that soul has a body and the body is no less a temple of God than the soul. In 1 Corinthians 6 Paul is concerned with sexual immorality as a violation of God's presence in our physical body. It is a message sorely needed in today's world where so many people have presumed to divorce sexual conduct from the realm of morality.

But that bodily sanctuary of the Holy Spirit is defiled not only by illicit sex, but by chemicals, overeating, intemperance, misuse, dissipation, lack of exercise and self-control – all of which defile the wonderful physical body which we share with God.

My mouth is watering

Dear Editor

Your writeup in Agri-View on Oct. 6, 1984 entitled "The Calories Cometh" was tops. I agree with you 100 percent.

If you would live next door, I would see that you get a slice of homemade bread, which would be whole wheat, and some grape jam that had a wax sealed jar with a string in the wax for easy lift off.

I am very much interested as a hobby to have a collection of USDA Agricultural Yearbooks. I would like to know when the first one was printed and how many have been issued to date.

I did come across a Pa. Yearbook in hard cover dated 1917, which I never knew was issued. I found it at a yard sale. I would like to hear from someone about how many of these were printed.

Weather helps fall harvest

HARRISBURG — The week ending Oct. 14 was an excellent week for Pennsylvania farmers, with six days rated suitable for fieldwork. State farmers continued harvest of potatoes, apples, grapes, cabbage and cauliflower, along with field crops such as green chop, ensilage, high moisture ground ear and shelled corn, corn for grain and soybeans. Other farm activities included fall plowing, seeding of small grains and making hay.

The average statewide temperature during the week was seven degrees above normal and precipitation was only one-tenth of an inch, more than one-half inch below normal.

Pennsylvania apple harvest is now 60 percent complete, and grape harvest is reported at about 90 percent complete. Cabbage and cauliflower harvesting remained active with northern region farmers indicating cabbage harvest at about 75 percent complete.

The potato harvest reached 86 percent statewide compared to 87 percent harvested last year. Northern reporters indicate 83 percent of their crop is harvested. Harvest is nearly complete in the central and southern regions. The crop is sizing well with average or better than average yields.

Across the state, the corn for grain was 64 percent mature and nine percent harvested, compared to last year's level of 87 percent mature and 16 percent harvested and the five-year average of 80 percent mature and 18 percent harvested. In the central region 78 percent was mature and four percent harvested. Corn in the southern region was 73 percent mature and nine percent harvested.

The harvest of corn silage statewide was at 68 percent compared with 87 percent harvested at this time last year. The northern, central and southern regions report the percentage of silage harvested as 62, 69 and 79 percent respectively.

The harvest of soybeans is 14 percent statewide, trailing last year's 25 percent harvested at this time. The northern region reported 12 percent of the soybeans harvested, while central and southern regions report harvest completion rates of 10 and 23 percent respectively.

Fall plowing in the state was reported as 81 percent complete. This compares with last year's level of 86 percent and the five-year average of 86 percent completed. Statewide, planting of barley was 88 percent complete compared with 92 percent planted last year. Wheat planting statewide was at 78 percent complete compared with 73 percent last year.

The harvest of third crop alfalfa was 94 percent complete, & virtually complete last year at this time. Fourth crop alfalfa was 61 percent harvested compared with 66 percent last year. The quality of hay made during the past week was rated fair by 52 percent and good by 48 percent of our reporters. The amount of feed being obtained from pastures was rated below average by 33 percent, average by 59 percent and above average by eight percent of our reporters.

Topsoil moisture supplies for the Commonwealth were rated short by 47 percent, adequate by 50 percent and surplus by three percent of our reporters The northern region reporters rated soil moisture as 18 percent short, 73 percent adequate and nine percent surplus. Central region reporters rated soil moisture as 75 percent short and 25 percent adequate Southern region reporters rated moisture supplies as 44 percent short and 55 percent adequate likely to set up housekeeping there until colder weather drives them into your house.

Mice can crawl through holes or cracks as small as a dime. They can enter where pipes go through the wall. And some are so bold, they'll run through an open door while you're entering the house.

If you find signs of mice activity, there are two good ways to get rid of them. If there are just a few mice, a trap is a good remedy. Bait the trap with bacon, peanut butter or cheese and set it near a wall so that the trigger is pointed towards the wall. If a large number of mice are present, then baits are more effective. The bait should be put in bait stations so children or pets cannot get to it.

To Eradicate Livestock Parasites

Both interal and external parasites reduce animal health and efficiency. During times when livestock feeding profits are slim, feed efficiency becomes very important. All feeder calves should be treated for stomach worms soon after arrival on the farm. The same thing is true for dairy heifers in this part of the state. Heavy populations of livestock makes the parasite problem more severe. Fecal samples of animals taken to the local veterinarian is the best method of determining the exact infection.

Body lice are very common and before the hair coat gets much heavier, animals should be clipped, sprayed or dusted. Parasites are hard on animals and hard on the pocketbook.

Vege auction

–A new permanent building is expected to be erected just for the vegetable auction.

–Neighborhood grower meetings will be held next Spring to educate farmers in what buyers are looking for and how they can get their best prices by doing such things as grading and washing the produce and presenting it the way buyers prefer it.

–Auction activities may be expanded to handle an expected increase in participation not only by new growers, but by possible expansion in acreage by growers who participated this year.

"We know that a number of growers have been observing how our first season went," Good explained.

"There could be a significant expansion of participation next year."

One of the determining factors of next year's participation likely will be how well the buying of this year's tobacco crop proceeds. A quality tobacco crop is now hanging in Lancaster County sheds, but a similarly good crop is also reported out of places like Maryland.

If tobacco prices drop this year or a significant part of the crop goes unsold, you'll likely see an even greater swing to vegetables in 1985.

"If a neighborhood of growers express an interest for next year, we'll schedule a small meeting in the Spring to show them what the buyers want," Good said.

"We think it's better to hold these smaller meetings, if growers want them, than one, big meeting."

Meanwhile, the auction will continue on Tuesdays and Thursdays until about Thanksgiving During the peak of the season, it was also held on Mondays and Fridays.

Current major produce includes cauliflower, broccoli, pumpkins, potatoes, Indian corn, gourds, apples, grapes, celery (just starting) and soon sweet potatoes.

During season peaks some 33,000 cantaloupes went across the auction block one Monday and last week 6,000 head of broccoli were being auctioned off during one day

A couple of memorable prices come to mind during the past season, too.

One pumpkin weighing 186 lbs and trucked all the way from Breezewood brought $50.00

And, a 79-lb. watermelon brought $23.00.

Apple Market

Monday, October 15
Report supplied by PDA

Demand is fair to good, prices are remaining steady, supplies are excellent and quality is very good.

This year, we have one of the best marketable apple crops in recent years. Size is good, though not as good as was first anticipated, quality of fruit, as mentioned above is very good, finish is excellent and quantities are adequate.

October is National Apple Month. The Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board is promoting apples on radio, through recipe book offers and through store buyer contacts, just to name a few promotional areas. The Adams County Fruit Growers, in cooperation with the Upper Adams Jaycees have just ended the annual National Apple Harvest Festival, held in Adams County every October. Tens of thousands of people attended this festival this year from all over the Northeast and were made aware of Pennsylvania's fine apple crop. Keep these factors in mind as you are selling you fruit. Pennsylvania apples are very competitive with other state's apple crops. Commonwealth growers have a product they should be proud of. Don't underate this year's apple crop.

Ag Eng. course okayed

NEWARK, DEL. — After a rigorous, year-long review process, the University of Delaware's agricultural engineering technology program has been accredited by the Technology Accreditation Commission of the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology.

The four-year university program stresses the application of scientific and engineering knowledge to the practical, engineering-related problems graduates will encounter in agribusiness and related industries. Students are trained to evaluate production and processing systems and modify them to achieve optimum performance. The academic program involves extensive use of the computer in analyzing production systems.

According to Norman E. Collins, head of the department of agricultural engineering, the newly accredited program evolved from the university's agricultural mechanization program of 30 years ago. In addition to improving departmental course offerings, calculus, physics, management and communications courses have been added to make the program academically rigorous.

Graduates are employed as plant operators, feed mill supervisors, quality control specialists in the poultry industry, and construction supervisors.

DEALER INQUIRIES INVITED

Western Pa. Sale of Stars averages $1700

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

BUTLER—Bidding on 39 head of quality Holsteins at the Western Pennsylvania Sale of Stars brought a $1700 sale average on Wednesday, Oct. 10, at the Butler Farm Show Grounds. The sale average was only down $50 from last year, said sale chairman Leroy Hogg.

"Maplesrow Bo-ET," the sixth animal to enter the ring, topped the sale at $2800. The just-fresh 2-year-old, a Formatt ET daughter, was consigned by Robert and Barbara Freyermuth, Meadville. "Bo" will join the Mercer County herd of Laszlo Mozes, Greenville.

A close second to "Bo" was a consignment of Mark Campbell, Ford City, which sold for $2650. This Molly Chief 3-year-old scored at 85 points went to Jo-Be-Hi Farms, Fombell. Jo-Be-Hi also picked up two other very good consignments at the sale.

Alan and Betty Hart, Cochranton, purchased the third high seller at $2600. The VG-88 Apollo Topper daughter was consigned by Art Baxter, Stoneboro. Harts purchased two other consignments, while their son Donald bought one.

Two other animals that brought over $2000 were purchased by W Rex Smith, Avella and George Dean, Chicora. These were consigned by Millervale Farm, McDonald, and John N. Reno, Valencia.

Volume buyer of the sale was David Zattiero, Mars, purchasing six head.

Sponsored by the Butler County Holstein Club, the sale is an annual event that was headed up this year by Leroy Hogg. Other organizers were Wade Cooper, selections, Roy Simpson, pedigrees; and Sherman Allen, auctioneer, of Nicols and Allen Auctioneering Services, Conneaut Lake.

Record harvest, including tobacco, seen in Md.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — What a difference a year can make when it comes to weather and Maryland agriculture.

Consider the tale of two years:

1983 saw the state hit with the worst drought in 50 years which greatly reduced production of corn, soybeans, hay, tobacco, and most other crops in the state. Reduced yields meant higher prices received for some, but also meant producers of livestock and dairy products were forced to pay much higher prices for feedstuffs.

1984 saw the state blessed with ample rains and good growing conditions, thereby allowing farmers to produce bumper crops of corn, hay, tobacco, fruit and vegetables and many other items.

As we enter the fall of 1984, the 350th Maryland harvest may, indeed, be a "Harvest of History" when it comes to the record books.

And the records appear to be big ones.

Maryland's leading agricultural industry, poultry, may set twin records for 1984. Production rates of broiler chickens for the first eight months of the year have been at all time highs indicating that before the year is out Md. may have produced 275 million chickens (that translates into about 825 million pounds of ready-to-eat meat on the table.) Egg production in the state, which has almost trebled since 1979, may pass the 900 million mark for the year.

When it comes to crops, another all time record appears to have been set in 1984 in the average yield of corn per acre which is now estimated to be 112 bushels per acre! By way of contrast, in 1983 because of the drought, the Maryland corn average was 68 bushels per acre.

The state's oldest and most traditional crop, tobacco, may have posted an excellent year also. Production is estimated to be 33.1 million pounds, way up from the 29.7 million pounds of 1983 but, more importantly, growers say the quality of tobacco produced in Maryland this year may be exceptionally high in terms of quality. The 1983 crop was not of high quality and, therefore, foreign buyers did not purchase much of it.

Export of tobacco, the first "cash crop" of the new Maryland colony 350 years ago, to this day is an important factor in Maryland agriculture.

Other crops which have been seen good production rates in 1984 are hay, wheat, barley, rye, apples and vegetables.

The big crops of corn and soybeans this year mean that producers of livestock over the winter and into next year, will have ample feed supplies and at moderate costs.

Del. vege growers take part in trade show

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Delaware vegetable growers, shippers, brokers and other industry people will be participating in an international trade show and exposition in Washington, D.C. later this month.

The growers, along with the Delaware Department of Agriculture and Cooperative Extension Service, have constructed an exhibit designed to promote the sale of Delaware grown fruits and vegetables to wholesale buyers around the World.

Over 4,500 produce industry representatives are expected to attend the 3 day trade show sponsored by the Produce Marketing Association. Almost 400 booths have been rented according to Association officials.

The Delaware booth was largely funded by donations from Delaware producers and vegetable industry affiliates. Bill Sammons, Marketing Specialist with the State Department of Agriculture, says the effort is a prime example of industry and government working cooperatively.

"The cost of participating in a show of this magnitude is incredible. It has taken a lot of planning and finances. The planning and legwork has been handled by our department and the Cooperative Extension Service, while most of the costs have been borne by the industry people who should see direct benefit", according to Sammons.

The booth will be manned by the growers and commodity group representatives, Sammons said. In addition, Nancy Ball, 1984 Miss Delaware, will be greeting produce industry representatives on the opening day in order to create more attention to Delaware's presence at the show.

The ad hoc committee formed to organize the Delaware fresh fruit and vegetable display says this is the first time the First State has participated in a show of this scale.

Competing states who often flood Delaware's markets with fresh produce frequent these types of selling missions. Sammons says Delaware growers hope to agressively compete with those other growing regions.

"The theme of our booth is 'Delaware Fresh Fruits and Vegetables...Get a Load of This!". By displaying baskets of produce, handing out promotional items and trade directories, and highlighting our closeness to many major market areas, we hope to stimulate fresh produce sales," said Sammons.

"We're proud of our products and we think we need to get out there face to face with produce buyers and let them know we can supply their needs", he said.

A bus trip to the Produce Marketing Association Convention and Exposition is being planned for Monday.

'Buy Delaware' program launched

DOVER, DEl. — The Delaware Department of Agriculture has launched a "Buy Delaware" program among consumers and has appealed to agri-business throughout the state to use a new Delaware Agricultural Product Logo.

"We hope that agri-business producing a Delaware agricultural or food product for sale in or out of the state will use the logo somewhere on the product — on a bag, box, carton, wrap or whatever," said Bill Sammons, marketing manager for the Delaware Department of Agriculture.

"A recent survey conducted for the department has shown that 92 percent of the state's population would prefer buying Delaware produced products, but they can't easily identify those products in stores."

In addition to using Delaware's Agricultural Product logo on product packaging, Sammons has suggested its use in advertising — in point-of-sale materials, price cards, newspaper or magazine advertising.

The Delaware Department of Agriculture asks that the logo only be used on quality products — not on seconds, rejects or pickouts.

The state's ag product slogan to accompany the logo states: "First rate from the First State."

Sammons also has asked agri-business using the logo and slogan to send the department any samples so that they came be used in a display booth that will promote Delaware ag products at shopping meals and schools.

Del. plans Apple Night

HARRINGTON, Del. — October 30 has been designated as Delaware Apple Night at Harrington Raceway in Harrington.

On that night, the Delaware Apple Growers Association will be providing a free apple to every person that passes through the gate. Delaware Apple Queen Yvonne Simpson of Milford will greet the race fans and personally distribute over a thousand apples.

The Clubhouse Restaurant will be featuring apples on its menu that evening, and a special Apple Queen Trophy Race will be run. Simpson will present the winner with an engraved trophy topped off with a Red Delicious apple.

Delaware's apple harvest is in full swing, and producers say the crop looks very good. The cool nights and warm days of early September helped nature paint a deep red coat on the apples.

Delaware orchards are expected to turn out over 321,000 bushels this year.

MAMMA plans balanced dairy advertising program

TOWSON, Md. — With 100 percent participation in dairy advertising programs this year, you can expect to see and hear more advertising and promotion for milk and dairy products than ever before. This advertising will be directed at many consumer segments, with the primary objective of increasing per capita sales and consumption, and bringing market demand closer in line with supply. The ultimate objective is to decrease government puchases of surplus product and increase the price of milk received by farmers.

The Board of Directors of the Advertising and Promotion Agency of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area, MAMMA, met recently to outline how to most effectively target advertising dollars in the mid-Atlantic market in 1985. MAMMA is responsible for coordinating dairy advertising and promotion programs in Federal Order #4, which includes the Philadelphia, Harrisburg, York, Lancaster, Baltimore, Salisbury, and Washington, D.C. markets. In preparing a program plan for 1985, MAMMA's Board took into careful consideration what advertising elements will be placed in the mid-Atlantic by the new National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, NDPRB.

The national plan calls for 50.6 million dollars to be placed in media nation-wide from Sept. 1, 1984 to April 30, 1985. Of that an estimated 3 to 3.5 million dollars will come into the mid-Atlantic market. The national advertising plan is designed to heavily advertise milk, real cheese, and butter mostly on network television. The health benefits of calcium contained in dairy foods in the diet will also be promoted in national magazine ads.

MAMMA's proposed 4.5 to 5 million dollar 1985 program plan extends and intensifies the national effort in order to achieve a balanced promotion program in the mid-Atlantic.

The widespread calcium defiency that exists in Americans' diets today is a major public health problem. Many recent news articles in the popular press have created an awareness of the importance of calcium in the diet. Given that milk and other dairy foods account for 72 percent of the calcium in our diets, this represents a tremendous marketing opportunity for MAMMA's advertising program. The popular "Foods For Fitness" television commercial, produced by MAMMA, will be updated in 1985 to identify milk, cottage cheese and yogurt as important sources of calcium. MAMMA's "Nine To Five" milk television commercial will also extend the calcium theme to fluid milk advertising. MAMMA's multi-media advertising program will also include billboard and radio advertising in 1985.

MAMMA's Board of Directors voted to continue funding the nutritional education programs of Dairy Council in the mid-Atlantic region. Budget approvals were also given to the Dairy Princess programs in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia.

MAMMA's staff will continue a strong merchandising program working with food retailers, and a food publicity program directed to food editors, to assure a balanced advertising and promotion program for Federal Order #4.

For more information on the advertising and promotion programs conducted in the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area, call MAMMA at (301) 321-0266.

Bumper harvests predicted for Pa.

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's 1984 corn for grain, tobacco, fall potatoes, apples and hay production is expected to be above 1983 based on Oct. 1 conditions, while grape production is forecast below last year, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Corn for grain production is forecast at 137.8 million bushels, 90 percent above last year's drought-reduced crop. Acreage for harvest is set at 1.30 million with a yield of 106 bushels per acre.

Tobacco production is forecast at 24.0 million pounds, nine percent above last year. Acreage for harvest is expected to be 12,000 with an average yield of 2,000 pounds per acre.

Fall potato production is forecast at 4.95 million hundredweight (cwt.), 15 percent above a year ago. Acreage for harvest is set at 21,500 acres with an average yield per acre of 230 cwt.

Apple production is forecast at 530 million pounds, six percent above the 500 million pounds produced last year.

All hay production is set at 5.57 million tons, 21 percent above the 1983 level. Acreage for harvest is estimated at 1.98 million with an average yield per acre of 2.82 tons.

United States corn for grain production is forecast at 7.5 billion bushels, 80 percent above last year's drought-stricken crop. U.S. tobacco production is forecast at 1.74 billion pounds, 22 percent above last year. Fall potato production at 310 million cwt. is five percent above last year. Apple production at 8.23 million pounds is one percent below the 1983 production. All hay production at 154.05 million tons in nine percent above 1983. Grape production at the U.S. level is forecast at 5.02 million tons, nine percent below 1983 production.

For Penn State professor, Dr. Robert Cowan, capturing these tiny, elusi fri

BY JACK HUBLEY

UNIVERSITY PARK — The professor kneels amid the crisp straw and strokes the head of a small, timid mammal no bigger than a housecat. The delicate pointed muzzle, flag of a tail, and long slender legs terminating in tiny black hooves give the animal the appearance of a miniature deer. It's just that the scale is all wrong. At a mature weight of nine pounds, this pint-size African antelope known as a blue duiker (pronounced diker) could rest comfortably in a shoe box.

But the duiker's similarity to the deer family is more than skin deep. These antelope are true ruminants, or cud-chewers, possessing the same four-compartment stomach as the deer, sheep, goats and cattle.

The advantages of using such a tiny ruminant in forage research becomes apparent when duikers are compared to sheep, a commonly used research animal.

Forage experiments done by Penn State's College of Agriculture typically require about 300 pounds of feed per sheep, says Dr. Robert Cowan, professor emeritus of animal nutrition.

"With blue duikers we can do an evaluation with as little as 10 pounds of forage," Cowan points out, "and the forage can be produced under controlled conditions in growth chambers." The amount of seed needed to produce this much forage may be only 30 to 40 grams, says Cowan, while one sheep experiment may require four or five pounds.

And duiker experiments can be carried out in much smaller facilities. A group of 64 animals, for example, will permit the researcher to do 16 trials in a room hardly big enough to accommodate four sheep.

All of the inherent advantages of small antelope research became apparent to Cowan soon after he joined the College of Agriculture faculty in 1948.

One of the virtues of blue duikers is their docile temperament as demonstrated here by research aid Marsha Michalec and Desi.

"When I first saw the dik-diks (another species of small African antelope) at the Philadelphia Zoo," recalls Dr. Cowan, "I thought it would be a great thing if we could use animals of that size in forage studies."

But it wasn't until 1974, during a photographic safari to South Africa with the Wildlife Society, that Cowan began to lay plans to bring African antelope back home to the States.

The professor soon returned to Africa on sabbatical, armed with a list of antelope species he was prepared to consider for research purposes.

Upon arriving in Pretoria, South Africa, in September of 1975, one of the first stops for Cowan, his wife Lois, and daughter Laura, was the Pretoria Zoo. The researcher soon found himself in front of an enclosure housing a female duiker that had just given birth.

"She walked over to the fence, so I offered her a couple of oak leaves, and she took them right out of my hand," Cowan remembers. "Here I was in South Africa only half a day and I'd already found duikers reproducing in captivity and tame enough to eat from my hand. Right there I forgot about the rest of the animals on my list."

But the Penn State professor was soon to find out the the duikers' small size and gentle nature belied the herculean task of removing them from their native continent. Indeed, the naive researcher couldn't have selected a more exhausting chore had he chosen to import a herd of African elephants.

After observing the captive antelope for some time, Cowan soon came to the realization that he knew more about them than the zoo's director and keepers.

"Because they were shy animals and lived in thick, brushy country, nobody could tell me much about them, or how I could go about capturing some," says Cowan.

After a considerable amount of detective work, Cowan was contacted by a graduate student who knew of a healthy population of duikers located within a park used as a private retreat by the prime minister of South Africa.

Meanwhile the professor also located a number of the antelope in a zoo located in the South African town of East London. Arriving in East London with a supply of alfalfa acquired in Pretoria, Cowan convinced zoo personnel to permit him to run a series of pilot forage experiments using four of the animals.

"The results convinced me that, if they could be had, blue duikers were the ruminants we were looking for."

The Natal Parks Board granted Cowan permission to capture three pairs of duikers from the prime minister's retreat, a job that was accomplished in one day, thanks to the aid of 28 park volunteers and 200 yards of netting.

With the end of his sabbatical drawing near, Cowan drove the 500 miles back to Pretoria and headed for home to make arrangements for importing his animals. But when confronted by the extensive quarantine procedures necessary, the professor realized that importing the antelope in such small numbers wasn't practical.

Another year passed, and in November, 1976, Cowan returned to South Africa with permits to capture 24 antelope and quarantine

...sor and his antelope

them in Naples, Italy, for the requisite 60 days. Since regulations stipulated that wild ruminants could only be exported to zoological parks, Philadelphia Zoo officials agreed to accept Cowan's stock. Offspring of the original animals could then be legally transferred to Penn State.

When the Naples quarantine period had passed, the antelope were shipped to Clifton, N.J., to endure an additional 30-day quarantine. At the termination of this quarantine, the 16 surviving animals finally arrived in Philadelphia, but the long awaited antelope progeny would never reach the university. After 3½ years, all but four of the original antelope had died, and no offspring had been produced. Convinced that he, himself, could successfully raise the duikers, the tireless professor planned a new attack.

"So I worked on the USDA to approve the Penn State deer pens as a zoological park, and in January of 1981, approval came through," he recounts.

Two months later, Cowan was back in Africa, and an understanding parks board granted him permission to capture 30 more antelope. Discovering that he was no longer permitted to take animals at the original capture site, Cowan worked in 15 different locations during April and May before capturing 33 animals and donating several to the East London Zoo. But once again, government regulations conspired to stand in his way.

Cowan soon found that the Italians had rewritten their quarantine regulations, making it impossible for him to use the Naples station. Appeals to other USDA-approved quarantine stations in South Africa, Kenya and Germany produced similar results. With no way to turn, Cowan deposited all his animals in the East London Zoo, and went home to plan his strategy.

One glimmer of hope remained. Though the owner of the South African quarantine station located at Walvis Bay had refused to quarantine Cowan's animals because they were too few in number to warrant manning the station, the professor had a different proposition. Suppose he, himself, would rent the facilities and remain at the station for the 60-day period?

And so, with the support of the University's Dean of the College of Agriculture, Sam Smith, Dr. Cowan struck an agreement with the quarantine station's owner. He would quarantine his own animals for two months at a cost of $5,000.

Upon crossing the desert to the quarantine station, Cowan found it to be in deplorable condition, with no electricity or water, and layers of old animal dung covered by drifting sand. Resolving to make the best of a bad situation, he sent the required blood samples to the National Animal Disease Laboratory in Plum Island, N.Y., and set up housekeeping in his 12-foot camping trailer for the duration of the quarantine.

But an end to the professor's ordeal was not yet in the cards. Two days before Christmas, 1981, he received word that two of his animals had tested positive for rinderpest, a disease that had supposedly been eradicated in Africa in 1904. His instructions were to remove the two suspect antelope, clean and sanitize the facilities and remain for an additional 60-day quarantine period.

At the end of this second quarantine period, the University was required to fly a veterinarian from the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service headquarters in Hyattsville, Md., to Walvis Bay. The APHIS veterinarian then accompanied Cowan and his animals from the quarantine station, to Johannesburg, and then on to New York.

The professor's precious shipment reached U.S. soil on March 12, 1982. Finally, after an additional 30-day stateside quarantine had ended, the antelope reached University Park in April, nearly seven years after Dr. Cowan's introduction to the species at the Pretoria Zoo. Counting births, deaths, and culls since the time that the animals began their long journey from the East London Zoo, a total of 18 antelope remained: five males and 13 females.

Today the University's herd numbers 65, and reproduction, "is going along optimally," with some females averaging one offspring every seven months, reports Dr. Cowan.

At an adult weight of nine pounds, the blue duiker is among the world's smallest antelope. But despite their small size, efforts by Penn State's Dr. Robert Cowan to import the African antelope for forage research turned into a king-size undertaking.

Though a small amount of forage research is currently underway, Cowan points out that the main objective is to build herd size, since Penn State's token population represents the only blue duikers existing outside of Africa.

One way to assure the future of the antelope is to establish populations at different locations. This is a phase of "project duiker" that will hopefully go smoothly since the University currently has a waiting list of animal scientists, agronomists and plant breeders who, "can't wait to get ahold of them," says Dr. Cowan. To that end, Cowan will be accompanying 12 duikers south next week to establish a second population at North Carolina State University.

With this mission accomplished, Penn State's retired professor emeritus of animal nutrition will be off to New Zealand for some long overdue rest and relaxation. Admittedly though, he'll still be sleeping with one eye open.

"I won't rest easy until we have hundreds of duikers established in several locations," Dr. Cowan asserts.

And it's not difficult to understand why.

Food & ag policy conference scheduled

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Center for Food and Agricultural Policy at Resources for the Future and the National Agricultural Forum will hold a three-day national conference Dec. 4-6 on Food and agricultural policy issues facing Congress in 1985, officials of the two groups announced today.

Cosponsors of the conference include the American Agricultural Economics Association, American Farmland Trust, Center for National Policy, Conservation Foundation, Curry Foundation, Farm Foundation, Giannini Foundation, National Food and Agricultural Policy Research Institute, National Governors Association, Food and Agriculture Committee of the National Planning Association, and the Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies.

Scheduled to follow the November elections and precede congressional hearings on farm-program legislatin in early 1985, the conference will bring together the wide array of individuals and organizations that have been preparing for that debate for most of this year.

In a joint statement, Kenneth R. Farrell, director of the National Center, and Adrian J. Polansky, a Belleville, Kan., poducer and moderator of the Forum trustees, noted:

"Food and agricultural policy is under extraordinary scrutiny today. Agriculture, the nation's largest industry, has changed fundamentally since federal agricultural policy was fashioned in the 1930s. A rethinking of that policy is cricially needed, and the many groups with interests in food, agriculture and resources, in addition to producers, should be involved in the process.

"Many policy-research organizations and groups with specifically focused interests — resource conservation, international trade, food safety and nutrition, for example — are preparing to enter the debate in a significant way. Several organizations have studies underway to define policy options on these issues, in addition to the preparations of governmental bodies, general farm organizations and major commodity organizations.

"All this interest is an important and healthy development for agriculture, because of the opportunity it offers for public dialogue and education before new policies are set.

"We are organizing this conference because we see a need to pool information among the many groups working on policy options, to share perspectives, to air and 'cross-fertilize' proposals and thus to reduce the level of possible confusion prior to congressional deliberations."

Top national officials and business and academic leaders will be invited to address the conference and join in its discussions. The program also will feature representatives of policy research institutions, general farm organizations and commodity, consumer, resource and environmental groups.

The conference, open to the public, will be held at the Key Bridge Marriott Hotel in Rosslyn, Va., just across the Potomac River from Washington, beginning the afternoon of Dec. 4 and concluding in early afternoon Dec. 6.

Registration forms and other details will be available later this month from the Agriculture Council of America Education Foundation, a nonprofit research and education organization that coordinates the National Agricultural Forum, and from the National Center at Resources for the Future.

The National Agricultural Forum, founded in 1983 and guided by an independent body of trustees from all agricultural sectors, was formed to aid in the development of sound public policies by providing a common arena where interested parties can contribute their knowledge and experience in defining feasible alternative approaches to agricultural issues of national importance. It uses a process of state of local review of national task-force analyses of issues and alternatives before presenting its reports to policymakers.

Resources for the Future, a nonprofit, nonadvocacy research organization founded in 1952, conducts research and policy analysis in the areas of environmental quality, energy and nonfuels minerals, water and land resources, and forest economics. The National Center for Food and Agricultural Policy, established in 1984 by Resources for the Future with funding provided by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, conducts policy analysis, communication and leadership-development programs that focus on interrelated public policy issues involving agriculture, food and nutrition, international trade, natural resources and environmental quality.

Butter ads saturate selected markets

ROSSLYN, Va. — The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board's "Come Home to Butter" commercial will air on television 1,907 times during November and December.

The butter commercials, which began running September 10, are being shown in 18 urban areas rather than on national network TV, as are the fluid milk and cheese commercials. These cities were choses because they are historically good butter markets where consumers tend to buy both butter and margarine. Ads could persuade them to buy more butter and less margarine.

Full-page color butter ads will aslo begin appearing in December, carried initially by Better Homes & Gardens, Women's Day, Family Circle, Redbook, and Good Housekeeping. Butter ads are targeted at female homemakers aged 25-49.

Calcium-related print ads stressing the nutritional benefits of a dairy-rich diet will also begin appearing in December. One- and two-page calcium ads, targeted to young women (12-24) will run that month in Mademoiselle, Self, Seventeen and Young Miss. Those for adult women will appear in Good Housekeeping, McCall's, American Health and Newsweek Woman. Ads in Family Circle, People, Shape and Woman's Day will follow in January and February.

Also during November and December, 102 prime-time and daytime fluid milk and cheese commercials will air on network TV. Another 25 will run during children's programs.

When the first seven weeks of the National Dairy Board's advertising effort end October 31, 171 fluid milk and cheese commercials will have appeared on network television. This number includes 60 commercials of the point-of-sale "Cheese Jamboree" in grocery stores nationwide. The Cheese Jamboree ends in late October.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board's $50.6 million advertising campaign runs from September 9 to April 30, 1985. Its commercials are complemented and supplemented by ads sponsored by state and regional promotional bodies that appear in their local markets.

Dairyman and utility head exchange jobs

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

WOMELSDORF — "There's a lot more to this than meets the eye," stated Floyd Smith, president of Metropolitan Edison Company, Reading. Smith started working before the sun came up one day last week as he arrived at the farm of Clarence Sattazahn, R1, Womelsdorf, to participate in the exchange set up for Farm-City Relations by the Berks County Extension Service.

Smith arrived at the farm to begin milking the 100 Holsteins that the Sattazahns maintain on their 300-acre dairy farm. They milk them in an eight-cow carousel milking parlor with Mrs. Sattazahn, and 21-year-old son, Kevin, doing much of the milking chores.

"I'm a little more familiar with the engineering," Smith stated about the clean and efficient carousel parlor. "I can understand more about how the carousel works than how the cow works," he explained with a smile.

Smith confessed that he was not accustomed to getting out of bed this early, but added that it took him about an hour to drive to the farm. He added that he looked forward to this "short course on farming to fill up some of the vacuum I have about agriculture."

No farm experience

As President of Met-Ed, a subsidiary of GPU, (General Public Utilities), Smith oversees the entire operations of the four divisions and the corporate division of Met-Ed that services Eastern Pennsylvania. "My job does not get me as close to our work as his does," Smith said about Sattazahn's dairy operation as compared to his occupation.

Floyd Smith, president of Metropolitan Edison Company, Reading, helps Clarence Sattazahn, R1 Womelsdorf, feed replacement heifers and feeder bulls.

Although Smith replied that he visited farms before, he has no farm work experience and often took agricultural products for granted.

After learning the milking procedure and short explanations about udders, milking machines, and milk sanitation, Smith accompanied Sattazahn through the daily routine of feeding heifers, mixing grain and silage for the cows, and cleaning up after milking. He also was able to see Kevin artificially inseminate a cow and witness the proper procedures in handling a semen tank and frozen semen.

Visitors to the farm that morning included the milk truck driver to pick up Sattazahn's milk, the milk inspector from Freemans Dairy where Sattazahn sells his milk, and several feed salesman who formulate the feed rations for the Sattazahn herd.

Milk auditor

"He's like our auditor," Smith compared the milk inspector to his own operation. The feed salesmen also enjoyed explaining their services to Smith who replied, "We're always trying to improve our services."

"It's not what it used to be," Sattazahn commented about dairy farming and its complexities.

"Inflation is killing everybody," Smith added Concerning the current surcharge that Med Ed includes in their monthly bills, Smith added, "I'd like to stop being a tax collector."

Some things come quicker than others," Smith said about the skills required for the many farm chores When it was time to load the wheelbarrel to feed the heifers, Smith said, "this is one of the things I know how to do."

Enjoys Tractor

He also enjoyed learning to drive the 4640 John Deere fully equipped tractor that Sattazahn uses in his daily operations.

Along with a slurrystore, free stalls, and the carousel milking parlor, trench silos are also utilized on the Sattazahn farm. Haylage, corn silage, high moisture shelled corn, along with supplement and buffers are used in a total mixed ration to feed the 80 percent registered Holstein herd.

DHIA records, in addition to registration papers, and a daily gestation wheel were explained to Smith by Kevin who oversees the dairy part of the farm.

"I don't think I'd want to trade jobs, but I have a better appreciation for it," Smith concluded after his day on the farm. He was also treated to a "farmer's breakfast" by Mrs. Sattazahn who had the table set and waiting when the men arrived from the barn after milking.

To The Office

to complete the exchange program, Sattazahn and his wife, Marlene, and oldest son, Kevin, were invited by Smith into the Central office of Met Ed to see the daily operations "We had no idea that Met Ed had so many facets," the Sattazahns exclaimed after viewing the extensive operations at the central office in Reading recently. Smith explained that many professions are employed by Met Ed in their services.

The Sattazahns arrived in mid-morning after milking chores. After being served milk in a "gigantic office", they were able to meet the various officers that have charge of the divisions of Met Ed.

"The day went so fast," a secretary explained as the Sattazahns were ushered through many of the process centers in the office. They were introduced to the Remittance Center where 600 checks are processed each hour. They were also able to view the records of their own account in the Customer Inquiry Center that houses a computerized system for the records Rate of payment, location of property and electrical poles and lines are displayed on a screen to facilitate viewing

On the day of the visit, a lineman's training session was also being conducted on the grounds and Sattazahn and Kevin were hoisted in a bucket truck.

Safety demo

One of the most interesting demonstrations of the day, according to the Sattazahns was the safety demonstration given to them in the office. Using models including a "live" wire on scaled down poles, and a hot dog with pipe cleaners attached to resemble a lineman, the Sattazahns witnessed the effects of touching a "hot wire." The hot dog burned immediately and created quite an impression. Safety factors and measures were also demonstrated along with the many considerations an electric company must take when installing electrical service.

The Sattazahns were treated to lunch by Smith and were reluctant to leave when it came time to returning back to the farm for evening chores.

When Smith replied that a lot of

Landis Valley plans barn film

LANCASTER — Heritage Day will be observed at the Pennsylvania Farm Museum of Landis Valley tomorrow Sunday, Oct. 21 from noon to 5 p.m. In addition to the buildings and exhibit areas normally open, a special feature this year will be the periodic showing of the film "A Thing About Barns."

Recently released, this fifteen (15) minute film presentation is designed to raise the viewer's consciousness about the barns of southeastern Pennsylvania which are so often taken for granted. Local residents will recognize barns from this area and gain a new appreciation of their beauty and function. These sturdy, structures, which are an important part of the rural heritage, will come alive and tell their own story through this presentation. The film will be shown every half hour beginning at 12:30 p.m. with the last showing at 4:30 p.m.

Admission to the Museum is $3.00 for adults (18-64); $2.00 for groups and senior citizens (65 and over); $1.00 for youth (6-17); children (under 6) free.

The Pennsylvania Farm Museum, located four (4) miles north of Lancaster on Route 272, is administered by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission which sponsors Heritage Dag in honor of William Penn's birthday.

Brubaker dairy: A hilltop heritage

Dairy Exclusive

BY WENDY WEHR

MANHEIM — Heritage runs deep with the Harold Brubaker family. In the family and the farmland, and even in the dairy herd, there's a lot of history that gives the Brubaker dairy operation a strong foundation on which to grow and prosper in the future.

Harold and Virginia Brubaker and their son, Lowell, and his wife, Deb, run a 125-head dairy operation on a Lancaster County hilltop between Manheim and Mount Joy. They farm about 200 acres on three different farms, but the original "home place" where the Penn-Har-Va dairy is located goes back six generations in the Brubaker family.

Harold explained that the Brubaker farm, which lies off of Strickler Road, was originally part of a large tract of land owned by the Strickler family.

"In 1801 Peter Brubaker married a Strickler, and he farmed this place, although his wife still owned it, until she sold the farm to their son Henry. That was the first generation of Brubakers to hold title to the land," he noted.

Over the generations the land was passed on from father to son. In 1905 Harold's grandfather, Benjamin, acquired the place, and then in 1927 his son, or Harold's father, Levi took over. Harold bought the hilltop farm from his father in 1960.

Today, Harold and his son Lowell farm together, and it was with Lowell's increasing interest and involvement that the Brubaker family made the transition from general farming to dairying.

They had raised everything from poultry to tomatoes and tobacco in the beginning, explained Harold, until in 1968 they eliminated the other crops and livestock and concentrated on dairying.

The 125 head of Holsteins that the Brubakers milk today are actually two herds in one. About 75 of the registered animals belong to Lowell and his wife, Deb, who have their own prefix, which is, very appropriately, Hilltop Heritage.

Nearly all of Lowell's herd comes from two calves that were given to him by his parents when he was a 4-H'er. "His first calf, Blackberry, was an Ivanhoe daughter that we gave him for Christmas," explained Virginia. Unfortunately, Blackberry took ill and died soon after she delivered her first calf, a heifer, but that was enough to get started.

The other calf was purchased by Harold for his son at a sale. Lowell remembers how as a 10-year-old at the sale he asked his father to buy the calf, and then couldn't believe that his dad actually had because she went for so much — $300!

This calf did well for Lowell. She is the great grandmother of one of the best cows in the Brubaker herd now, Hilltop Heritage Pete Twila. The 3-year-old Pete daughter had a 23,000 pound record as a 2-year-old and is now working on another 23,000 pound milk record. She has an Index of +1186.

Lowell mentioned that the bull studs have written several letters to him about Twila. The Brubakers have recently flushed her to Valiant and six pregnancies have resulted.

Harold gives his son a lot of credit for the herd that he's built up. "I gave him a good heifer to start, but it's his achievement," says Harold.

Although Harold and Lowell both clearly state that they work together totally in their dairy operation, Lowell does take a greater interest in the breeding program.

"I especially like tall cattle with really good udders," says Lowell. Right now they're using a lot of Valiant, Lime Hollow Elevation Mars, Mars-Tony, Sexation, Pete, and Bell in their breeding program.

"I have a keen interest in developing cattle with really good type," says Lowell. "I guess it really makes you feel like you've accomplished something."

In the Hilltop Heritage herd there are 15 VG's and 25 Good Plus cows. And there's also one Ex-91 cow, which is Deb Brubaker's addition to the herd.

Deb, who is the former Deb Miller and the 1974 Pa. State Dairy Princess, also comes from a dairy background. Her Excellent cow is an exception in one way though, and it's not because she is scored so highly. "Year after year I got only bull calves from my 4-H projects," says Deb. "This cow is the only heifer calf I ever had." So this is Deb's one contribution to the Hilltop Heritage herd.

Another outstanding cow in the herd who has a story behind her is "New Beginning," who won the grand championship in the dairy competition at the Manheim Farm Show last week. A wedding present from Deb's parents, New Beginning is a 22,000 pound producer.

Deb mentioned that a number of Lowell's friends have been asking him why they don't begin merchandising. Although he feels they are gradually working toward that, with the embryo transplant work that they are doing, for instance, they want to wait for the most appropriate time.

Their homebred herd has been growing in cow numbers as well as in production figures. Just five years ago the Brubakers were milking only about 80 cows. Lowell attributes the growth to good breeding and good care and management.

"When you've got sound type there aren't so many to cull. And I think cows last longer in a stall barn, too," comments Lowell. In their set-up at the home farm they have 94 tie stalls and 25 free stalls. Heifers are raised at one of the other places.

"We almost have too many here at home. We're looking forward to a better future for selling," says Lowell. He mentioned too that they're hoping that the heifer market will improve next spring with the end of the diversion program.

The rolling herd average of the Brubaker's 125 cows fluctuates around 17,000 pounds with a 3.5 test. They ship their milk to Inter-State.

It was only a few years ago that the Brubakers switched from bucket milkers to a pipeline system. Not only was the bucket milking back-breaking work, but the higher producing cows were overflowing the buckets.

"I guess we kept expanding until we hit our limit and then just had to put in a pipeline," comments Lowell.

Another fairly recent change for the Brubakers was the decision to start feeding high moisture corn three years ago. Along with the high moisture corn, they feed a 40 percent supplement, haylage and corn silage.

The corn silage and haylage is fed together at a bunk, and the high moisture corn and hay are fed in the barn.

Their farms provide the herd's haylage and silage needs, explains Harold, and they purchase about 10,000 bushels of corn in addition each year. Although their crops had adequate yields last year, the high price of corn was one result of the season's drought that did affect them.

Harold noted that they paid out an extra $20,000 over the year before to purchase grain. "This year should make up for last though," he says.

A future change that the Brubakers are already planning for is the installation of a manure handling system. Just this week they were discussing plans to install a manure pit in the spring.

With such a large herd, one might expect that the Brubakers hire extra help, but that's kept to a minimum with everyone pitching in to help with the work. Their only hired help is a boy who comes after school to help with the evening chores.

At milking time, two people, usually Harold and Lowell, milk with 10 units, and often Virginia washes off. With everyone's help they can milk over 100 head in one and a half hours.

Lowell describes his mother as "chief calf feeder," and another of Virginia's main responsibilities is keeping the books.

Lowell's sister Kris helps with the milking, too, and their other sister who is still at home, Sharon, helps out by babysitting for Lowell and Deb's children so Deb can help in a pinch in the barn as well.

Lowell and Deb's young family includes two daughters, Heather, age three and a half, and Crystal, who is just three months.

The young couple is optimistic about their future in the dairy industry, and Harold and Virginia seem pleased that they are carrying on the Brubaker farming tradition. No doubt at least part of their optimism has grown out of the "hilltop heritage" that is their foundation.

To accommodate 125 milking head, the Brubakers have 94 tie stalls, pictured here, as well as 24 free stalls.

Students manage Nittany Lion consignment sale

BY WENDY WEHR

STATE COLLEGE—The event is fast approaching, and although nearly a year's work is complete, they can't slow up now. The payoff for all those volunteer, out-of-class hours will be here in just two weeks.

The event is the Nittany Lion Fall Classic, and "they" are members of the Penn State Dairy Science Club, managers of the Classic, a consignment sale of registered Holstein cows, heifers, and calves that will be held Nov. 2 in the newly-completed Ag Arena on the University Park campus.

Management of the Nittany Lion Fall Classic, from selection of the animals, to advertising, to preparation of the cows for the sale, has been carried out by the students on the Classic committee, with the guidance of the Pa. Holstein Association.

Sale chairman is Mark Wolfskill, a seventh semester dairy production major from Robesonia. He'd probably be the first to admit that out-of-class experience is often just as valuable and educational as in-class assignments.

"I volunteered for the job mainly for the experience of the sale itself, learning about merchandising cattle, and for the leadership opportunities," says Wolfskill.

What he got himself into was nearly a full-time job. When not in class, Wolfskill can almost always be found working on the sale project, which actually got its start last year.

"Last spring when we left school, we only had two or three animals consigned, and there was a big question about whether we could really put on the sale," explains Wolfskill. "But the club members really put in a lot of time over the summer and made it happen."

Consigned to the sale are 77 quality animals, all of which the sale committee are really excited about. Twenty-two of the consignments are out of excellent dams, and 35 of the dams have over 22,000 lbs. milk records.

More than fifteen members of the Classic selection committee actually made consignment selections. Often representatives of the PHA went along to add their advice and approval.

As overall sale chairman, Wolfskill is quick to give his fellow students credit for their efforts in making the Nittany Lion Fall Classic a reality. To get all the planning work done several committees were set up, including selection, advertising and promotion, pedigrees and catalogs, food, finance, and arena and animal preparation.

All the committee chairpersons are students in the College of Agriculture, and most are dairy production majors. They include: Suzy Voight from Lafayette, N.J.; Peggy Baker, Adams Co.; June Bechtel, Curryville; Lisa Francisco, Lafayette, N.J.; Deb Price, Berks Co.; Doug Hershberger, Quarryville; and Gary Fink from Westmoreland Co.

"Really, the whole club has been part of the project," says Wolfskill.

Even a few freshmen were recruited this fall to help out. And that's important for the continuation of the project as an annual event.

Suzy Voight, chairperson of the advertising and promotion committee, emphasizes the learning experience as well. "Just learning about the advertising was something for me," she commented. "Before this I knew so little about merchandising."

Suzy Voight and Mark Wolfskill take a minute to look over the advertising in the "Holstein World" for the Nittany Lion Fall Classic consignment sale. Wolfskill is overall chairman of the Penn State Dairy Science Club event, and Voight chaired the advertising and promotion committee.

Voight, who hopes to pursue a career in agricultural communications, thinks working on the Classic project is one important part of her education.

Although the project is new for Penn State, Voight mentioned that student-run consignment sales are held at a number of the other land-grant universities. Both Voight and Wolfskill agree that part of the incentive for the project was the building of the Ag Arena.

"With the completion of the Ag Arena, we now have attractive, suitable facilities in which to hold the sale," they commented. "The alumni and other contributors can come to the sale and see how their money was used."

The Nittany Lion Fall Classic is the first major sale to be held in the Ag Arena.

Wolfskill credits the alumni for their initial support of the idea and their help in obtaining consignments as well. Initially, the Classic committee sent 200 letters to potential consignors.

"We especially appreciate the cooperation and courteousness of the consignors," says Wolfskill. To pick the sale animals the students used guidelines set up jointly by the dairy science club members and the PHA. The consigned animals come from all over Pennsylvania, as well as a few from New Jersey.

With all the selections made, what's left for the student organizers to take care of?

Voight explained that almost all of the advertising is done and that the catalogs are printed. She was pleased that the sale will be featured on the cover of the "Pennsylvania Holstein News" this month.

Now preparations need to be made for the actual arrival of the animals.

The animals will come in the Monday before the sale, and a full-time barn crew of volunteers from the dairy science club will take charge from there. The students will be washing the animals twice and will also be clipping the animals, although a professional clipper will oversee their work. They want to be sure the consigned animals look their best for the sale.

Wolfskill and Voight are especially pleased that the sale has all-university involvement. University president Bryce Jordan will be on hand for a pre-sale reception and he will be leading an animal into the sale ring. The dairy science students have invited some of the Nittany Lion football players and cheerleaders to attend as well.

Egg order

favors the utilization of more efficient birds.

He said that an egg allottment system would require an assessment of less than ¼-cent per dozen.

Although producers were generally in favor of a mandatory research and promotion checkoff program, most felt that the proposed one-cent per dozen was excessive. Accordingly, the committee has recommended that a figure of ½-cent per dozen be used, with the amount being raised to not more than one cent over a five year period. A ½-cent checkoff would raise between $22 million and $24 million annually, Weber said, with a minimum of five percent being set aside for diet and health research and dissemination of this information.

Also to be included in the final marketing order draft will be a provision for surplus hen removal. Producers would be assessed at the rate of ¼-cent per dozen on a continual basis to build a fund to pay for the removal of excess hens during a predetermined time of the year.

Weber also indicated that there will some type of quality assurance clause developed for use in the final draft.

Also on hand to discuss marketing order pro's and con's was Stan Steen, director of the Ontario Egg Board, who recently chaired the International Egg Commission's supply management symposium in The Hague.

"There is a great feeling throughout the world today for some type of assessment to improve the lot of farmers," said Steen, whose province of Ontario has maintained an egg marketing board for the past 20 years.

On the plus side, Steen noted that the use of quotas in Canada has eliminated "boom and bust" cycles during the past 10 years. No producers have lost money, and the more efficient ones are are doing very well.

"The system does tend to preserve the status quo," he noted, adding that Canadian producers do find it difficult to expand. Steen said that hen numbers have been reduced and most Canadians are operating at about 70 percent of their capacity.

Steen cautioned that an egg control system will be very difficult to handle in the U.S., where more eggs are produced in Pa. alone, than in all the Canadian provinces combined. He recommended that the country be divided into "egg sheds" delineated by the major population centers. Production could then be more closely monitored, with stiff penalties imposed on producers who over-produce.

He also cautioned against exempting producers with less than 3,000 birds from production controls.

"You'll have small producers coming out of the woodwork," he warned, reminding his audience that only a one-percent increase in production can lead to a five-percent decrease in profits.

The evening's final speaker was Penn State economist, Tony Stemberger, who pointed out that the central purpose of the marketing order ought to be controlling the supply of eggs. Noting that a quota system is not specifically designed for the purpose of having the consumer pay higher egg prices, he pointed out that prices will automatically go up as supplies are cut back and the demand increases.

"We found out last winter that consumers are willing to pay more for eggs," he said, alluding to prices that reached $1.50 per dozen early this year.

When asked if quantity controls were favored primarily by the larger producers responding to the survey, Weber pointed out that there was no correlation between the size of the producer and his feelings concerning quantity controls.

Weber said that, once an acceptable marketing order has been drawn up, the final draft will be submitted to the USDA for public hearings. This phase will require 12 to 18 months, he said.

Hot ag issues coming before Pa. State Grange

HARRISBURG — Provisions for the 1985 Farm Bill and a state litter tax versus a mandatory bottle and can deposit law will be two of the hottest issues debated by delegates attending the Pennsylvania State Grange annual session in Gettysburg, Monday through Thursday.

More than 100 resolutions will be considered by representatives of the Grange's 552 local and 55 county units. Each local and county grange is entitled to send two delegates to the session, which are usually the master and his/her spouse. An estimated 600 delegates are expected to be in attendance at the four-day meeting.

Resolutions submitted by one grange support a dairy price support program supported by dairy organizations in the northeast. The proposal, which comes from Northumberland County, asks for dairy price supports to be automatically tied to a formula which moves up or down in response to supply and demand, or the rate of surplus milk purchased by the Commodity Credit Corporation. The resolution also calls for an extension of the national dairy promotion program only after a referendum vote, and an emergency standby diversion program in the event that surpluses climb to an alarming level. The resolution also asks for a six-month extension of the current dairy diversion program which is set to expire in April, 1985.

Statements favoring both a litter tax and retaining the Grange's position in favor of mandatory deposits on bottles and cans will be presented to Grange delegates. The issue has been a hot one in the farm community, as litter along roadsides and in fields costs farmers thousands of dollars in equipment breakdowns and loss of livestock. A bottle deposit law support by farm organizations has seen little action in the State Legislature.

Other issues to be decided by the State Grange include:

* Elimination of the popular use of agricultural investments as income tax shelters by non-farm enterprises;

* Animal rights legislation appropriating money for research on the economic impact if farm animals are to be "wild-raised" as proposed by animal rights liberalists;

* Research on prevention and cure of avian influenza and rabies, and a State Grange program encouraging local granges to conduct rabies vaccination clinics;

* A state or federal indemnity program for hogs lost to pseudorabies;

* A three-tiered payment schedule for milk payments in which dairy farmers would receive 75% of their payment within a month;

* A change in the criteria for pricing milk from butterefat content to a solids not fat content; and

* A federal program providing incentives to put marginal (high erosion) farmland in wood fiber production using animal wastes and sludge as fertilizer.

These and other issues will be voted on by delegates at the State Grange meeting. Policy development begins at the local level of the Grange and is used to direct the organization it its legislative representation of 42,000 farm and rural members throughout the state. Resolutions passed during the session which pertain to national issues will be brought before the National Grange convention in November in Portland, Maine.

Conrad Fisher, left, and Phil McMahon, both of Green Lane, showed their steers to top honors at the annual Montgomery County 4-H Steer Show. Conrad was named reserve Champion Fitter while Steve won Champion Showman and his steer named Reserve Grand Champion Animal. Both members will be exhibiting their steers at the Eastern Pennsylvania 4-H Beef Show and Sale at the Allentown Fairgrounds in October.

USDA, PDA begins hunt for bee parasites

HARRISBURG — Inspectors from the Pennsylvania and U.S. Departments of Agriculture are working to prevent the importation of tiny honeybee parasites into the Commonwealth.

The honeybee tracheal mite, Acarapis woodi, known to infest hives in areas of New York, Texas, Florida, Louisiana and South Dakota, adheres to the breathing tubes of young bees.

Under a nationwide program, USDA officials plan to collect 50 hive samples from throughout Pennsylvania. Inspectors from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Entomology Division will collect half the samples under the cooperative program, with federal officials responsible for the remainder. The samples will be processed and analyzed for signs of parasites in the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Entomology Laboratory.

The parasite is known to have been transported interstate in colonies shipped by suppliers. Inspectors urge those beekeepers involved in migratory shipping activities to avoid movement to infested areas and to require certification that shipments are free of the parasite. Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture inspectors provide certification for Pennsylvania bees shipped interstate.

The majority of hives in the state are maintained by "hobbyist" beekeepers not engaged in migratory shipping. In 1982, the state's 1,788 beekeepers obtained over 1.3 million pounds of honey from their 27,183 colonies.

Cover Crop

NORRISTOWN — Now is the time to think about planting a cover crop to protect your open fields over winter.

Rye can be planted this fall and in the spring plowed down as a green manure crop or cut for rye silage and corn or beans can then be no-tilled into rye stubble. This cover crop can be beneficial to the soil in many ways; as a cover over winter, it also improves tilth by adding organic material; and in a no-till system, it can also be utilized by harvesting it for the animals.

Rye is a very versatile crop. It can be planted in many ways, and can fit into many different operations. Rye cover cropping can probably fit into any operation, and it can bring reassuring thoughts that fields have a cover on them over winter when bare fields are subjected to the elements that can cause severe erosion.

"Pumpkin people" invade the countryside

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

STEWARTSTOWN — About this time every year, as the moon grows round and bright and the nights turn chilly, mysterious creatures begin popping up around the countryside.

They appear part human and part alien, part scary and part comical. Some have cornsilk hanks of hair and others show round, orange, bald pates. Some wear colorful clothes, while others bare more. Usually they turn up among crackly cornshocks, piles of colorful, oddly-shaped gourds and clusters of bright Indian corn.

Even their pets come along: butternut squash piglets, neck-pumpkin geese, elongated-gourd snakes, Snoopy of Peanuts cartoon fame and the provocative Miss Piggy.

"Pumpkin people" are turning up all over these days, at retail farm markets, countryside stands, even downtown front porches.

Few displays of the decorative and amusing pumpkin characters have as long a history as the one at Red Rooster Farm, just south of Stewartstown, owned by Lois and Spencer Hammond.

The Hammonds farm a hundred acres, about half of it in vegetables for their retail farm market, and several acres of pumpkins. The orange cooking, baking, and decorative vegetables have always been a major seasonal item at Red Rooster Farm market, and Hammond figured his own version of a pumpkin house would help catch the interest of visiting customers.

That house, filled with colorful pumpkins, proved such a success that the idea developed into a seasonal creative project for Hammond, prime designer of his pumpkin people displays.

While the pumpkin house has returned, year after year, other ideas for characters from pumpkins and gourds expanded into several corners of the yard, parking and sales stand area.

This year's display numbers are down just a bit, but ten creative pumpkin pictorals surround the market. They range from a grizzled mountain man guarding his pumpkin "still" to a trio of singers rehearsing "ghostly tunes." As much as possible, the displays are designed life size.

Red Rooster's pumpkin people have proved an extremely popular drawing card, with hundreds of visitors yearly. Many of them are groups of children from elementary to nursery school ages, traveling often 20 miles or more to view the amusing, cheery array of Hammond's pumpkin characters.

"I used to show each display, one by one, to each group that visited," relates Lois Hammond, who manages the retail market while her husband and employees handle the full-time job of producing, picking and hauling in the daily harvests. "Now I just tell them about the displays, and they can go look at them on their own."

She also makes a point of mentioning to adult leaders of such groups the work involved in food production, and its relatively inexpensive cost compared to that in other countries.

Hammond's retail market is open, seven days weekly, from July through October. A complete line of seasonal produce opens with early sweet corn and continues through the fall harvest of pumpkins, squash, and decorative items like ornamental corn and gourds. Peppers, sweet potatoes, beans, eggplant and cantaloupes are among the market's many offerings. At the end of October, the market stand is closed and Hammond turns his attention to harvesting the corn crop - while pondering new pumpkin people ideas as he gathers the grain.

Trio of Pumpkin choristors harmonizes a rendition of "Ghostly tunes," including "That Old Black Magic.."

Cider might be the brew of the season, but this "Grandpa" prefers the distilled essence of pumpkin. Is that an IRS ghost in the back?

Perched in the shadow of a cornstalk, two-year-old Adam Coles, of Cockeysville, Md., grins as he ponders all the delicious pies represented by these pumpkins.

The naughty but lovely Miss Piggy reigns over the Hammond pumpkin kingdom.

Spencer Hammond's delightful seasonal display began nearly two decades ago when he patterened a pumpkin house after a seed catalog photo. Some toddlers find the wicked witch on the roof just a bit scary.

Crawford Farmers Assn. meets

BY NANCY KUDNICK
Staff Correspondent

MEADVILLE — The Crawford County Farmers' Association held its annual meeting recently at "The Center", Perkins Restaurant, Meadville.

One hundred members and guests attended. President Jack Post presided over the meeting and introduced guests, including several elected officials. A letter was also read from U.S. Congressman Tom Ridge expressing his interest in farmers in Crawford County and his regrets for being unable to attend.

The evening got off to a lively start with Sherry Stanton of Conneaut Lake and her four "ag recruiters". Stanton is the chairman of the "Ag in the Classroom" program which is designed to acquaint school children with agriculture. The recruiters are searching for persons to help by taking pictures, speaking, and inviting children to tour their operations.

Speakers at Crawford County Farmers Assn. annual meeting include, from the left, Myron Ludwick, State Director of District 14; Sue Ludwick, of State Women's Committee; and Roberta McConnell, active supporter of Young Farm Couples program.

Myron Ludwick, State Director for District 14 which includes Erie, Crawford and Warren counties, thanked and congratulated Crawford County on their strong organization. Ludwick will not seek reelection and in leaving his position he urged members to support the elected officials.

Sue Ludwick reported on the activities of the State Women's Committee. "Calendars for Safety" are being sold for $1.00 each. Also important to PFA members is the Young Farm Couples Conference. Roberta McConnell of Mercer Co. spoke on her involvement with this. She and her husband were the first couple from Pennsylvania to ever be chosen to serve on the National Committee. Although this occurred four years ago she is still active and encouraged Crawford County to send couples to the conferences.

Crawford County Dairy Princess Nancy Jo Mitrich was on hand to tell of the recent State Pageant at which she was selected first runner-up. District 14 was well represented at the pageant as Erie County's Lynette Loper was crowned 1984 Pa. Dairy Princess.

Legislation was a topic at the meeting. Cal Ernst of the Legislative Committee spoke about the '85 Farm Bill. He pointed out that farmers are being heard, especially by Tom Ridge who hosted an Ag Forum in April within the county.

President Post then reviewed the Legislative Tour held September 28. Three operations were visited by State Senator Roy Wilt, State Representatives Tom Swift, Jim Merry, and Robin Robbins and all three County Commissioners. Diversified operations of Robert and Jean Boozer, Calvin and Marcia Ernst and Dave and Donna Reusing were toured to increase understanding of farmers' problems.

Leon Sweatman, Tour Chairman, then presented a gift to Donna Reusing in appreciation of her secretarial efforts and meal preparation that helped to make the tour a success.

Twenty local, state and national policies were discussed and voted on. Most of these were adopted.

Krall attends BOAC conference

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Gary Krall of Lebanon, recently completed an internship in Congressman Robert S. Walker's office while attending the Future Farmers of America's annual community development conference for state Achievement in Volunteerism winners in Washington, D.C. Krall was named the Pennsylvania winner during the state FFA convention this summer for contributions to his chapter's Building Our American Communities (BOAC) project.

Krall is a member of the Cedar Crest FFA Chapter at Cedar Crest High School in Lebanon.

BOAC is a community development program. Chapters meet with community leader and identify local needs. The chapter than initiates one or more projects targeting those needs. As a state winner, Krall received a plaque and a $200 check for his chapter from BOAC program sponsor, R J. Reynolds Industries, Inc. of Winston-Salem, N.C.

While in Washington, Krall and his FFA Advisor Harold Berkheiser attended sessions on community development and toured historic landmarks. In addition, the Pennsylvania BOAC representatives attended an awards luncheon on Capitol Hill hosted by the House Agriculture Committee, accepting a state award for BOAC volunteerism from the White House, attended briefings at the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Senate Agriculture Committee, and saw Anthony Quinn in "Zorba the Greek" at the Kennedy Center.

The conference and all travel expenses were underwritten by BOAC sponsor, Reynolds Industries.

Perry Valley Grange wins contest

HARRISBURG — Perry Valley Grange, located in Millerstown, Perry County, took top honors in the State Grange Community Service Contest. The 150-member local Grange was selected by the Delaware State Grange, contest judges, on the basis of 18 projects conducted during the 1983-84 year to benefit their local community.

According to Douglas Bonsall, State Grange Lecturer (program director), 80 local granges entered the 1984 contest, representing many thousands of hours of volunteer work to improve local communities in rural areas. Perry Valley Grange estimated their man hours at 8,000.

Placing second through fourth places, respectively, were Pleasant Hill Grange, Chest Springs, Cambria County; Kutztown Grange, Kutztown, Berks County; and Hookstown Grange, Hookstown, Beaver County.

Perry Valley Grange impressed the judges with the quantity and creativity of their many projects. One of the most active granges in the state, Perry Valley won last year's state and national contests, and was a second place winner in 1982.

The grange's major emphasis has been in projects to benefit deaf causes. Eight-week sign language courses are conducted for the community three times a year and average 35 participants per class. A deaf loan fund was created to provide interest-free loans to deaf persons to purchase TTY devices for their telephones, and the Grange Hall is opened free of charge for deaf socials on a monthly basis. One of the more innovative projects conducted by the Grange was a Christmas cookie exchange where community residents traded home-baked cookies with some of the treats presented to shut-ins. In addition, the grange raised over $3400 for various causes.

A $200 U.S. Savings Bond will be presented to Perry Valley representatives during the State Grange convention in Gettysburg next week. In addition, the Grange will compete with top winners in the other 41 State Granges for the national award.

31 groups

Pennsylvania dairymen are taking an active interest in promoting dairy products. Hopefully, through the coordinated efforts, many more consumers will 'Make It Milk.'"

Hallowell said the projects cover such promotional ideas as increasing awareness of the Real Seal logo,' radio trivia contests featuring dairy product questions, nutrition and school educational programs, mall promotions, dairy princess programs, mobile sales booths, and mystery tipper programs.

The 31 groups submitting funding requests included 28 county groups: Adams, Armstrong, Beaver-Lawrence, Bedford, Blair, Bradford, Centre, Chester, Clarion-Venango, Columbia-Luzerne, Crawford, Cumberland-Perry, Fayette, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Lancaster, Mercer, Mifflin, Montgomery, Perry, Schuylkill, Somerset, Warren, Washington-Greene, Wyoming-Lackawanna, York, and Cumberland.

The other three promotional groups were not affiliated with a specific county: the Southeastern Pennsylvania Milk Promotion Committee, Hazleton Dental Auxiliary, and the Mifflintown Lions.

Dairy Exclusive

Many of the proposed projects, which must be conducted between Nov. 1, 1984, and April 1, 1985, have local matching funds, which is one of the items the Board is considering in approving the funding requests.

An Advisory Board subcommittee reviewed the applications on Friday. The committee will present its recommendations to the entire Advisory Board at its regularly scheduled meeting in Harrisburg next Friday.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program was created under provisions of the National Dairy Promotion Program. Federal legislation passed in late 1983 established the mandatory 15 cents per hundredweight deduction on all milk produced in the continental United States. Funds are used to promote milk and dairy product sales, and qualifying programs like Pennsylvania's may receive 10 cents of the federal deduction for use in local and regional promotion efforts.

20 million spigots

Between now and April 1 that figure will likely be adjusted and readjusted regularly by the USDA – just as it is now fiddling with the corn and bean yields. But instead of downward adjustment, the heifer figures will likely move the other way.

And whatever the figures finally say they sure won't be any April Fool's joke.

But as the East basks in Indian Summer and Denver gets buried in snow, the stage couldn't be better set for a massive spring flush of milk.

–Cash flow is the name of the game in farming today and more milk brings in more cash.

–Government purchases of dairy surpluses will likely spark two more 50-cent cuts in supports next year.

–But things aren't looking too bad today. Farmers are seeing higher prices boost their milk checks. And some co-ops are almost crying for more milk.

–Overflowing silos will provide plenty of winter feed – more than enough to bump those replacements up even higher. Not like last year when poor crops affected dairy culling more than the diversion.

–For whatever reason, the dairy dogs are out of the herd and the improved national genetic base will push production averages even higher in 1985.

So what if supports are cut even further, those higher prices and additional animals will likely balance it all out.

What does it matter that the tune will likely change and the Piper will need to be paid sometime.

WHEN? – HOW MUCH? – WHO WILL IT AFFECT MOST? –

These are the blanks that need to be filled in yet.

The dairy replacement situation, end of the diversion, the new Farm Bill – what these may mean were all part of an economic forecast put on by American Bank this week in Lancaster.

Few farmers sat in the audience. Most in attendance were agribusiness reps, such as feed mill operators.

The session was emceed by Bill Hughes, agri loan head at American Bank – part of the Meridian conglomerate.

Speaking economists included Lou Moore, Penn State; and Robert Kline, of American.

Moore covered the ag end of the economy – the end that has been lagging in last place in any recovery that has been reported from other segments.

He reported that while net farm income may show some sizable gain for 1984, ag cash flow will stay about the same. A good bit of the increased net farm income will be reflected in larger inventories on the farm that replace those pulled down by last year's drought.

"The economic recovery has bypassed ag," Moore said, "but I'm a little optimistic for the next few months."

"But the famine side of the regular agricultural feast or famine cycle will likely continue largely for a couple more years."

On the bright side in Pennsylvania, average corn yields will come in at about a record 106 bushels to the acre. Silos are filled.

But on the other side of the corn, the Corn Belt had a record dry August – reflected in the USDA's continuing adjustment downward of the national corn crop.

Ag exports will be down next year, except for the hungry Russians.

Grain will not be that cheap next year due to the Russian purchases and weather in the Midwest.

Kline of the American Bank reviewed the general economy.

"We may never have another joyous economic year as we have had in 1984," he said.

"But I know that I'm talking to an industry that has not shared this joy.

"No one said things are fair."

The coming year won't be a bad year (in the general economy), according to Kline.

"But I don't know if we'll ever see another 1984 again," he said.

Rabies

To ensure the best possible protection of all individuals who contacted the cow, 23 of the 26 people who came in contact with the cow while it was a patient at New Bolton Center are receiving booster shots. These individuals previously had been vaccinated for rabies. The other three individuals have been advised to take the five shot series.

In addition, all areas which the animal contacted at New Bolton Center have been sanitized. The incident has been reported to the Commonwealth of Virginia to determine if the herd should be quarantined.

According to Dr. Lawrence Glickman, Chief of Epidemiology at the School of Veterinary Medicine, the rise in incidence of rabies in Pennsylvania's wildlife, particularly in raccoons and skunks, has reached "alarming proportions."

As of October 6th, there have been 264 confirmed animal rabies cases in Pennsylvania involving 15 species which includes 33 counties. Recently one human case of rabies was reported in the state.

In view of these developments, the Chester County Health Department recommends the following preventative measures:

—All dogs and cats should be vaccinated against rabies.

—Any animal exhibiting neurologic and/or behavioral changes should be taken to the veterinarian for examination.

—Wild animals should not be handled or kept as pets under any circumstances.

—High risk animals, such as raccoons and skunks, should not be handled or kept as pets, even if commercially purchased.

—Hunters should use extreme caution when removing the head of any wild animal in order to avoid contact with saliva or nervous system tissue.

—Any bizarre behavior or unexplained deaths in wild animals should be reported to the local health authorities or the Pa. Game Commission.

—Any animal bite should be thoroughly cleansed and reported promptly to the family physician.

Dr. John Maher, Director of the Chester County Health Department, stressed that "at this time, while there is no reason for panic, everyone should be aware the situation is growing more serious and should take the appropriate precautions."

Berks Extension passes in review

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

LEESPORT — Over 200 "friends of the extension association" attended the 70th Annual Meeting of the Berks County Extension Association held last Monday evening in Bern Township. Taking advantage of the spacious, newly completed 4-H Community Center, the banquet-meeting featured the extension staff and the highlights from the variety of the programs that they carry out each day.

"This is the finest extension staff in the state of Pennsylvania," Herbert A. Wetzel, Berks County extension director, began the introductions. With a staff of seven county agents and home economists and four nutrition aides, the Berks County extension service is able to provide programs in livestock, horticulture, farm management, 4-H in the city and country, dairy education, nutrition, home economics, and many, many more opportunities to members of the community. Wetzel and the staff went on to explain the highlights of their programs.

Beginning with pomology, Wetzel used a slide presentation to explain the modern methods of growing apples. George Hekman, general manager of Ontelaunee Orchards, Leesport, also helped to explain many of the procedures and problems that apple growers are faced with.

"Our number one problem is marketing," Hekman stated. "We know how to grow them, now we must learn how to sell them." "We have to do more promotion," he told everyone present. "Agriculture is still the number one industry," he continued. Working with the extension and cooperating with Penn State in various research projects, Hekman also assists in conducting educational classes for the community, "I always support the extension as much as possible," he concluded.

Clyde Myers, the county agent concerned with dairy and livestock, continued the program with several of his featured programs conducted this year. The hoof to rail, sheep carcass evaluation program proved to be well attended and very helpful to sheep producers according to Myers. A stray voltage eradication session was also conducted on many of the county farms and included electrical experts assistance to solve the problems.

Myers also organized the farm-city activities which increased this year to include farmer-businessmen exchanges, and a farm-city banquet-meeting to be held in November. His involvement with the local Chamber of Commerce and many county farmer groups also lead to an educational film presentation show at many meetings and schools to enhance farm-city relations.

Computers, brassicas, and management were discussed by Harry Schaffer, farm management agent. William Zollers, Guernsey dairyman from R1, Mertztown, also assisted Schaffer with a slide presentation explaining the brassica test plots conducted in the County.

Zollers planted turnips on his dairy farm and experienced good results in feeding them to his milking herd. "We did find there was an increase of six pounds of milk per day during the period of this feeding," Zollers reported. "It has a real use..", Schaffer stated. He said that current research involving brassicas and sorghum-sudan grasses also looks very promising and told farmers that complete results and data will be available from his office in the future. This was the second season of brassicas in Berks County and the test plots involved approximately 120 acres in eight demonstration plots.

Horticultural programs were briefly outlined by Judith Stoudt, homegrounds and horticultural agent. In her presentation she featured the horticultural therapy program being conducted at the Hamburg Center. Utilized to teach basis life functions through the care and nuturing of plants, the therapy program currently involves 11 client-patients, and the success is encouraging according to Stoudt. She also outlined the Master Gardener program.

Master gardener, Margaret Ebeling, Reading, explained her progress because of the program. Ebeling was instrumental in teaching vegetable gardening to inner-city Reading homemakers.

Gail Malsbury, president of the Berks County Cooperative Extension Association, presided over the business meeting. She presented plaques for their service to the extension to Kenneth Schlegel and Sandra Christman, members of the board.

Distinguished Service awards were also presented to Herbert Wetzel, extension director, and Diane Brown, southeast regional program director.

"Herb has been very influentioal here in Berks County," Clyde Myers stated as he presented Wetzel with the Nittany Lion award. Wetzel has served Berks County for 24 years.

Claudia Cross from the Pennsylvania Association of Extension Home Economists, was on hand to present Diane Brown with her Nittany Lion plaque. Brown's regional programs focused on helping families manage their available resources. She designed and implemented workshops and TV spots and also provided statewide leadership in planning and evaluating them for use by other home economists.

Evening entertainment was provided by the Kutztown Area High School chorus and "Berks Extension in Review" was enjoyed by everyone.

Clyde Myers presents Herb Wetzel "Nittany Lion" award for distinguished service to Berks Extension.

Claudia Gross presents Diane Brown with plaque for distinguished service in Berks County.

Kenneth Schlegel and Sandra Christman receive plaques for their service to Berks Extension Board of Directors.

York Farmers Assn. favors tropical fish for farm ponds

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

AIRVILLE — Toxic waste and an unusual fish commanded policy attention as York County Farmers' Association members met last Friday evening at the Airville Fire Hall for their annual meeting and election.

The 120 members attending voted to recommend that the state legislature phase out the use of landfill and injection well methods of disposal of toxic and hazardous commercial and industrial wastes. Instead, York association members suggest legislation and opportunities be provided for industries to implement resource recovery products, develop revised manufacturing processes and alternate technologies.

Landfill controversies continue at several of the waste disposal spots in York County, where residential drinking-water wells are showing chemical pollutant traces.

A second resolution deals with controlling vegetative growth in farm ponds, using the "white amur," a type of tropical fish. The species is suggested as an alternative to chemical aquatic weed and grass controls, where chemicals might be undesirable, impractical or unduly expensive.

That recommendation further suggests that the Pennsylvania Farmers Association petition the state legislature and the state Fish and Game Commission to allow the use of the white amur to control weeds and grass in farm ponds.

White amur, say members who developed the resolution, eat only vegetation, and do not prey on other types of fish. The species will allegedly not reproduce in northern climate waters.

However, white amur fish are reported to be outlawed in neighboring Maryland as a "nuisance fish," because of potential destruction of that state's marshlands.

As part of the program, the film Chesapeake Horizons, dealing with the declining water quality in the Chesapeake Bay and its watersheds, was shown. Farmer members authoring the resolution on white amurs and their hybrids for pond weed control suggested that such natural predator controls would fit with the goals of decreasing chemical use in the Chesapeake watersheds.

Both policy recommendations adopted by the York County membership will be sent for state consideration during PFA's October 28 and 29 policy finalization meeting, prior to their presentation for delegate consideration at the November state convention.

York County Farmer's president Ellis Crowl, Airville, expressed satisfaction with the annual meeting, and noted that the membership drive is now underway, and well ahead of last year's fall signup.

County farm families interested in membership in the farmers association may contact president Ellis Crowl at 862-3955.

Communication

"If we can communicate...if they can see how our operation works, educate the public on our side too," Smith concluded. "I like this program."

The Berks County Extension Service in cooperation with the farming community will be hosting the first annual Farm-City Banquet in Berks County on Nov. 15 at the Berks County 4-H Community Center in Bern Township. In addition to the exchange program between Floyd Smith, Met-Ed, and Clarence Sattazahn, dairy farmer, the President of Albright College, David Ruffer, and beef producer, Dennis Manbeck, educated each other on their professions while radio personality, Charlie Adams, and swine producer, Mike Moore, taught each other. The banquet will include presentations from these individuals along with judging contests and a night of entertainment for everybody. Reservations are needed by Nov. 10 and are available from the Ag Center at 378-1327.

Dairy growth hormone to be discussed

ITHACA, N Y. — Results of a recent study conducted to determine the effects of long-term use of bio-synthetic bovine growth hormone on cows' milk yields and health will be reported at the "Cornell Nutrition Conference for Feed Manufacturers" at the Sheraton Motor Inn in Syracuse, Oct. 30-Nov 1

Growth hormone used in the Cornell test was produced through recombinant DNA techniques, more popularly known as gene splicing. This marks the first time such a test-tube substance for improving milk production in dairy cows has been tested for an extended period of time.

Previous Cornell experiments involving short-term use of both natural growth hormone (bGH) from the pituitary gland and recombinant hormone have demonstrated that dairy cows, when given hormone shots daily, produced dramatically increased milk yields, from 10 to 40 percent.

Considered a breakthrough in boosting the efficiency of animal production, the Cornell work could have a major impact on agriculture around the world. The cost of producing bio-synthetic growth hormone, the commercial impact of this technology, and the economic implications of using this substance will be discussed also at the Syracuse conference.

Cornell scientists will discuss their findings Wednesday morning, Oct. 31. In addition, recent Cornell studies dealing with the effects of growth hormone on growth rates and mammary development of ruminants, and endocrine aspects of the administration of bio-synthetic growth hormone on chickens will be discussed.

The Oct. 31 session will get under way at 8:30 a.m. with the keynote address by Gordon G. Hammes, director of the Biotechnology Institute at Cornell, a collaboration between Cornell and industry. Hammes will speak on "Biotechnology of the Future: The dynamics of cooperative research."

Sponsored by the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell, in cooperation with the American Feed Manufacturers Association, the annual conference is devoted to discussion of new research developments in animal nutrition affecting the nation's poultry, beef, dairy, and feed industries.

About 250 participants, including representatives of major feed manufacturing firms and related industries and scientists in the field of nutrition from throughout the eastern United States are expected. The program chairman is Charles C. McCormick, assistant professor of animal nutrition in Cornell's department of poultry and avian sciences.

The conference features 20 research papers on many aspects of animal nutrition involving beef cattle, dairy cows, hogs, calves, horses, and laying hens Topics include the impact of protein solubility in dairy calf starters, utilization of by product feeds by laying hens, diagnosis of nutritional status of horses, limits to the manipulation of rumen fermentation, vitamin E content of different varieties of corn, and diet formulation for optimum growth of cattle.

For further information on the Cornell conference, contact Charles McCormick, 306 Rice Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY 14853, or at (607) 256-2063

Meanwhile, Monsanto Company of St. Louis, Missouri, will stage the Monsanto Technical Symposium" in conjunction with the Cornell Nutrition Conference for Feed Manufacturers on October 30 at the same conference site The Monsanto symposium will focus on the latest developments on basic and applied aspects of nutrition.

Martin, Herr share Lancaster FFA roundup honors

BY JACK HUBLEY

NEW HOLLAND — A pair of Garden Spot High School FFA'ers found themselves sharing top honors at Lancaster County's FFA market lamb roundup held on Wednesday at the New Holland Sales Stables.

The event consisted of two shows, one for those lambs going on to the Farm Show and a second for lambs being sold following the roundup.

Named champion among the lambs bound for Farm Show was a Suffolk-cross wether exhibited by Margaret Herr of Narvon. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herr, she purchased her winning lamb from Mark Bambury of Ohio.

Lisa Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Martin of New Holland, took home reserve honors in this class with her Hampshire-cross, bred by Bill Wade of Va. The immaculate black lamb had been named grand champion market lamb at the Manheim Farm Show only a week earlier.

In the sale class, judge Gail Post stayed with her winning duo, this time naming Miss Martin for champion honors, and placing Herr in the reserve position. Martin's blue-ribbon sale lamb was a purebred Hampshire wether purchased at Manheim's Supreme Club Lamb Sale this spring, and bred by Tim and Sarah Fleener of Lancaster.

Both Miss Martin and Miss Herr were pleasantly surprised again on Thursday, when their winning lambs brought record-setting bids at the roundup sale.

Dane Fine, of David Fine Meat Packing in Pittsburgh, went home with both the grand and reserve champion lambs. Fine offered four dollars per pound for Martin's top lamb, and paid $2.50 for Herr's reserve.

All but three of the sale's 25 lambs brought one dollar per pound or more, with buyers paying an average of $1.23 per pound (including champions) for the 2,385 pounds of lamb.

Other volume buyers included Jack Godek, Marlboro, N.J.; Willie the Butcher, Washington Boro; and New Holland Sales Stables, who also donated the use of their auction facilities for both the show and sale.

With about 40 lamb projects in progress throughout the county, Lancaster County's Farm Show allotment for this year is 13 entrants, an increase of five over last year's field. Listed below are the 13 FFA exhibitors chosen to compete at the Farm Show, as well as roundup sale results.

The spoils of victory were divided between two Grassland chapter FFA exhibitors at Lancaster County's FFA sheep roundup on Wednesday night. Margaret Herr took champion honors among lambs bound for Farm Show with this Suffolk wether. Herr also showed the reserve champion sale lamb.

Named grand champion in the sale lamb class was this purebred Hampshire shown by Lisa Martin. Martin finished in the reserve spot, behind Herr, in the Farm Show class.

Lisa Martin's reserve champion black lamb gets a congratulatory peck on the cheek from Allison Diffenbach at the New Holland Sales Stables on Wednesday night. Lisa is the daughter of Alan and Carol Diffenbach, of New Holland.

Berry retiring in Del.

DOVER, Del. — Robert C. Berry, Director of the Division of Production and Promotion with the Delaware Department of Agriculture, has announced his retirement after over 11 years with the Department.

Berry was appointed to the post of Director by then-Governor Sherman Tribbitt. He was subsequently reappointed by Governor Pierre S. duPont.

Since 1979, Berry has also served as Acting Director of the Division of Standards and Inspections, and has served numerous times as Acting Secretary of Agriculture.

The 67-year-old Berry graduated from the University of Delaware in 1941 and worked in the agricultural chemicals field prior to coming with state government.

Berry says he leaves the Department of Agriculture "with mixed emotions I came down to rewrite some pesticide laws for a few months and lasted over 11 years," he said.

"I truly believe the Department is much better than it was 10 years ago, and I'm glad to have been a part of the positive change," he said.

Berry lives in Newark with his wife, Bee. They have 2 daughters and 4 grandchildren.

Berry says Dec. 31 will be his last day of work and his plans after that are still under consideration.

"I'll do some consulting work, some gardening and civic work, and I plan to give lots of time to my grandchildren," he said.

Top ag awards presented in Crawford

BY NANCY KUNICK
Staff Correspondent

CONNEAUTVILLE — The Crawford County Council of Farm Organizations held its third annual recognition and awards banquet on Oct. 10 at the Conneautville Firehall.

The Council is comprised of representatives from 23 ag related committees and organizations. The Council has been instrumental in organizing the annual Farm-City Day, making improvements at the County Fair, and working for an improved facility for the county's Cooperative Extension Service. The Council has also instituted an Ag-Industry Award and a Hall of Fame Award.

This year the Ag-Industry Award went to Pennbank for giving outstanding service to Crawford County agriculture. Pennbank is a strong supporter of youth activities as seen by their consistent purchasing at 4-H livestock sales and their generosity in presenting 4-H and FFA awards.

The honored farmer named to the Hall of Fame this year was Will Hasbrouck, a retired dairyman from Titusville. Hasbrouck retired in the '60's after building his 50-acre farm into a 500-acre dairy operation. At that time he turned the acreage over to his sons, two of which still farm there. At age 89, Will Hasbrouck has been enjoying his retirement in Florida for the most part but returned a few years ago to reside in the city of Titusville, near his family.

Hasbrouck was selected for the prestigious award in recognition of achievements in his own farming operation and service to the community and in various county farm organizations.

An award was also presented during the program to the Executive Director of Farm-City Day. This year the one to do the major task of planning and organizing the various activities for the event was Ron Kerr, Ag. Loan officer for Pennbank, of Titusville.

The Joseph Urbanick family of Conneautville was also honored for hosting the Farm-City Day which repeatedly draws crowds of approximately 2000 persons

Ag Industry Award in Crawford County goes to Pennbank representatives. Ron Kerr accepts award from Craig Powell, treasurer of Crawford Council of Farm Organizations. Other Pennbank reps are, from the left, Dave Fitch, John Tracy and Dave Coon.

Nittany Lion sale

As the sale date approaches, the students hope for a turnout of at least 500 potential buyers and onlookers, but between now and then they'll have little time to think about that as they complete the finishing touches on what they hope will be a successful sale.

Overall, this was no small project for the Penn State dairy science club, but then the goals and rewards of the project aren't small either. As Wolfskill sees it, the Nittany Lion Fall Classic is a tremendous opportunity to promote the dairy industry and to further the students' education in the arts of merchandising.

In addition to the awards, commodity queens representing a few of those organizations in the Council were on hand to comment on their activities.

A slide show, "Reflections of Council", reviewed previous Farm-City Days, dairy princess pageants and other activities related to Council.

The Council is still hoping to get the new Extension facilities underway. The major drawback is the lack of funds. This year the Council sold chances on a beef, donated by Leon and Donald Sweatman, Rolling Acres Farm, with proceeds to go toward the facility. Ticket sales were encouraged by a $50.00 incentive to the person selling the most. Mary Meehan of the Dairy Princess Committee was the industrious worker. Three winners' took home the beef'.

SOIL CONDITIONING FOR NEXT YEAR'S CROP STARTS NOW!!

Olympians condition their body long ahead Soil needs conditioning too Spongy soil and subsoil holds spring rains until summer drought, and absorbs heavy rains quickly to prevent washing and helps prevent wet spots in wet weather because the rain can go down into the subsoil It is well proven

Our soil bacteria are an inoculation for extracting nutrients out of the air and releasing the nutrients that are tied up in the soil With our Rock Phosphate and Soil Bacteria, our customers get huge disease and bug resistant crops, very high in nutrition, using very little or no fertilizer except manure

Cold processing Liquid Fish Fertilizer and granular Flora Life Mineral Fertilizer brought us so many good testimonials of superior bug and disease resistant crops that it is too much to say here Come to a meeting and learn how our customers do it with less horsepower and fuel because of looser soil less insecticide expense, less vet bills because feed is healthier, less protein expenditures because nature produces about 2 to 4% more than chemicals do less total feed needed to produce a pound of milk and meat A dollar saved is a dollar earned Your profit is your income minus your expense

Farmers can sign dealership papers with NEMA Inc , to buy our bacteria, soil conditioner and liquid fish at wholesale price Also Vitamin C for neutralizing nitrates in water It really pays in better and healthier livestock

Come and learn the answers to the damage that is donw to our precious soil from chemical pollution. Phil Wheeler, an agronomist, and speaker for the following meetings has much experience.

Carol Dreisbach credits family, Jersey cows for her success

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

HAMBURG — It was just about a decade ago that Jersey cows and Jersey farms were "few and far between." Jersey dairies were scattered and few dairymen thought of milking Jerseys in their quest for more milk.

Today it is not uncommon to see Jersey cows scattered into Holstein herds. Jersey dairies are also increasing due to the extra dividends available for higher solids, protein, and butterfat. With the current industry problems, "more is not better" anymore and the Jersey cow is often sought as a solution.

It is the Jersey cow, her family's Jersey dairy, and the continued support of a "very dairy" oriented family, that Carol Dreisbach credits for many of the achievements in her life. Carol is the 17-year-old daughter of Dr. Robert and Helene Dreisbach, of R3 Hamburg. Like the Jersey cow, Carol is blossoming.

"When we started with Jerseys, it was unique" Carol says of the start of Wilderness Jerseys "We'd get razzed; people would look down their noses, but we'd always do well with them and it would make the Jerseys look good."

The Jerseys at Longmeadows Farm are not the only ones that look good. Carol is the 1984 Pennsylvania State Jersey Queen. She was the second-place finisher in the 1984 Junior Dairymen Contest in Timonium, Md., (She was third place in 1983) and a member of the Berks County Dairy Bowl team that won state honors and finished the year in 1982 as second place in the national contest.

A veteran 4-Her and FFA member, Carol divides her time between chores at home, 4-H, FFA, County Council, National Honor Society, the Pennsylvania Junior Jersey Club, and the Hamburg Area High School Band She also raises pigs, utilizing the "dump milk" on the farm, and competes in local, state, and national production contests with her homebred animals.

"I make a lot of friends,' she says with a smile. "I enjoyed meeting all the dairy queens across the state," she adds, referring to her travels as Pennsylvania Jersey Queen. Her duties include handing out ribbons at shows, and promoting Jersey milk and cheese at many displays set up throughout the state. This past summer she was able to attend 12 shows and still found time to show her own animals, a few of her sister, Patty's cows, and also to help with chores at home.

At home, Carol is a vital link in the daily operations of Longmeadows Farm. She and her mother, Helene, divide all milking duties for the 67 head of registered Jerseys, and help with the field work whenever needed.

Carol confesses that she spends much of her time caring for her animals, helping at home, or working on dairy related activites.

Carol keeps up to date on the records of her own 12 cows as well as those of the rest of the herd. "I look mostly for fat," she says. "I like high solids in my cows."

But, she adds, she has an additional advantage here too, with an older sister who has paved the way.

"It's mostly everything that she's interested in, I'm interested in too It's like she set the precedent," Carol states.

Carol's older sister is Patricia, known throughout the county and state as Patty. The 1983 Pennsylvania State Jersey Queen, Patty entered the national contest and was the first Pennsylvania girl to achieve the National Jersey Jug Queen title. She also won the 1983 Junior Dairyman Contest and was many times grand champion showman with her own homebred Jerseys. Patty left to begin her college career in Virginia this fall.

Carol won many trophies and ribbons in her 4-H career, but says it was the friends that she made who mean the most to her.

"I look up to her," Carol says proudly, and adds that she learned a lot from her older sister. On Nov. 3, Carol and Patty will travel to Louisville, Ky. where Carol will represent Pennsylvania in the National Jersey Jug Contest.

What are her hopes to succeeding her older sister for the title? "I'm really nervous," Carol states, but adds that the outcome is not as important as "meeting new friends and having a terrific time" in Kentucky.

According to Carol, being the state Jersey queen is easy because Jerseys and Jersey milk are so easy to promote.

"With the emphasis that people are putting on economics these days, it was easier to promote Jerseys this year. People are becoming more interested in higher solids milk, more money per hundredweight, and lower management costs," Carol adds.

A senior at Hamburg Area High School, Carol looks forward to "doing something agricultural." She has enrolled at Penn State and will be majoring in ag science. "I'd also like to be involved in an exchange program," she adds. "It's something I've always wanted to do."

"It was unique being a Jersey queen," Carol concludes. "When people think dairy, it's usually Holstein." She also says that by helping with the chores at home, "I learned a lot about economics and efficiency."

With her Jerseys and all these experiences behind her and many more to look forward to, Carol has developed a lasting philosophy.

"It seems like you are the underdog when you have Jerseys But, if you enjoy what you are doing, and doing a good job, people take a second look."

Even though not everyone can have Jersey milk available to use, Carol urges everybody to drink a lot of milk and use real dairy products. She also says that cheese and ice cream are some of her

(Turn to Page B4)

Carol stands with one of her favorite heifers, Cupid. Cupid was due to freshen on the dayof the interview and had to be checked repeatedly for any progress. Carol showed Cupid in the state junior show last month.

Carol enjoys doing half of the milking on Longmeadows Farm. The cows know her and seem to enjoy her company.

Delaware teens win state 4-H honors

NEWARK, Del. — Four New Castle County 4-H members have benn named state winners in the 1984 national 4-H awards program. All will attend the National 4-H Congress in Chicago Nov. 24 - Dec. 1.

Judy Armstrong of Wilmington took top honors for her fashion revue project. The daughter of Ann and John Armstrong, she is a member of the Highlanders 4-H Club. Her trip to Chicago will be sponsored by the Simplicity Pattern Company, Inc.

Deborah K. Klair, Hockessin, won the state's agriculture program award. A member of the Y's Owls 4-H Club, she is the daughter of Barbara and Richard Klair. Her trip to Chicago will be sponsored by the International Harvester Company.

Dave Morneau, Newark, took the state award for his citizenship project. He is the son of Virginia and Henry Morneau and a member of the Fantastics 4-H Club. His trip to Chicago will be sponsored by the Coca-Cola Company.

Debbie Taylor, Hockessin, daughter of Barbara and Dale Taylor, won top honors for her horticulture project. She is a member of the Hill-n-Dale 4-H Club. Her Chicago trip will be sponsored by the Ortho Consumer Products Division of Chevron.

The purpose of 4-H projects is to build skills in specific areas of interest, increase career awareness, and develop leadership, character, and initiative. All of the state winners have worked on their projects for several years, each year building on the past year's achievements.

During their week in Chicago, the New Castle County delegates and 1,800 others from elsewhere in the state and nation will attend meetings, hear nationally known speakers, and participate in recreational activities.

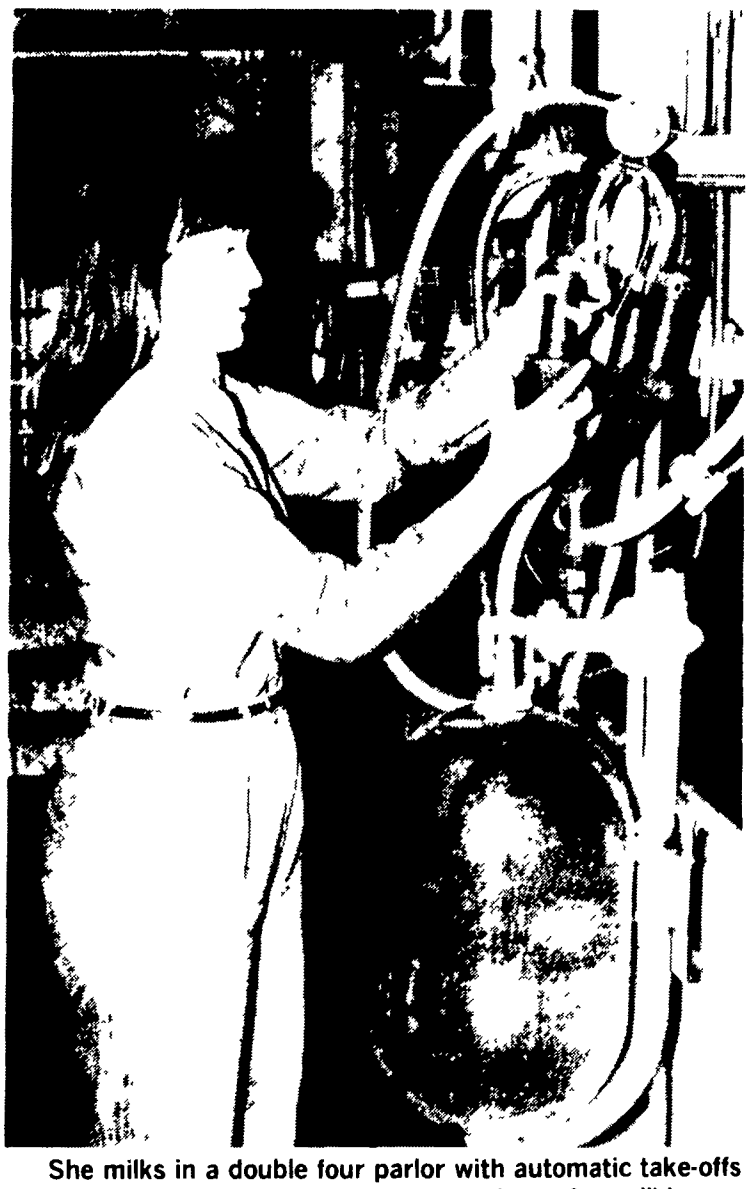
favorite foods. On this page is one of her "all-time favorite" recipes that she wants to share.

Chocolate Chip Cake

¼ pound butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sour cream
2 cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
6 ounces chocolate chips

Mix flour, baking powder, and baking soda, and set aside. Cream butter and sugar and add eggs. Mix well. Add flour mixture and sour cream alternately to sugar and butter mixture and mix well. Add vanilla. Put half the batter into a greased 9"x13" pan. Make a mix of ½ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Sprinkle the batter with ½ the amount of chocolate chips and ½ the cinnamon-sugar mixture. Top with the remaining batter. Sprinkle the top with remaining chips and cinnamon-sugar. Bake at 350°F for 30 minutes. Does not need frosting. Also makes good cupcakes.



She milks in a double four parlor with automatic take-offs and washers. Here she hooks up the washers after milking.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Little clues are plentiful. If this kitchen-detective can just piece them together, perhaps we can solve the Great Pumpkin Pie Caper.

Crumbs all over the counter. Little, white, pie crust crumbs, spilling from the counter to the floor. I managed to sweep up just a bit of the evidence before the cat finished retrieving the crumbs from the floor.

On the counter, abandoned and lonely, lay a fork. Ah ha, closer examination revealed traces, barely apparent, of pumpkin pie filling.

And in the sink, the empty crumb-encrusted pie plate, left there brazenly, with not the slightest attempt to cover up the crime. The perpetrator couldn't even bother hiding the evidence in the dishwasher.

Less than 24 hours before, three - three, mind you - large, fresh pumpkin pies had sat proudly on the kitchen counter, steam escaping from the nutmeg-speckled top. Before the steam had even disappeared toward the ceiling, attackers had stabbed the victim, slicing into the whole by bits and pieces, whittling it down to just a shadow of its former self.

Security measures proved useless, as the attackers returned again and again to eat away at the goods. Suppertime, bedtime. Even at breakfast!

The Great Pumpkin Pie Caper, could be just the latest chapter in a book that any mother of teenagers might write, a volume with all the action of an Agatha Christie mystery. "The Case of the Disappearing Delicacies" might be an appropriate title.

Victim - in this case - is a farm wife, but it could be millions of other mothers across the land. Suspects disguise themselves as typical, normal teenagers, but are actually undercover agents for a massive food trash-compacting underworld, wiping out incredible amounts of food, threatening famine and laying waste in their wake.

Within days, the marauding band had wiped out yet another trio of pies, along with a large cake. All in a day's time.

Pies plundered and cake crumbled to nothing, this army on four legs moved to conquer other challenges.

They pillaged the cereal shelf, leaving behind dying boxes of flakes, puffs and rounds of breakfast grain goodies. Another battle saw clashing swords of celery sticks laced with peanut butter. A pound of cheese melted into history. Boxes of apples, plates of pears, bread and jelly, even the jar of dill pickles in the back of the fridge proved no match for the hungry horde.

And all this when they return, starved, from school, and just prior to moseying back to the kitchen, wide-eyed, innocent, and pleading: "What's for supper. I'm starving."

I blame the fresh air and country chores for part of this insatiable appetite syndrome. Urban mothers, though I understand, face a similar dilemma.

Please, all you mothers of two-year-old toddlers, valiantly pleading with Junior to eat just one more bite of supper, take heed. Save your energy, and your grocery pennies, salting them away into C.D.'s at some bank where you can wrangle the very highest interest rate.

In ten years, believe me, you'll need every cent of 'em, just to keep the cupboard laced with basics.

Satisfy hearty appetites with cheese!

Fall means frosty mornings, warm, sunny afternoons and brilliantly colored trees. Cooler weather also means heartier appetites.

Fall is an excellent time to enjoy wholesome and delicious meals and snacks made with cheese - a versatile food that contains many of the essential nutrients needed to get us through a busy harvest season.

High in quality protein, energy, calcium, phosphorus and vitamin A, cheese is available in a large number of varieties. It also can be used in many, many recipes to create exciting meals and snacks.

CHEESE BALL

1 jar Kraft Roka Blue cheese
1 wedge cheddar cheese
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
2 tablespoons wine vinegar
Little garlic salt
1 small package finely chopped pecans

Soften and combine cheese in a large bowl. Then add garlic and wine vinegar. After ingredients are well mixed, shape them into a ball. Roll ball in chopped nuts on waxed paper and refrigerate about 5 or 6 hours. Remove from refrigerator about ½ hour before serving.

Betty Biehl
Mertztown

PINEAPPLE CHEESE BALLS

1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 8¼-ounce can crushed pineapple, well drained
1 cup Nature Valley granola (fruit and nut), finely crushed

Mix cream cheese and pineapple. Drop mixture by slightly rounded teaspoonfuls into Granola. Roll around to coat. Shape into ball. Place on waxed paper-lined cookie sheet. Refrigerate at least 1 hour. Makes about 34 appetizers.

Betty Biehl
Mertztown

DEVILISH CHEESE SUPPER

2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Swiss cheese
1 4½-ounce can deviled ham
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
8 slices bread, toasted and lightly buttered
4 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon seasame seed
½ teaspoon caraway seed

In a small bowl, mix together cheese, ham and mustard. Spread on 4 slices toast. Top with remaining slices. Cut each sandwich in 4 triangles. Stand in 3 rows in baking dish, crust side down. Combine eggs and milk. Pour over sandwiches. Sprinkle on seeds. Bake in preheated 325°F. oven for 45 minutes. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

MACARONI AND CHEESE ITALIAN

1 7-ounce package elbow macaroni
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon oregano, crumbled
Dash of pepper
3 cups milk
3 cups (12 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 10-ounce package frozen Italian green beans
½ teaspoon salt
12 or 16 thin tomato slices (about 2 medium)
1 tablespoon dry bread crumbs, buttered
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese

Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain. Meanwhile, melt butter in a 2-quart saucepan. Blend in flour, 1 teaspoon salt, oregano and pepper. Cook over low heat until mixture is smooth. Remove from heat. Stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute.

Remove from heat; stir in cheese until melted. If necessary, return to low heat to finish melting cheese. (Do not boil.) Yield: 4½ cups sauce.

Combine uncooked green beans with macaroni. Place half of macaroni mixture in 1½-quart baking dish; sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon salt. Pour over ½ cheese sauce, arrange half of the tomato slices on top of sauce. Repeat macaroni, salt and cheese sauce layers. Bake in preheated 375°F. oven for 30 minutes. Arrange remaining tomato slices on top; sprinkle tomatoes with bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese. Bake an additional 5 minutes.

QUICKIE CHEESE CLAM CHOWDER

2 cups diced cooked potatoes
2 7½-ounce cans minced clams, undrained
1 10½-ounce can condensed onion soup
1 10½-ounce can condensed cream of celery soup
2 cups milk
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
Grated Parmesan cheese
Chopped parsley

In a saucepan, cook potatoes in small amount of unsalted water. (Do not overcook.) Pour off all but ½ cup liquid. Add clams, onion and celery soups and milk, and heat until simmering. Remove from heat and add Cheddar cheese gradually, blending well after each addition. If necessary, return to low heat to finish melting cheese. (Do not boil.) Serve garnished with Parmesan cheese and parsley. Makes about 8½ cups soup.

Tomato toppers with Parmesan cheese and crumbs make a tantalizing treat of this Italian accented Macaroni and Cheese.

SPICY QUICK ITALIAN SPAGHETTI

¼ cup (½ stick) butter
8 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 1½-ounce package Italian seasoning mix
¼ cup all-purpose flour
2¼ cups milk
8 ounces spaghetti
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Mozzarella cheese
Chopped parsley
Parmesan cheese

Melt butter in a 1½-quart saucepan. Saute mushrooms, onion and green pepper until tender, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Blend in Italian seasoning and flour. Stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Meanwhile, cook spaghetti according to package directions; and drain. Add 2 tablespoons butter; toss lightly until butter is melted and evenly distributed. Place on warmed platter. Sprinkle Mozzarella cheese over top of spaghetti. Pour part of sauce over spaghetti; serve remainder separately. Sprinkle with parsley and Parmesan cheese. Serve with warm garlic bread and a tall glass of milk.

LASAGNA GIOVANNI

8 ounces lasagna noodles
1 pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
1 15½-ounce jar spaghetti sauce with mushrooms
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon oregano, crushed
½ teaspoon basil, crushed
1½ cups cottage cheese
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 350°F. Cook noodles according to package directions; drain. In a large skillet brown beef and onion; drain. Stir in spaghetti sauce, garlic salt, oregano and basil. In a 2-quart buttered rectangular baking dish, layer ⅓ of noodles, ⅓ of sauce and ⅓ of cottage, Monterey Jack and Parmesan cheeses. Repeat twice. Bake 30 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Let stand 10 minutes before cutting.

PIZZA SPECIAL

2 12-inch pizza crusts
Filling:
2 pounds mild Italian sausage
1 8-ounce can pizza sauce
1 teaspoon oregano
1 clove garlic, minced
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Provolone cheese
4 medium tomatoes, thinly sliced
Green pepper strips
½ pound fresh mushrooms, thickly sliced
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

To prepare filling, remove sausage from casing; break into bits in skillet and brown lightly, stirring occasionally. Divide cooked sausage into fourths. Mix pizza sauce, oregano and garlic. Assemble each pizza as follows: evenly distribute ¼ of the sausage over the bottom and sprinkle with ½ cup each Cheddar and Provolone cheeses. Top with a layer of tomato slices and ¼ of the sausage and pour over ½ the sauce. Arrange pepper strips in spoke fashion to divide pizza into 8 wedges; arrange mushrooms around outside edge; brush with melted butter. Overall sprinkle ½ cup each Cheddar and Provolone cheese and 1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese. Bake in preheated 425°F. oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

CORNY BEEF CASSEROLE

¼ cup (½ stick) butter
½ cup chopped onion
⅓ cup chopped green pepper
1 3-ounce package smoked sliced beef, cut up
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk
1 egg, beaten
1 16-ounce can whole kernel corn, undrained
½ cup crushed herb seasoned croutons
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

In a 2-quart saucepan, melt butter; saute onion and green pepper until tender. Add beef and cook about 5 minutes. Blend in flour and pepper. Cook over low heat until mixture is blended. Remove from heat. Stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Blend a small amount of hot mixture into egg; return all to pan. Cook 1 minute. Add corn. Turn into casserole. Mix croutons and cheese; sprinkle over top. Place under broiler until cheese melts. Yield: 5 to 6 servings.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Leslie Bowen, the 1984 Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Youth Representative. Leslie is from Spruce Hill and has been spending much of her time participating in dairy goat activities and promotin goat's milk. To learn more about Leslie and dairy goats see the story featuring her in this section.

The orange sherbet recipe below that Leslie shared uses goat's milk.

Goat's Milk
Orange Sherbet

1¼ cups sugar
1 large package orange gelatin
1½ cups orange juice
⅓ cup lemon juice
2 cups goat's milk

Heat sugar and 1 cup water in saucepan until sugar is dissolved. Mix in gelatin until dissolved. Blend in remaining 3 ingredients. Freeze until nearly firm. Beat with electric mixer. Freeze until firm. Yield 16 servings.

Cook's Question Corner

QUESTION - Mrs Mary Wolfinger, Ottsville, would like a recipe for white fudge that hardens itself.

QUESTION - Mary Ellen Wise is still looking for a recipe for fudge like you used to buy at a Silco store about 25 years ago

ANSWER - Mrs. Carolyn Rank, Lancaster, requested a recipe for graham cracker pie Thanks go to Mrs. Donna Zimmerman, Frenchville, for sharing her recipe, and to all the other ladies who sent recipes

Graham Cracker Pie

Crust:

1½ to 1¾ cups graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup (scant) white sugar
⅓ cup (scant) butter or oleo - room temperature

Combine above Press evenly on bottom and sides of 9-inch pie pan. Save out enough crumbs to sprinkle on top of meringue.

Filling:

4 cups milk	¾ cup white sugar
2 eggs	¾ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon butter	Pinch salt
½ cup corn starch	Vanilla

In top of double-boiler, heat milk and butter Mix sugars, corn starch, egg yolks and salt together with a few spoons of the milk to make a paste. Gradually add this sugar, corn-starch mixture to the hot milk, stirring continually until thick Add vanilla and pour into graham cracker lined pie pan Top with meringue, but spinkle a few graham cracker crumbs on before putting in oven to brown.

(I make a variation of the above recipe as my fellows do not like meringue I use 2 whole eggs instead of egg yolks I just sprinkle graham cracker crumbs on top of filling and chill No oven needed)

ANSWER - Andrew C. Keener, Womelsdorf, requested a recipe for cup cheese Thanks go to Pauline Neagley, Millersburg, for her recipe and to all the other women who shared recipes

Soda Cup Cheese

3 gallons thick sour skim milk

Put in kettle and heat slowly, until curds form. Pour into fairly thin muslin bag to drain, pressing while it is still warm with your hands or other press, until it is fairly dry. Put in bowl, crumble into small pieces Add 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs. Mix until texture forms like pie dough

Let stand several hours in warm place Put in double boiler Heat until it melts; add heated milk or cream to make mixture like cheese spread. Sharp cheese may be added for a stronger flavor Pour into cup or pan to cool.

ANSWER - F Rahn, Spring Grove, requested a recipe for Granola Bars Thanks go to Mrs. Carl Weaver, Ephrata, for sending her recipe and to all the others who sent recipes

Granola Bars

3 cups quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked
1 cup peanuts
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup sunflower seeds
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk (NOT evaporated milk)
½ cup margarine or butter, melted

Preheat oven to 325°F Line 15 x 10-inch jellyroll pan with aluminum foil, grease In large bowl, combine all ingredients except sweetened condensed milk and margarine. Stir in remaining ingredients until well blended Pat mixture evenly into prepared pan Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until golden brown Cool slightly, remove from pan. Peel off foil. Cut into bars. Store loosely covered at room temperature

SWISS ONION SOUP

¼ cup (½ stick) butter
7 cups sliced onions (about 2 pounds)
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 cups beef bouillon
4 cups milk
8 thick slices French bread, buttered and toasted
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Swiss cheese

Melt butter in 4-quart saucepan. Saute onions until tender, about 15 minutes. Stir in flour, add salt; cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Gradually stir in bouillon. Bring to a boil, reduce heat. Cover and simmer 30 to 40 minutes. Stir in milk. Heat to serving temperature. (Do not boil.) Preheat oven to 350°F. To serve, ladle soup into ovenproof mugs or bowls. Top each with 1 slice French bread and ¼ cup Swiss cheese. Bake 10 minutes or until cheese melts.

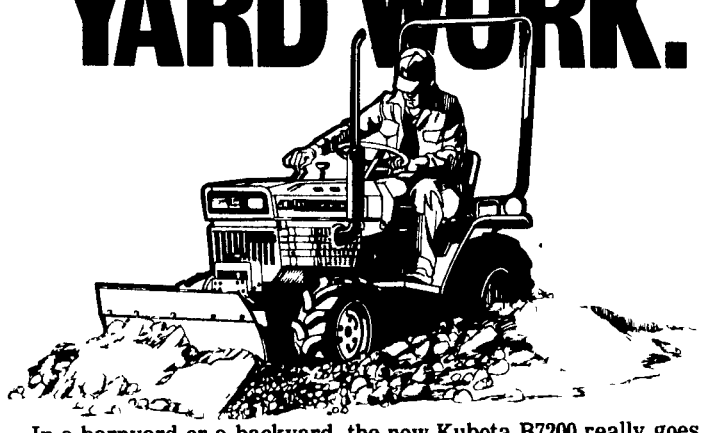
IT DOES YARD WORK.



In a barnyard or a backyard, the new Kubota B7200 really goes to work. It has an efficient, three-cylinder 17-horsepower diesel engine.

So all kinds of utility chores are easy, from front loading to garden tilling and even nursery work.

Take a B7200 for a test drive. Then take one to work.

IT RAISES CROPS AND PROFITS.

The new Kubota M4950 is an efficient farm worker.

It has a strong, reliable Kubota diesel engine that's a real miser on fuel. And money you don't spend on fill-ups ends up in your pocket after the harvest.

The M4950 also works like a tractor much bigger than its 47 PTO hp. Because of some new engineering refinements. And because Kubota's 4-wheel-drive system with a unique bevel-gear design adds up to 35% more pulling power than comparable 2-wheel-drive tractors.

The M4950 could be just the tractor you need to raise profits on your farm.

Kid's Korner

Ferryboats: An idea that won't die

WASHINGTON — In 1967, ferryboats linking New Jersey and Manhattan made their last runs across the Hudson River, the victims of progress in the form of bridges and tunnels.

In 1984, planners studying how to alleviate congestion on those bridges and in those tunnels have been urged by New Jersey's governor and New York City's mayor to consider an old solution: ferryboats.

The planners will make no recommendations until the end of the year, but they are looking seriously at a resumption of ferry service. The mere consideration of the notion shows that some ideas refuse to die.

PASSAGE TO HADES

Ferryboats have played a role in civilization for millennia. Greek mythology tells of the first ferryboat captain, Charon, who ferried entrants to Hades across the rivers Styx and Acheron for a fee of one oblous.

When the first explorers came to America, many, like Hernando De Soto, were ferried across rivers by Indians. Though the building of bridges and tunnels has obliterated hundreds of American ferries, many have survived. Others have revived. There is something about ferries that maintains a hold on the popular imagination.

Walt Whitman wrote that ferries "afford inimitable, streaming, never-ending poems." And Edna St. Vincent Millay wrote of the days when "We were very tired, we were very merry, We had gone back and forth all night on the ferry."

All this is heady stuff for the unpretentious ferryboats of this world. Unlike cruise ships, ferries rarely have anything luxurious or even comfortable about them They are designed for a workaday job: to carry people and their possessions from one side of a river, lake, or sea to the other. "The ferry," wrote historian John Perry, "is the people's boat and its history is theirs."

For all intents and purposes, a ferry is simply an extension of a highway. But it links highways in a limitless number of ways, and many ferries have taken on a legend and a lore all their own.

Probably the most famous American ferry links Manhattan and Staten Islands. One early ferry on that run was started in 1811 by Cornelius Vanderbilt, who borrowed $100 from his mother to launch the service. He soon paid it back and used his profits as the foundation of his fortune.

Today's Staten Island ferries can carry as many as 6,000 passengers at a time. The celebrated nickel fare has risen to a quarter, though that pays for a round trip.

ROWBOAT TO BROOKLYN

Vanderbilt's ferries came long after the first ferries to dock in Manhattan. As far back as 1623, Cornelius Dircksen rowed people back and forth between Manhattan and Brooklyn.

But even that came after the Massachusetts Bay Court helped set up a penny ferry service between Boston and Charlestown in 1630. A second ferry, between Boston and Cambridge, was established in 1635.

Ferry service between Rocky Hill and South Glastonbury, Conn., was established in 1655. That ferry continues to operate under the Connecticut Department of Transportation, making it the nation's oldest continuous ferry operation.

Maryland's ferries have seen their share of notable women. The Tred Avon ferry was home to Judith Bennett, who married three different ferry operators and ran the ferry herself for 10 years between husbands.

Patty Cannon, who kidnapped blacks and sold them into slavery in the 18th century, is said to have persuaded ferrymen to take her across Maryland's Wicomico River by bribing them with a kiss.

In 1859, the body of John Brown was ferried across Lake Champlain to the grave in which it was to lie a-moldering. Brown had been slain while attempting to free slaves at (Robert) Harper's Ferry, established in 1747 at the junction of the Potomac and Shenandoah Rivers, in what is now West Virginia.

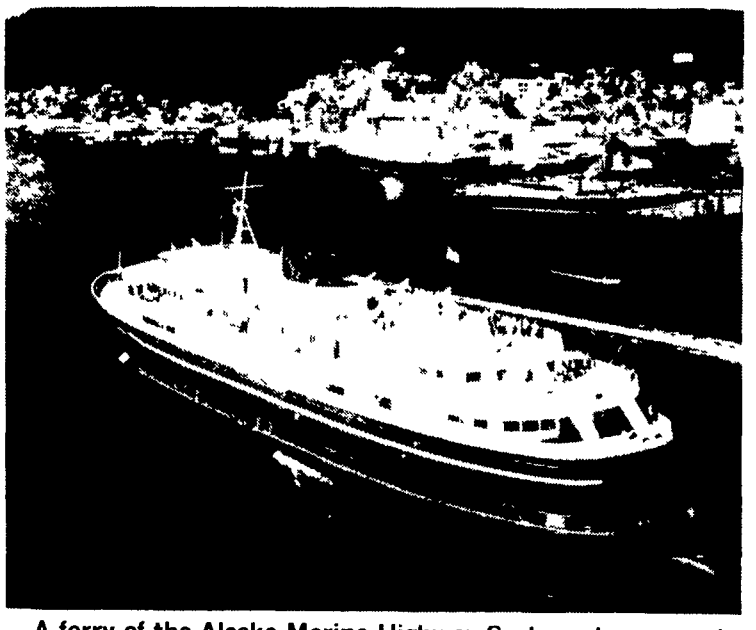
Fur trader John Harris' ferry across the Susquehanna River in Pennsylvania was the site of a village that became Harrisburg.

Early ferries were canoes or rafts. Later ferries were sailboats or "teamboats," propelled by a team of horses walking on a treadmill. Others, including some still operating, ran along ropes or cables attached to trees on each bank.

MARINE HIGHWAY

Today, ferries play an integral role in government transportation systems. Ferries carry 40,000 commuters daily between Seattle and nearby islands. The coast of Alaska is linked by the ferries of the state's marine highway system. Ferryboats operated along the coast of North Carolina are affectionateoly known as the "Tar Heel Navy."

An extensive ferry system operates in Canada. There are ferries connecting Prince Edward Island and the mainland, ferries between Maine and Nova Scotia, and 30 ferries in British Columbia alone.



A ferry of the Alaska Marine Highway System steams past Ketchikan along the Inside Passage, a waterway that threads Canada's western coast and the island-dotted panhandle of Alaska. Half of the communities in Alaska's southeast are unreachable by conventional roads. Ferries play a vital role in linking them together and facilitating travel down the Pacific coast as far as Seattle.

The most unusual is over the Fraser River between Boston Bar and North Bend, B.C.: an aerial cage suspended on cables crosses between towers on both banks. It can hold 40 passengers, or an automobile and its passengers.

"You'd better see it quick," says Frank Clapp, a British Columbia land survey officer. "Logging has increased traffic, and a bridge will repace it in 1986."

Abroad, the best-known ferries are those that cross the English Channel between Great Britain and the Continent. Almost as well know is the Star Ferry, which has plied Hong Kong waters since the 1880s.

But the range and number of ferries is endless. There are ferries between the Soviet Union and Bulgaria on the Black Sea, scores of ferries on the North Sea and the Mediterranean, and a ferry between Sicily and Italy on the Strait of Messina, where Ulysses sailed between Scylla and Charybdis.

DEATH NOTICES PREMATURE

Someone is always proclaiming the imminent death of ferries, and indeed, ferries as famous and obstinate as Arkansas's Toad Suck Ferry are gone. But others, like the boats that cross Lake Michigan between Wisconsin and Michigan, often are saved at the last minute, and others are revived -- something that happened in San Francisco Bay and may happen again on the Hudson River.

Ferries

A firm called Arcorp wants to initiate ferry service on the Hudson between two pieces of property it owns, one in midtown Manhattan and the other in Weehawken, N.J., a rotue used by a New York Central ferry until 1959.

Edward Imperatore, the firm's general manager, says commuters would prefer to take a bus to the New Jersey terminal and cross the river by boat rather than get stuck in bridge or tunnel traffic. And planners may end up agreeing with him, though not necessarily with his route.

"The ferry issue is alive and part of the study," says Lona Mayer of the New York-New Jersey task force studying Hudson River congestion. "We don't want anything esoteric, just something to ease loads at peak periods."

Sounds almost like the definition of a ferry.

Karen Bradshaw is dairy goat scholarship nominee

NORRISTOWN — Karen Bradshaw, of Telford (formerly of North Wales), who has compiled an outstanding record in 4-H work, was named state Dairy Goat Scholarship nominee in the 1984 4-H National Awards Program.

Bradshaw is eligible to attend National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 25 - 29.

Karen Bradshaw

Support for the Dairy Goat Scholarship is provided by the American Dairy Goat Association and Pa. Friends of 4-H.

Carroll L. Howes, associate 4-H youth program director at the Pennsylvania State University, who announced the award selection, said Karen was judged ont he basis of project work, leadership ability, and participation in county and state activities.

Bradshaw was picked from among the more than 145,000 youth who annually take part in the extension service educational 4-H program.

The daughter of William and Mary Bradshaw, she is a freshman at Albright College. She has been a 4-H member for 10 years.

A member of the Silver Pails 4-H Dairy Goat club, she served as president and vice president. She also assisted with club activities and events as a teen leader. She has completed projects in dairy goats and clothing.

She took part in the county and regional Fashion Revues and 4-H Dairy goat shows receiving numerous awards in both areas. Bradshaw also participated in the State Days and state Fashion Revue.

She is one of 45 Commonwealth 4-H members selected as state contest winners in the various project categories.

Extension to sponsor home seminar

NEWARK, Del. — People who want to start a home-based business or improve one they've already started can get help at a special all-day conference called "Minding Your Own Business," which is being sponsored by the cooperative extension services of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. The conference will take place on Saturday, Oct. 27, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury, Md.

The program will include sessions on how to get started, legal and financial considerations, financial record-keeping, and strategies for success. A panel of successful business people will also share their ideas on owning and managing a home-based business. A choice of workshops will be available for conference participants so that those who are just thinking about starting a business and those who've already done so can choose sessions appropriate to their needs.

A tax-deductible registration fee of $10 will cover lunch and an information packet. To register in Delaware call the Sussex County extension office at 856-5250 or 856-5258.

"Minding Your Own Business" is open to all interested persons regardless of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age or handicap. It is being coordinated by extension home economics agents in Sussex County, Delaware; Accomack County, Virginia; and Dorchester, Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester counties, Maryland.

Pa. Dairy Goat Youth Representative

Goat milk's the one for Leslie Bowen

BY WENDY WEHR

PORT ROYAL — "I just think everyone should try goat's milk before they put it down," says Leslie Bowen. And Leslie will be glad to explain the benefits of goat's milk to you while you're taking your first sip of "nature's homogenized milk."

Leslie Bowen is the 1984 Dairy Goat Youth Representative. And in promoting goat's milk, one of Pennsylvania's lesser known farm products, she often starts by dispelling some of the myths about the product.

"Goat's milk is nature's homogenized milk," says Leslie. "It's pure white in its raw state and doesn't separate much."

This is one of the chief advantages of goat's milk over cow's milk. Because the fat globules are smaller, the goat's milk is easier to digest. Leslie noted that people who are allergic to cow's milk often drink goat's milk instead.

Leslie, the daughter of Richard and Sandra Bowen of Spruce Hill, near Port Royal, was chosen as the 1984 Dairy Goat Youth Representative on June 16, during the Pa. State Dairy Goat Association's annual Big Weekend.

Before the Big Weekend state show, Leslie filled out an application describing her participation in the dairy goat industry and her other church and community activities.

"During the showmanship and fitting contests at the Big Weekend, I was observed by the selection committee," explained Leslie. Then she was given a quiz and interviewed by the committee as well. Along with being named the youth representative that day, Leslie won the top honors in the junior showing and fitting competition.

Leslie's parents are proud of their daughter's accomplishments, and proud as well that over the past three years either the dairy goat representative or alternate has come from Juniata County. Richard Bowen is leader of the Kiddin' Around Dairy Goat 4-H Club in the county.

Since being crowned, Leslie has had some opportunities to represent the industry, including attending dairy goat shows and participating in promotional activities.

This summer, as part of the June is Dairy Month activities at the Nittany Mall in State College, Leslie answered lots of questions about goat's milk. To give people a chance to become familiar with goats, she had a kid with her at the mall event.

"They asked me how we milk the goats, and about what you can make from the goat milk," commented Leslie. "And they also wanted to know what we had done to the goat's ears!"

The kid was a LaManchas, which is a breed that has particularly short ears.

In the Seven Pines Herd of the Bowen family, Leslie and her sister have registered French Alpines, Saanens, Oberhaslis, and Toggenburgs. Right now they have about 25 goats, many of which are 4-H projects. They're concentrating now on upgrading their stock through breeding.

When she's not busy with activities at school or with 4-H, Leslie does much of the barn work herself, which includes haying, watering, and feeding the kids and doing the milking.

For the past five or six years, the Bowens have used only goat's milk, no cow's milk, in their home. They try to breed their goats so that they have milk all year.

Another nutritional plus for goat's milk is that vitamin A occurs naturally in it. Cow's milk has to be fortified with vitamin A.

Leslie notes that the taste of goat's milk isn't really that different, and people shouldn't claim it has an off flavor without trying it.

Maybe one reason some people don't care for the taste of goat's milk is that people just aren't used to drinking raw milk, rather than the pasteurized, homogenized, fortified cow's milk that comes out of a carton.

Unfortunately, when Leslie is promoting goat's milk she can't give away free samples of the milk. A raw milk handlers' license would be required. But she does give out goat's milk fudge, along with seals and buttons and promotional literature.

Leslie was glad that some goat's milk recipes were represented in the recently published state 4-H cookbook. In fact, she was the only 4-H'er with two recipes included in the book.

Along with her farm projects, Leslie is busy with activities as a sophomore at Juniata High School. She is an FFA member, plays field hockey, is a clarinetist in the high school band, and also plays the piano.

If you find Leslie home during her busy schedule, she'll be glad to tell you about the benefits of goat's milk, another of "nature's most perfect foods."

Some Management Tips For Successful Calf Raising

COLOSTRUM FEEDING — This is the single most important factor in avoiding early calf disease problems. It is vital that calves receive colostrum as soon as possible after birth when anti-body absorption is greatest.

GENERAL MANAGEMENT PRACTICES — Observe calves at least twice daily . . . other than feeding time . . . looking for any problems that may arise.

SCOURS (diarrhea) — Scouring calves should be treated immediately with a scour treatment medication and you should consult your veterinarian.

HOUSING — Calves can survive over a considerable range in temperature providing the temperature is relatively constant. It is most important that calves be kept dry and free from drafts.

CALF STARTER — Calves deserve the best in dry feed along with milk replacer. Feed only a complete calf starter formulated specifically for the young calf.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

COOKING PORK IN THE MICROWAVE

Cooking pork on a range top or conventional oven instead of in a microwave is recommended by USDA researchers in the latest study on preparing pork safely. Their findings contradict those of the Pork Industry Group (PIG) of the National Livestock and Meat Board, which suggest pork can be cooked safely in a microwave by using a cooking bag.

The use of a cooking bag creates a vaporous atmosphere and reduces "evaporative cooking" which occurs when meat is prepared in a microwave. Evaporative cooking leads to temperatures that vary as much as 50°F with a piece of meat. Trichinella spiralis can survive in the uncooked portions.

PIG's study concluded that a pork roast of no more than four inches in diameter and weighing no more than three to three-and-a-half pounds could be placed in a bag and cooked in a microwave, allowing 22 minutes per pound at medium-low heat or 30 percent powers.

When it takes 20 to 22 minutes per pound, the microwave is no longer a convenience. Right now it is easier and safer to use a conventional oven.

New findings become available almost every day and researchers will probably develop a method that is proven safe for cooking pork in a microwave.

FIREPLACE SAFETY IS YOUR RESPONSIBILITY

Every year thousands are injured from accidents associated with fireplaces. The most serious injuries are burns, and most of the victims are children. Now that we are at the start of a new heating season, it's a good time to protect your family by proper maintenance and sound fireplace habits.

Each year, have your chimney cleaned of creosote and checked to be sure linings and chimney construction are tight. Check that vents and openings are operating properly. Make sure your chimney guard is tight because squirrel and bird nests can stop up your chimney.

Always use a screen that completely covers the opening around a fireplace to keep sparks from flying out. Don't put combustible materials, such as carpets or furniture, near a fireplace.

Always keep the damper open while the fuel is burning to provide sufficient ventilation for efficient burning and to prevent the accumulation of poisonous or explosive gases from burning fuel.

Don't use gasoline or other flammable liquids to start or restart a fire because the flammable vapors can explode. Never use flammable materials in a room near a fire because explosive vapors can travel from where you are working to the fire.

Don't use coal, charcoal, or polystyrene packaging in a fireplace unless the fireplace is well-ventilated. Don't use more than one artificial log at a time These are treated to ignite quickly, and if too many are used at once, they can produce more heat than some fireplaces can withstand. When you dispose of ashes, be sure they are thoroughly cooled first.

Keep children away from the fire because their clothing can ignite easily. Even when the screen is closed, don't leave young children unattended in front of a fire. Even though you have taught them the dangers of fire, the impulse to explore may be too great.

Before you go to bed, make sure the fire is out — scatter the logs in the grate if you must, and be sure to check the fire screen.

Jefferson Club

The Jefferson Community 4-H Club held their meeting on Oct. 9.

The group held a costume party at their meeting. Prizes were awarded to Frank Lecrone, Matt Yingling, Kathy Main, Ginger Yingling, Greg Bankert and Matt Margush. Games followed the costume judging.

Tracy Spier was welcomed as a new member. The club donated $130 toward the purchase of a table cart for the 4-H center. They also donated $50 to the Seth Reese Fund.

Lancaster homemakers get head start on decorating at Christmas in Oct. program

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — At a time when thoughts of goblins, jack-o'-lanterns and Halloween goodies are foremost in many youngsters' minds, creative homemakers are concentrating on Christmas gift and decoration ideas.

The 825 women who attended the Christmas in October program sponsored by the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension last week took home a host of innovative craft ideas for creating beautiful Christmas settings in their homes.

The first idea Gingrich had for the ladies was an advent wreath made of fresh, all-natural materials. "You can use any materials that grow around your home," she said. The result, she said, is a "very, very natural, nature-oriented feel."

To keep the materials fresh, Gingrich used a European Designer Collection wreath base which can be soaked in water and will retain that moisture without marking tabletops.

Fresh flowers can be added to the wreath, which will last from Thanksgiving to Christmas, to dress it up for a special party, she said.

Gingrich stressed the importance of incorporting everyday knicknacks into Christmas decorating schemes. For example, she suggested adorning a whistling swan's neck with a hunter green wreath. Hunter green, she said, is a new important Christmas color this year, replacing the more traditional kelly green.

Nancy Fasolt pours beeswax into a candy mold to create lovely beeswax ornaments to hang on the Christmas tree.

This Christmas tree is loaded with beeswax ornaments. The first beeswax ornament to come to the United States was of the Christ child in a walnut shell, ornamented with wax roses.

House plants don't have to be put away for the Christmas season; they, too, can be decorated for Christmas. Long vining plants like ivy can be wrapped around styrofoam cones to create living trees. Gingrich suggested adorning the plant tree with ribbons and bows to give it a festive appearance.

The trees make excellent gifts as well. "It's a cute way of saying, 'I'm giving you some of my love,'" she said.

Two important looks for Christmas this year are glittery high style and the country look, Gingrich explained. For those who prefer the glittery approach to Christmas, she showed how to make a floral arrangement for a party in a silver champagne cooler.

Floral arrangements will last the longest if they are stored in a 48 to 50°F. room overnight, when no one is around to enjoy them, she said.

"The most important place to decorate is the front door," Gingrich counseled.

She demonstrated how to make a topiary for the front step or porch using two tree branches cemented in a ceramic pot and decorated with various greens.

Vining house plants can easily be transformed into Christmas trees using a styrofoam cone. Ribbons and bows or hearts can be added for a festive touch.

The topiary design can be scaled down and used as table decorations for a party, giving a sense of continuity to the decorating scheme, she said.

No Christmas would be complete without special foods and traditions. Susan Chandler Kurth spoke to the women about German holiday foods and traditions she experienced first-hand while her husband was stationed in Germany.

Christmas in Germany, she said, means children with gingerbread cookies around their neck, slices of "tree cake," and generous supplies of marzipan, an almond based candy.

For Kurth, Christmas also means making dozens and dozens of cookies that can be made only at Christmas.

Kurth remembered how her mother always hid the Christmas cookies so the kids wouldn't eat them too soon. "Because of that, we would eat Christmas cookies for Easter," she chuckled, confessing that it is a tradition she continues.

German children, she explained, receive five traditional gifts - food, clothing, a coin, a toy and a pencil box - representing the five important aspects of a child's life.

On Dec. 6 St. Nicholas Day is celebrated and Santa Claus and Krampas (like our scrooge) gives the children gifts or sticks, depending on whether they have been good or bad.

For the crafty individuals in the group, Nancy Fasolt, a professional candy making and cake decorating instructor, showed how to make beeswax Christmas ornaments.

The process, which is much like candy making, involves pouring melted beeswax into candy molds and chilling them until the beeswax returns to a solid state.

Berks Co. holds 4-H Recognition Night

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

LEESPORT — Berks County 4-H'ers recognized and awarded their parents, leaders, outstanding members, and friends last week as they held their annual 4-H Recognition Night in the Ag Center.

Master of Ceremonies was Kirk Fisher, vice president of Berks County 4-H County Council, who began the evening of awards and entertainment.

Kevin Shollenberger, of the Tilden Community Club, received a fifth year gold label pin for his teen leader project and Christine Rebman and Nannette Coryell, Rehrersburg Adventurers, received sixth year clover stick pins.

The following 4-H leaders received silver clovers for five years of service: Mrs. James Batz, Rehrersburg Adventurers; Terry Endy, Tilden Community Club; Marie Switzer, Eastern Berks Dairy; Kathryn Piper, Reading Urban Ministry; Karen Sattazahn, Stouchsburg 4-H; Donna Stump, Western Berks Dairy; Valerie Geesaman and Glen Geesaman, Mohnton 4-H Light Horse; and Christine Morrison, Colebrook Elementary.

Gail Malsbury of the Rehrersburg Adventurers was honored with a gold clover for ten years of leadership. Dennis Sattazahn, Stouchburg 4-H received a pearl clover for 15 years of service.

Verna Rausch, Windsor Township, received an emerald clover for 25 years of service.

The County winners in the National 4-H Awards Program were also honored and included: Mark Price, poultry; Kirk Fisher, horse, achievement; Debbie Price, agriculture, public speaking; Nannette Coryell, leadership, food nutrition; Jamie Batz, food preservation, gardening; Greg Stricker, commodity marketing; James Heffner, personal development; Kevin Shollenberger, citizenship, leadership; Patricia Dreisbach, veterinary science, dairy; Kennianne Rarick, beef; Christine Rebman, home management and environment; Charles Seidel, swine; Marianne Yanos, sheep; and William Lesher, achievement.

Three awards were also given for service to the 4-H Development Board. Patricia Dreisbach, Tilden - Northern Berks Dairy 4-H Club and Leon Kirkoff and Jon Fisher, outgoing board members were honored.

State 4-H Achievement Days Winners were honored on the following teams: Dairy Judging - Charles Seidel, Todd Miller, William Lesher, and Jim Younker. Charles Seidel also had the honor of representing Berks County and Pennsylvania in national competition in Wisconsin. Poultry Judging - Allen Bates, Tammy Balthaser, Brian Moyer, and Mark Price; Consumerama - Sheila Newhard, Nannette Coryell, Karen Rabenold, and Jolyn Batz.

The "I Dare You" leadership awards were presented to Naomi Herbert and James Heffner.

In concluding the awards presentation, Rick Kauffman presented the Berks County Friend of 4-H Award. "He's been an inspiration to many people in this community," Kauffman said as he presented the clover plaque to Rev. Rod Sutliff, R1, Mohrsville.

Sutliff was instrumental in obtaining much of the funding for the recently completed 4-H Community Center. "Rod has seen what the 4-H Community Center could mean to 4-H many years ago," Kauffman stated.

The Berks County Council members provided the closing entertainment with "The Twelve Days of 4-H," and members and guests enjoyed the original presentations.

Christmas in Oct.

The ornaments are easy to store and look nice on the Christmas tree. They can also be used throughout the year to give a nice country touch to the home, she suggested.

Free-lance home economist Barbara Herr had some other craft ideas to share. She demonstrated how do ribbon applique. "You simply glue ribbons on an item that you are making or that you already have," she explained. Herr suggested using a hot glue gun for best results.

The ribbons can also be secured by using the zigzag stitch on the sewing machine, she said. Ribbons can be glued with stick glue to make sure they stay in place during stitching.

Ideas for places to use ribbon applique include picture frames, aprons, placemats, towels, and pillows.

Another way to sew your way to beautiful Christmas is to create stuffed ornaments. Herr suggested using cookie cutters or pictures from a child's coloring book as patterns.

Adorning Christmas balls with ribbons and other trims is another simple decorating idea. The additions can be glued or pinned on, depending on how permanent you want the change, she said

This year, Herr continued, wicker hats decorated with ribbons and flowers are a new addition to the Christmas tree.

Christmas trees are also a good place to put German stars made from ribbon, Herr said. To make a German star, cut eight strips of ribbon 3½ x 7/8-inch and glue them into individual cones. Then glue the cones together in sets of two and then all together to create a star.

Wreaths are always popluar at Christmas and can be made using a wide variety of materials. "One of the easiest to do," Herr said, "is a grapevine."

The vines should be soaked overnight in a bathtub full of water with a little dish detergent added. In the morning, wrap the vines around a tub, wire them together and wait for them to dry, Herr explained. Then wrap several other vines around the wreath to hide the wires. The final step is to decorate the wreath with pine cones, ribbons and other materials.

Herr said that another way to create a Christmas wreath is to put styrofoam balls on a coat hanger and bend the hanger into a circle

Then sew a sleeve of fabric wide enough to slide over the balls, cover the balls with the fabric and tie the ends together at the top Ribbons should be tied between each of the balls and a bow can be added to the top to hide the place where the fabric is tied

To decorate basket or other woven objects, Herr suggested ribbon weaving. To do this craft, glue ribbons on top of a basket, following the weave pattern or simply weave the ribbon through the material and attach bows to complete the look

Ribbons can also be woven into designs and secured onto fusible interfacing creating one solid piece of material The colorful designs can then be cut like a piece of fabric and incorporated into another project, Herr said

From the oohs and aahs that greeted many of the ideas presented during the day, it is apparent that Lancaster County is going to have a Christmas filled with beautiful, colorful crafts and plenty of luscious food.

Franklin Co. 4-H Shepherds hold roundup

CHAMBERSBURG — The Franklin County 4-H Shepherd's Annual Round-up and Sale was held on Sept. 20 at the Chambersburg Livestock Building.

The event, which is the culmination of 4-H livestock programs, began with the showmanship competition. Each member is judged on his or her ability to present a lamb to the judge. Class winners were David Sheiss, novice showman; Andy Dauckenbrod, intermediate showman; Donnie Sheiss, junior showman; and Greg Christman, senior showman. Greg Christman also won the master showmanship award.

The 35 market lambs were separated into weight classes for judging of meat quality and conformation with the following results: David Keener, heavyweight champion lamb at 140 pounds; Eric Sheiss, medium heavyweight lamb at 110 pounds; Donnie Sheiss, light heavyweight lamb at 100 pounds; Delmar Lehman, mediumweight champion lamb at 95 pounds; and Rachel Coady, lightweight champion lamb at 85 pounds.

Grand champion market lamb was owned by Eric Sheiss and was purchased during the evening auction by Miller's Orchard for $1.13 per pound. Julie Dice owned the reserve champion which was sold to Travelodge, Chambersburg, for $1.40 per pound.

M. Arthur Diehl and Son, Inc., Shippensburg, bought the heavyweight champion lamb from David Keener for $1.275 per pound. Donnie Sheiss sold his light heavyweight champion to Fraker's Grocery, Fort Littleton, for $1.00 per pound. The Butcher Shoppe, Chambersburg, purchased the mediumweight from Delmar Lehman for $1.15 per pound, and Donald Cook, Hockessin, Del., bought Rachel Coady's lightweight champion for $1.10 per pound.

Other buyers were Agway, Chambersburg; County Butcher Shop, Plainfield; Charles Coady, Schuylkill Haven; Chambersburg Farm Service; Leonard Cordell Construction; Kyner Auto Sales, Shippensburg; Elisabeth Keener; Dr. John Ashby and Fusting Farms.

Melrose Farm Service, Greencastle; Appalachian Lamb Company; Tip Top Cleaners; Dr. Harvey Shapiro; Harry M. Buck, Jr.; Marie Dieterich, Ray S. Myers Welding, Shippensburg; Mercersburg Exxon; Donald Hei, Seabrook Md.; Memorial Lutheran Luther League, Shippensburg; Commonwealth National Bank, Shippensburg; Donna M. Boyd; Carl's Drug Store, Greencastle; Grove Technical Training Center, Blue Ridge Summit and Wayne Craig.

Rep. Jeffrey Coy purchased a lamb which he donated back to the club to be resold. Lehman's Egg Service purchased the lamb the second time and the proceeds were given to the 4-H Shepherds.

The judge for the show was Richard W. Nowell, who is a lamb grader and buyer for Appalachian Lamb Company, Greencastle.

The combined weight of all the lambs was 3,600 ponds that sold for a sale average of $1.22 per pound.

Eric Sheiss showed the grand champion market lamb at the Franklin County 4-H Shepherds Annual Roundup and sale. Miller's Orchard purchased the lamb for $1.13 per pound.

Julie Dice took reserve grand champion honors with her lamb. Travelodge of Chambersburg bought the reserve champion for $1.40 per pound.

Thomasville 4-H Club

The Thomasville 4-H Club recently elected 1985 officers. The results of the election follow: president, Ronald Horn, Jr.; vice president, Christine Shaffer; secretary, Krista Rankin; treasurer, Darren Smallwood; historian, Karen Rankin; news reporter, Sue Eisenhart; song and game leaders, Oona Horn, Christina Blevins and Diane Bentzel.

The next meeting will be a hayride for the entire family on Oct. 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Eisenhart Farm. New members are welcome. Information on joining is available by calling 259-0908 or 757-9657.

4-H cookies are available from any Thomasville 4-H member during October.

Penns Valley 4-H Beef Club

The Penns Valley 4-H Beef Club had their last meeting for 1984 at the Rock Oak Family Restaurant, in Harleton. Members and parents had a supper, which was followed by a 4-H meeting.

The 4-H club members voted on two community projects. One was a donation to Michele Hosterman, Pennsylvania Polled Hereford Queen, to help her with expenses for her trip to Fort Worth, Texas in January. The other donation is to the Grange Fair Ground project.

The Penns Valley 4-H Beef Club members will be having a hayride at the Dashem farm, Centre Hall on Oct. 28.

Food, animals and fun abound at Lancaster Harvest Days

Cows and FFA'ers

Penn Manor FFA'er Steve Main was busy answering questions about cows and farming during Lancaster Harvest Days last Friday. During the daylong event, farm animals, equipment and products came to the city to offer townfolks an opportunity to get a closer look at their farming neighbors.

Pig Diapering Contest

This little piggy did not enjoy wearing a diaper, but the crowd that gathered to view the pig diapering contest certainly enjoyed a few laughs. Here Kim Lemon of PM Magazine, Keith Martin, WLYH news anchor, and John Gallos, WLYH weatherman struggle to get in the last pin.

Barbecued Chicken

Addie Cunningham, an employee at a nearby bank, enjoys a plateful of barbecued chicken - a popular attraction at Harvest Days.

Commodity Queens

Lancaster Poultry Queen Gwen Yoder answers some questions about the poultry industry. With a little help from her mother, Barbara, and Walt Mowrer, of the Poultry Association, Gwen provided hungry visitors with omlet samples.

Ice Cream

Friday's balmy, springlike weather brought out hundreds of ice cream lovers who didn't give Pennsupreme employee Beatrice Hershey a moment's rest from her scooping duties.

Wide-eyed Kids

Amy Salmon looks a little apprehensive as she reaches out to pet the lamb. Two-year-old Amy is the daughter of Carolyn and Bill Salmon, Lancaster.

Union Co. 4-H'ers honored at Achievement Night

LEWISBURG — The Union County 4-H Achievement Night was held recently at the Lewisburg Middle School with 75 club members, leaders, parents, and friends in attendance.

Brian Shively, first place winner in the State Tractor Safety Driving Program and 7th place winner in the nation, talked to the group about his participation in the National Tractor Safety Contest at the Virginia State Fair. He encouraged other club members to become involved in the engineering and automotive projects and in the state and national contests.

Kelly Showers gave the highlights of his week-long trip to Citizenship Washington Focus in Washington, D.C. this past summer. Members age 16 and older who are interested in their national government and how it functions are eligible to attend this event.

Kate Humbert, Union County 4-H Agent, presented a certificate to Alma Kieffer, who received honorable mention in a statewide 4-H poster contest. A certificate was also given to Alice Wilson for participation in the poster contest. Humbert gave National Award pins to Kelly Showers and Susan Beck. "I Dare You" Awards sponsored by the Danforth Foundation were presented to Steve Pletcher and Jean Einsig.

4-H Leaders were then given recognition for their volunteer services as 4-H leaders for the year. Each leader received a certificate and a 4-H lapel pin or tie tack. Special recognition was given to two 25-year leaders, Viola and Gilbert Kreamer, leaders of the Valley Riders 4-H Club. Each received a 4-H pin with an emerald stone. Ida Mae Hartman, Cowan Community Club, was recognized for 10 years as a 4-H leader and Gerald Stark, Kelly-ites, was given special recognition for serving five years as a 4-H leader.

Kay Taylor, a member of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, displayed Penn Best Products that Union County 4-H members will be selling as a countywide fund raiser during the first two weeks in November.

York County 4-H Council

The York County 4-H County Council meeting was held on Oct. 3 at the home of Rhonda Jacoby.

Before the meeting there was a costume contest, a Halloween story and a crawl through a Halloween maze.

The Lewisburg Echoing Hoofbeats were welcomed as new members. Melissa Trostle received congratulations for receiving the York Fair 4-H Award.

The Council donated $100 for awards at County Achievement Night on Oct. 11, and $25 to the Trust Fund.

Members were encouraged to promote 4-H during National 4-H Week. Installation of 1985 officers followed the meeting.

Cindy Brenner

Cindy Brenner is 1985 N.J. Dairy Princess

LAMBERTVILLE, N.J. — The 1984-85 New Jersey State Dairy Princess is Cindy Brenner of Ringoes. She is the 22-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brenner.

Cindy works for the Hopewell Veterinary Group as a veterinary assistant and attends Trenton State College parttime. She has been employed on the Richard Gulick dairy farm and has been an active 4-H Club member.

Miss Annette Tjalma, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tjalma of Phillipsburg, was selected as the alternate.

Lancaster County honors 4-H leaders at annual banquet

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

LANCASTER — It was a time of recognition for adult and teen leaders in the Lancaster County 4-H program, as over 200 of them gathered Tuesday evening at the Farm and Home Center for the annual leadership banquet.

County Agent Jay Irwin commended the leaders, saying it is their hard work which makes the 4-H program possible for the 3,500 4-H'ers in the County. He thanked them and reminded them that they set a good example for the 4-H'ers who "look up to and follow leaders." There are 457 leaders in Lancaster County.

Two Mount Joy residents were recognized for 37 years in 4-H club work, the longest record of leadership. Mylin Good has been a leader with the Red Rose Baby Beef Club and Ruth Nissley has been a leader with the Mount Joy Community Club. Closest in years of service was Mrs. Woodrow Good, New Holland, a leader with the New Holland Community Club for 34 years.

Three leaders have served 31 years. Mrs. Lewis Bixler, Marietta, with the Mount Joy Community Club; Milton Brubaker, Lititz, Ayrshire, Jersey and Brown Swiss Club; and Lester Weaver, New Holland, New Holland Beef Club.

Mervin Peifer, Manheim, has served for 30 years, and is presently with the Elm-Penryn Club. Carl Nestleroth, Manheim, has been a leader for 29 years, and is now with the Elm-Penryn Club. Elvin Hess, Strasburg, serves as a leader with the Red Rose Beef Club and the Holstein Club and is in his 26th year.

Two twenty-five year leaders were Kenneth Eshleman, Elizabethtown, serving with the Ayrshire, Jersey and Brown Swiss Club, and Anna Geyer, Bainbridge, with the Bainbridge, Sewing and Crotcheting Club.

Harvey High, Lancaster, a leader with the New Holland Beef Club, and Eleanore Nelson, New Holland, with the Garden Spot Sewing Club, both served 23 years.

Evelyn Hess, Lancaster, has been a leader for 22 years and is with the Lampeter Strasburg Club. Esther Engle, Middletown, of the Stevens Mill Knots and Needles Club, and Arlene Hastings, Oxford, with the Kirkwood Community Club, both have served for 21 years. A twenty-year veteran leader is Mrs. Homer Martin, Stevens, leading the Ko-Ka-Lo-Ko Club.

Other leaders honored for their years of service include:

Ten years: Delores Ebersole, Peter Immel, Alice Spotts, Beverly Heisey, Jean Immel, Nancy Wenger, Sheryl Faus, Mrs. William Irwin, Peter Witman, Stella Hess and Dorothy Kreider.

Fifteen years: John Glick, Ruth Mentzer, and John Zimmerman.

Zoann Parker, 4-H agent, gave ribbons and travel bags to about 30 of the county's 70 teen leaders, recognizing them for their vital contributions to the 4-H program. She also recognized local businesses for contributing to the cost of supplying 4-H calendars to leaders. Those participating are: Chem Gro Fertilizer and Wolgemuth Brothers, Farm Credit Service, Lester A. Singer Farm

Brothers earn outstanding 4-H honors in York Co.

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

BAIR — Two brothers were among the outstanding members honored Oct. 11 during York County's annual 4-H Achievement Nite, hosted at the county's 4-H center.

Trent and Troy Goodling earned the outstanding junior and senior boy honors, which recognize participation and leadership accomplishments in a broad range of 4-H projects and community service activities. Joann Rishel and Lesley King were named the outstanding junior and senior girl winners.

The Goodling brothers are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Goodling, Seven Valleys R2, and members of the Loganville Community club. Eleven-year-old Trent, the junior outstanding winner, has completed three years of 4-H, including handyman, fishing and foods projects. Trent, a sports enthusiast, says his favorite 4-H activity is the county Olympics, which pit local clubs against each other in athletic and fun competitions.

Troy, 17, is an eight-year 4-H veteran, who joined the youth program because his friends and neighbors were involved, and "it seemed like it would be fun." His projects have included a "little bit of everything," and the Dallastown senior has previously won numerous awards, including outstanding county junior boy, and held a variety of club offices.

Outstanding junior girl Joann Rishel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rishel, Seven Valleys. In her sixth year of 4-H membership, Joann carries projects focusing on beef, photography and crafts, because I enjoy learning the different things and being around different people." She's a member of the Glen Rock community and county beef clubs.

Lesley King, outstanding senior girl, is 16 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul King, Delta R2. Active in the Airville Community and Milk and Money dairy club, Lesley has carried dairy, wildlife, horse, sheep and teen leader projects, and was a member of the 1983 state 4-H dairy bowl team. She praises the 4-H program for teaching me a lot."

Three other senior members won honors in special categories. Melissa Trostle, Red Lion, was named the achievement winner, while Tracy Miller, Dover, earned the citizenship award, and Krista Rankin, Abbottstown, won the leadership category.

Airville Community Club earned the coveted outstanding club award, presented annually to one club for member participation in county and local activities and community service work. Airville's Joseph Caudill's scrapbook earned him honors as the outstanding club historian. Barbara Brenneman of the Stoverstown club received recognition as the outstanding news reporter, and outstanding club secretary was Denise Hoskin of the Loganville club.

Junior winners for county project accomplishments are: Beef, Cathy Shive; Breads, Cathy Shive; Ceramics, Annie Rauhauser; Clothing, Julie Ann Hughes; Crafts, Nancy Townsend, Foods, Denise Hoskin; Geology, David Lentz; Handyman, Joseph Caudill, Horse, Suzanne Hash; Indoor Gardening, Denise Hoskin; Needlework, Cindy Kauffman; Pets, Gail Rishel; Photography, Joann Rishel; Swine; Greg Bankert; Vegetable Gardening, Mike Fetrow; and Vet Science, Nancy Townsend.

Senior project award honors went to: Ceramics, Kandi Kilgore; Clothing, Christine Hoskin; Dairy, Lesley King; Foods, Susan Eisenhart; Gardening, Tim Fetrow; Horse, Tracy Miller; Rifle, Christine Hoskin; Sheep, Melissa Trostle.

Recognized for their 1984 Fashion Revue accomplishments were juniors Laura Duryea, Jennifer Hotchkiss, Kim Ferrence, Julie Fix and Jenny Jeffries.

Eight members were selected as Keystone winners, and three of them earned state titles. Ann Hutschenreuter, Airville, as the Keystone and state Citizenship winner. Hugh Spahr, Dover, won both awards in Food Conservation and Safety, and Tom Beck of Seven Valleys is the Petroleum Power winner.

Other Keystone winners include Beverly Eisenhart, Thomasville, clothing; Lesley King, Airville, Dairy; Susan Eisenhart, Thomasville, Dairy Foods, Troy Goodling, Seven Valleys, Wood Science; and Christine Shive, Seven Valleys, a Gertrude Warren nominee.

National awards program winners are Agriculture, R James Townsend, Automotive, Rocky Yohe; Beef, Krista Rankin, Cathy Shive, Joann Rishel and Nancy Townsend; Bread, Amanda Spahr, Barbara Brenneman and Rhonda Jacoby; Citizenship, Ann Hutschenreuter, Clothing, Bev Eisenhart, Theresa McElwain, Chris Hoskins and Kim Ferrence; Commodity Marketing, Melissa Trostle and Krista Rankin; Conservation, Tom Jacoby; Consumer Education, Lori Zunbrum; Dairy, Lesley King, Sue Eisenhart, Dana Doll and Downa Doll; Dairy Foods, Sue Eisenhart; Dog, Chris Wherley, Edwin Livingston and John Brenneman; Entomology, Hugh Spahr; Food Conservation and Safety, Hugh Spahr and Carol Ness; Foods-Nutrition. Amanda Spahr, Crystal Emig, Anita Emig and Carol Ness; Food Preservation, Susan Bare; Gardening and Horticulture, Ann Hutschenreuter, Timothy Fetrow, Ronald Horn, Jr. and Michael Fetrow; Home Environment, Christine Hoskin, Daniel Fetrow, Lori Main and Christine Lentz.

Also, Horse, Tracy Miller, Amy Miller, Isabel Lecrone and Marcy Spahr; Leadership, Ellen Bentzel, and Theresa McElwain; Petroleum Power, Tom Beck, David Lentz and Ronald Horn, Jr., Photography, Joann Rishel, Doug Margush and Jeff Margus; Plant Science-Field Crops, R James Townsend; Poultry, David Kann, Jr., Christine Shaffer, Michael Kann and Steve Wherley; Public Speaking Robin Shive; Safety Troy Goodling Greg Main and Cathy Shive; Sheep Joseph Caudill and Christine Shaffer; Swine, Melissa Trostle, Tim Ferrence, Timothy Jacoby and Patrick Fahey; Vet Science, Robin Shive; Wildlife, Kandie Kilgore; and Wood Science, Troy Goodling, Doug Margush, Tim Fetrow and Jeff Margush.

Special thanks were expressed to several area businesses for their support of the county's 4-H program. Among these supporters are the York County Bankers Association for project completion merit ribbons; "The York Dispatch" for donating 4-H pocket secretaries; Hamilton National Bank for the leader and teen leader banquet support; Irvin Rappoldt, handyman project sponsor; York Area Chamber of Commerce, trophy supporters; and the York County 4-H Council, supporters of project awards.

A five-by-ten foot sign was recently installed at the entrance to the 4-H center to announce upcoming events and activities. Donors of the sign was the York Farm Credit Association, and adult 4-H advisors Rodney Eisenhart, Walter Keeney and Robert Stover donated time and materials for the installation.

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range A good pasture with a pH of 6 5 or higher for example will make 300 to 400 lbs of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre This means with the help of lime profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops

Lancaster Co. Honors 4-H leaders

Equipment and C.F. Wiley & Son, Inc.

Home Economist Michelle Rodgers presented a pair of scissors to Dolores Ebersole, a leader in the Elm-Penryn Club, for her work with piloting a 4-H clothing and textiles project. Also helping with the pilot project were Nancy and Elaine Good, Ephrata 4-H Club.

Kerry Boyd, Ephrata, presented the Elmer Boyd Memorial Award to Sherry Goss, Pequea, and Greg Musser, Elizabethtown, who were named outstanding 4-H Girl and Boy at Achievement Night. The award has been established in memory of long time 4-H leader Elmer Boyd by his family. This is the second year it has been presented.

4-H'er Chris Chapman presented a talk, "There's more to the hog than meets the eye," educating her audience about the "new" pork. She emphasized its high nutrient ratio per calories, its digestibility and good taste, telling her audience that it is versatile and quick and easy to prepare.

Entertainment was provided by Lori Loffler, Penn Manor 4-H Club, and Yvone Peters, Saddle Cinches 4-H Club, both of whom were winners at the 4-H talent contest.

Leaders Stephanie Schaich and Kervin Martin served as masters of ceremonies for the evenings activities.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

What a busy weekend we've just had. First there was the wedding of a nephew in a neighboring county. That night we didn't get to bed until midnight and it was a short night as five o'clock came too soon.

The next day was the gathering of relatives at Landis Homes for Allen's 100-year-old aunt. It took most of the afternoon to visit with the folks who came from Florida, Michigan, New York and Connecticut to help her celebrate.

That night we had our first square dance of the season. Our "Foot and Fiddle" group meets in Lancaster each month. We are usually tired by the time that Saturday night comes around but somehow the music and our friends help us to survive the evening.

Sunday was to be our "Supper for Eight" group but it was postponed. That was a good thing as we needed a break in our too busy schedule.

Through all of this I cooked and baked for six people for three days Two of our sons come to help their father fill the silos. One drove over 12 hours from Chicago. He did get to sleep a bit on the road as a truckload of bricks scattered over four lanes of the highway and nothing moved for three hours. He got home at 7:30 a.m. and immediately after breakfast went out to work. We've been plagued with many minor breakdowns in our harvester. It will probably be rebuilt by the time we finish this fall.

And, a boyfriend of Philips from New York City also spent the weekend here. In fact, we had the bad luck to crash the back of one wagon into a silo. Thank goodness Philip is an agricultural engineer as, after working for hours on it, he was able to repair it so that it could be unloaded. Then a neighbor, who opened a big field for us, had his harvester fall into a sinkhole and break a spindle.

Always something!

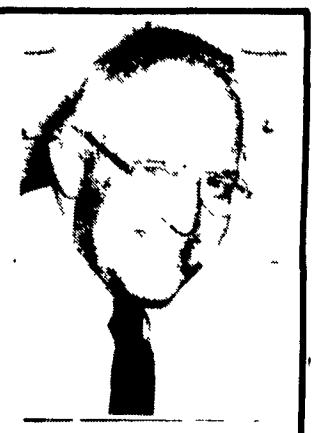
The Milk Check



TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

From a Trickle To A Stream

The trickle of improvement in farm milk prices that I mentioned here last month has not turned into a stream. That is, if you can call increases in the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series from eight and 13 cents a month to 34 cents a month/a change from a trickle to a stream. But, really, you will be seeing recognizable increases in your next milk check. The blend price in Order 2 increased 35 cents in September over August and, allowing for the increase of nine cents in the Louisville Plan payback, it was still an improvement of 26 cents over August. It put the blend up to $13.74, which was just one cent under last year. That doesn't sound too good, but when you consider that your farm price has been as much as 51 cents under last year in April and even 20 cents under in August, a one cent difference is closing the gap pretty good. And much of this is due to the 55 cent increase in the M-W since June which now makes it $12.64, the highest since April 1981. Because your Class I price lags two months behind the M-W you can expect a Class I price in Order 2 of $14.89 in November.

You will also enjoy a record high in your butterfat differential of 18.2 cents for September that traces back to butter price increases to $1.58 a pound, which is also a record high and high enough to put the Commodity Credit Corporation in the butter selling business. However, it's largely an increase in commercial demand, particularly for butter, and not so much a decrease in production that has brought most of the improvement in your farm price. In fact, we now have the situation that for the first time since March 1980 the M-W price was higher than the support price. Of course, the support price is targeted to the national average price for manufacturing grade milk, which is usually lower than the M-W, and we still haven't seen that in many years.

However, I'm only trying to point out that the good news you've been hearing about the improvement in the supply - demand situation for milk and dairy products for the last three months should finally be showing up in your milk check for September shipments in amounts that you can see without a magnifying glass.

Year-End Tally

The marketing year for USDA starts in October and ends in September, so they're now ready with some preliminary information on how much they've bought and how much it cost. Estimates are that the USDA through the Commodity Credit purchased the equivalent of 10.3 billion pounds of milk in the year ending September 30. This compares to 16.7 billion pounds purchased the year before on a drop of 38 percent. Butter purchases at 229 million pounds were down 44 percent; cheese at 563 million poundsd was down 32 percent; and nonfat dry milk powder at 769 million pounds down 26 percent. National Milk Producers Federation figures the cost of all these purchasers at $1.8 billion dollars, down $900 million or 35 percent from last year. Purchases are not the total cost of the program, and sell backs, particularly of butter, are not included so we don't have the net cost, but it does give you a good idea of how marketing conditions have changed. Most of this improvement has come in the last six months.

Numbers Game

With these numbers it's no wonder that talk is heating up on the possibility of avoiding the 50 cent drop in the support price that is expected in April if CCC purchases for the next year would exceed six billion pounds of milk equivalent. In order to reach that level CCC purchases would have to drop 64 percent below last year instead of the 38 percent we have now. That's only 26 percent or 4.3 billion pounds more, but that may be a lot harder to get than the first 38 percent drop. For one thing, the Milk Diversion Program has already made its greatest impact on production cut backs, and for those producers outside the program things are looking better. Those increases in farm prices with little or no increases in feed prices have produced a milk price/feed price ratio of 1.43, the highest in 14 months. In addition, we're looking at record high grain crops nationally and in some of last year's drought affected areas the yields are double a year ago.

The increase in commercial demand has been nearly double that percent decrease in milk production, so many feel the sales have contributed more to higher prices than production drops. It is hoped that the national expansion of advertising and promotion of dairy products will maintain and expand the increased sales, but no one yet has predicted the short-term effect of that program.

If you take the most recent three months' figures in production and sales, you can make a good case for preventing a drop in the support price in April, but if you include the last nine months it doesn't look as good. And once again the answer lies in what the average producer will do in response to increasing milk prices with adequate feed supplies and cow numbers during the next six months. What happens this winter may give us the best clues to predict what will happen after the Milk Diversion Program ends next spring. The reaction of producers may not only affect the price they get next year but what goes into a dairy price support program in the 1985 farm bill. Of course, the same politics may choose to disregard all the numbers, or at least interpret them differently, to provide whatever is politically possible or profitable.

Dairylea renames Rutherford

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative president Clyde E. Rutherford has been reelected to a seventh consecutive term at the close of the big cooperative's 65th annual meeting here. The Otego, N.Y. dairyman is also director of the co-op's District Nine.

The rest of the existing officers were also renamed to their present posts.

John N. Widger was reelected first vice president. Director of Dairylea District Two, Widger operates a dairy farm at Ellicottville, N.Y.

Raymond J. Diebold was reelected second vice president. The Altoona, Pa. area dairyman is also director of Dairylea District Six.

Silas E. Eakins of Potsdam, N.Y., was reelected treasurer of the co-op. Eakins is director of Dairylea District Eleven in northern New York.

Reelected as assistant treasurer was Beriah E. "Ted" Willson of Vernon Center, N.Y. The widely-known dairy industry leader is also director of Dairylea District Ten.

Rutherford lauds co-ops, criticizes free-loaders

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — "Why should I, as a dairy farmer, be glad that my product is underpriced?" asked President Clyde R. Rutherford in his remarks Wednesday morning at the 65th annual meeting of Dairylea Cooperative in Hotel Syracuse.

Himself a dairy farmer from Otego, N.Y., Rutherford noted the need to preserve for the individual farmer some decent piece of his own efficiency as he emphasized the need for co-op members and non-members to work together. The Dairylea president feels that all Northeast dairymen must combine their marketing muscle if the local situation is to improve.

"I don't get any great thrill out of reading in the paper that the cost of everything but food went up in this month. I take no pride in noting that the dairyprice index has risen less than every other major index over the past two decades. Is it of some psychological value to me to sell more of a product and receive less for it?"

In his annual report to some 1,000 dairy family members from the Northeast, Rutherford noted that Dairylea had completed an excellent financial year with debt reduction of $10 million, an increase in working capital, the upgrading of fleet and plant operating equipment, substantial increase in equity, and 9% improvement in per hundredweight return on sales.

But Rutherford leaned hard on the individual dairy farmers who belong to no dairy cooperative, yet "may reap the benefits of our efforts." As he put it, "I say without reservation that had not the dairy cooperatives of this country been able to obtain and protect the laws and regulations that have stabilized our roller-coaster industry, we would all be worse off... and a great many of us would be out of farming altogether.

"The fight to stabilize an industry through regulations and political action is always a fight to survive. It's necessary and it's critical. It is only the co-ops that have gotten us as far as we are. The bench warmers and bleacher-sitters and free-loaders may reap the benefits of our efforts, but they must know that every dairy farmer who fails to be a part of the solution is part of the problem."

Rutherford pointed to the cooperation that has been taking place among area farm organizations so that the Northeast can unify its own thinking about the Farm Bill, doing it early, and going out and trying to generate support for our ideas in the rest of the country.

"At some point we will be looking to each of you for assistance in building Congressional acceptance of items we feel essential to be included in the Farm Bill. Please remember that whatever moves out of Congress and gets signed by the president as a 1985 Farm Bill will affect our industry and each of us as farmers for years to come. It's important."

The Dairylea president discussed the importance of the New York milk dealer licensing, noting that milk dealer licensing regulations are applied equally to both in-state and out-of-state milk dealers. "It is a system of county-by-county licensing that has helped to stabilize our industry, protect many smaller milk handlers from being gobbled up by big processors, and assure New York State consumers of a dependable supply of locally produced, fresh milk. The licensing law has benefitted everyone in this state; farmers, dealers, and consumers. You should remain alert to this situation, and see to it that your legislators understand the fact."

Rutherford emphasized that unification of the dairy industry in both policy and marketing will, in the end benefit the American consumer. "A weak dairy industry cannot provide the assurance of long-term supplies of milk and dairy products that U.S. citizens take for granted. A dairy industry based on family-owned farms, held to government handouts and exposed to subsidized foreign competition will ultimately disappear. What will replace it I cannot predict, but I can predict that it will be more expensive and produce more expensive products.

"We cannot allow our survival to be based on political winds that blow through Washington," reminded Rutherford in emphasizing the need for a united industry with co-op members and individuals joining forces.

Dairylea has some 3,000 member families in its seven state region and marketed more than $363 million worth of milk during its fiscal year ended March 31, 1984.

September milk price set

NEW YORK — Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during September will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $13.74 per hundredweight (29.5 cents per quart). Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson also stated that the price was $13.39 in Aug. 1984 and $13.75 in Sept. 1983. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive fund returned a total of $3,954,744.20, or $.450 per hundredweight, to the dairy farmers' uniform price for September. This fund was generated by reducing the uniform price paid to producers during the high-production spring months.

A total of 16,798 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 878,622,408 pounds of milk during September. This was a decrease of 4.5 percent (about 41 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $122,617,192.13. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) used 375,576,552 pounds of milk for Class I, 42.7 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For September, handlers paid $14.42 per hundredweight (31.0 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.75 a year ago.

The balance (503,045,856 pounds or 57.3 percent) was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $12.70 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For September, there was a price differential of 18.2 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Conservation meeting set

ANKENY, Ia. — "Conservation: A Matter of Motivation" will be the theme for the 40th annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America, Aug. 4-7, 1985, at Marriott's Pavilion Hotel in St. Louis, Missouri.

Chairman of the Program Committee for the meeting is Donald E. Van Meter, professor and chairman of the Department of Natural Resources at Ball State University in Muncie, Indiana. Russ Mills, deputy state conservationist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service in Columbia, Missouri, will head the local Arrangements Committee.

Wild waterfowl Avian warning repeated

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — With the federal quarantine now lifted both in Virginia and Pennsylvania, a successful conclusion may be at hand for the yearlong battle of eradicate avian influenza in Mid-Atlantic area poultry flocks.

But producers should not let down their guard, warns Dr. Edward T. Mallinson, Extension poultry veterinarian at the University of Maryland. Chances for a recurrence of the contagious virus disease in layer and broiler flocks are not impossible.

An associate professor at the College Park campus for the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine, Dr. Mallinson reported that, even after quarantine restrictions have been lifted, federal and state animal health authorities and industry groups must maintain a surveillance period for at least six months.

And he repeated warnings made a year ago that overwintering wild waterfowl constitute a potential reservoir for the H5N2 virus — the family from which virulent strains of avian influenza can emerge.

Mallinson noted that veterinary examination of young Mallard ducks on ponds in Lancaster County, this past August resulted in about 60 laboratory isolations of the avian influenza virus. A high percentage of these isolations were in the potentially dangerous H5N2 family.

This example reinforces an old adage for poultry producers... Don't let wild web-footed birds mix with chickens, or your flock could become infested with avian influenza, a deadly disease to which waterfowl are relatively resistant.

In the same vein, the Maryland Extension veterinarian commented, "you don't mix turkeys with chickens, lest the chickens become infected with blackhead. And you shouldn't mix pet tropical birds with chickens, lest the chickens die from exotic Newcastle disease."

Finally, Mallinson admonishes, poultry producers need to be alert to the danger of humans carrying waterfowl droppings on their footwear into a poultry house. That possibility is greatest, of course, in areas where there are high populations of wild waterfowl in close proximity to domestic poultry flocks

He notes that poultry health authorities around the nation advocate the following set of important preventive measures

— Eliminate poultry worker contact with wild waterfowl. Hunting and subsequent handling of carcasses, along with trampling in waterfowl feces, is prohibitive.

— Attracting wild waterfowl to the domestic poultry premises must be prevented. Wild birds should not be enticed by feed, spilled or spread intentionally, or by the creation of nearby farm ponds.

Poultry farms should be rid of all free-ranging poultry, especially domestic waterfowl.

General symptoms of avian influenza in poultry include increased respiratory problems, an upsurge in flock mortality, or sharply reduced egg production. Suspicious cases should be reported directly to the nearest animal health laboratory operated by the Maryland state Department of Agriculture. These laboratories are located at Oakland, Frederick, College Park, Centreville and Salisbury.

Telephone numbers are: Oakland - (301) 334-2185; Frederick - (301) 663-9528; College Park - (301) 454-3631; Centreville - (301) 758-0846; Salisbury - (301) 543-6610.

Also on the Delmarva peninsula are three diagnostic laboratories operated by the Delaware state Department of Agriculture. Their telephone numbers are Newark - (301) 451-2524; Dover - (302) 736-4821, and Georgetown - (302) 856-5254.

Let facts guide farm bill policy

NEWARK, Del — Congress will soon be hammering out a new farm bill. Farmers, farm groups and farm policy analysts are already taking positions on what they want the 1985 Agriculture and Food Act to contain. Nonfarm interests will want to influence the deliberations, too. When all the talking and horse-trading are over, will the U.S. have a sound, workable farm policy?

"That depends," says University of Delaware extension farm policy specialist Jerry Vaughn. "Emotion-packed comments may influence some members of Congress to vote the way certain constituents wish. Too often such views are nearly useless because they're not based on facts. Sound farm policy can be based only on facts."

According to Vaughn, the most powerful force in resolving differences is a clear and proven fact, presented to policymakers after interest has developed but before a decision is made. He says policymakers respect people and organizations who use factual analysis rather than emotion to state their case.

"By presenting figures from your farm balance sheet, for example, you can even use your own personal experience to explain how a farm issue or policy would affect you, your family, business, the community or state," the specialist says.

Vaughn suggests farmers who want to influence public policy follow these guidelines in organizing and presenting their case

* Form a study group "Don't take a position until you have assembled and studied the facts thoroughly," he advises.

Cooperate with other people and groups with similar interests and concerns A study group gains from sharing factual information and is in a better position to raise money for technical assistance if needed "

* Focus on the policy or issue being considered Give clear, simple facts – such as figures, examples and reasonable arguments – bearing directly on the matter. When testifying at a congressional committee or other hearing, stick to the subject being considered.

Have a thorough knowledge of the issue or policy. Identify any bill involved by name and number.

"Communicate mainly with your own senators and representatives," Vaughn says. "They care more about your views. Tell the delegation exactly what it needs to know in voting on the matter, but don't swamp them with unnecessary facts. Be brief – it counts plenty. Point out specific impacts of the proposed policy. Provide facts and supporting data in writing, not just orally, so the delegation can refer back to them."

* Be sure of your facts. Use facts from well-known, reliable sources whenever possible – facts that can be readily verified.

Keep informed on current farm issues and policy developments. Have an open mind. And remember to look at the big picture, too. Farm policy doesn't just affect farmers, and it won't be decided solely on the basis of farm interests.

* Answer requests for further explanation with facts If you need more facts before answering, indicate that you'll get them – then be sure to follow through.

"Your view may not always prevail, and sometimes facts may be ignored," Vaughn concludes. "But don't be discouraged. If you've done the best you could, you're building a reputation for doing your homework that will be valuable in future farm policy matters."

Del. observes Co-op Month

NEWARK, Del. — This October marks the 20th annual observation of national Cooperative Month. Delaware's farming community paid formal tribute to the event with a kickoff breakfast Oct. 3 at Perry's Family Steak House in Dover. Nearly 50 Farmers, co-op managers, employees and agribusiness professionals attended the event, which was sponsored by the Delaware Council of Farmer Cooperative Extension Service.

The program began with a welcome by council president Dan Hudson, followed by a presentation by Lt. Governor Mike Castle of a Co-op Month proclamation signed by Governor DuPont.

Keynote speaker at the breakfast was Gene Ingalsbe, director of education and information for the Agricultural Cooperative Service, U.S Department of Agriculture. He spoke about the challenges facing cooperatives in the 1980s

Ingalsbe said that though members of agricultural cooperatives are well aware of the benefits of such organizations, the message needs to get out to consumers "In the co-op marketing system," he said, "any benefits along the way are funneled back to the farm The end result is that we produce more food "

According to University of Delaware extension marketing specialist Carl German, there are 45,000 cooperatives of all kinds operating in the U.S. This figure is up by 6,000 from five years ago. Total cooperative membership is about 85 million. An estimated one out of every four persons in this country belongs to at least one cooperative. Some of the most familiar nonfarm co-ops are cooperative banks and credit unions. Other familiar examples are food marketing, clothing and babysitting cooperatives.

Some area agricultural cooperatives, such as Southern States and Agway, provide their members with farm supplies and services. Some, like the Interstate Milk and Atlantic Breeders cooperatives, help farmers produce and market specific commodities. Others, like the Production Credit system, help finance food production. Agricultural cooperatives are responsible for many of the food items found on supermarket shelves. In fact, says German, up to 75 percent of the items in some aisles were produced by cooperatives.

"Once you start to think about it," the specialist says, "you should be able to come up with a dozen ways in which cooperatives serve you. The cooperative idea is alive, well, and continues to grow in this country. It benefits us all – farmers and nonfarmers alike."

Del. names policy specialist

NEWARK, Del. — Gerald F. Vaughn has been named specialist for agricultural and natural resources policy for the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service, effective Oct. 1.

According to extension director Richard E. Fowler, Vaughn's appointment to the newly created position reflects extension's desire to play a more active role in providing information in the area of public policy, especially as it relates to Delaware agriculture and natural resources This includes all levels of public policy – national, state and local.

"Vaughn has worked in various aspects of public policy for over 25 years, mostly in Delaware and also in Maryland and Texas," Fowler says "He has increasingly concentrated on identifying and aiding in the understanding of issues affecting the future of Delaware agriculture and natural resources "

Grown any mangelwurzers lately?

WASHINGTON, D.C. — America's agricultural imports, valued at about $16.6 billion last year, are top heavy with such essentials as coffee, tea, rubber, bananas, and coconut oil. Stowed away among the familiar items, however, are several others that may not qualify as household words.

Take, for example, coir The United States imported nearly 8,000 metric tons of coir valued at $1.6 million in 1983. What is it? A stiff coarse fiber from the husk of the coconut, coir is used for making rope, mats and matting, and upholstery filling Our supplier is India, where the coconuts are harvested about 30 days before maturity. The husks are soaked in water for over a week to rot away the soft tissues between the fibers, which are then cleaned and dried.

Mangelwurzer seeds — 11 metric tons of them valued at $25,000 — were imported last year. The seeds grow into mangelwurzers, large yellow to reddish-orange beets which appear partly above ground and partly below. In the United States, the beets are used primarily as forage for cattle

Some perfumes, tobacco, and artificial vanilla extracts have a surprising common denominator — tonka beans. Tonka beans contain something called coumarin which has a pleasant aroma and taste and is used as a scenting and flavoring agent Tonka bean imports amounted to more than a hill of beans in 1983 — 43 metric tons valued at $329,000.

What animal is the largest rodent in existence, reaches 4 feet in length, has coarse fur, no tail, and is largely aquatic? The capybara, or carpincho, is a South American rodent which is related to the guinea pig

Two metric tons of carpincho skins were imported into the United States in 1983, their primary use being for glove leather

What about gjetost? Some say it resembles mysost In 1983, the U S imported 7 metric tons of gjetost, a brown Norwegian whey cheese with the consistency of butter and having a mild sweetish taste.

The U S. also imports such items as cassava flour and stramonium The toasted granules of cassava flour are the more familiar tapioca, while the dried leaves of the thorn apple, or stramonium, are used for medicinal purposes

Base milk price $13.85 for September

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine announced a September 1984 base milk price of $13.85 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $12.62. The weighted average September price was $13.88 and the butterfat differential for the month was 18.2 cents. The base milk price was up 17 cents from August but was 11 cents below last September. The advertising withholding rate, which is deducted from the base and excess milk prices but not the weighted average price is 10 cents a hundredweight.

Mr. Shine said that producer milk receipts totaled 466.2 million pounds during September, a decrease of over 23 million pounds or 4.7 percent from a year earlier. The average daily delivery per producer of 2,289 pounds was down 49 pounds or 2.1 percent from the September 1983 average. Class I producer milk totaled 233.3 million pounds and accounted for 50.05 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month. The Class I utilization last September was 51.49 percent. Base milk accounted for 94.68 percent of total producer milk receipts in September compared with 92.50 percent a year ago. The market average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.58 percent in September 1984 and 3.55 percent last September.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 197.3 million pounds during September, a decrease of 1.2 percent from a year earlier, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

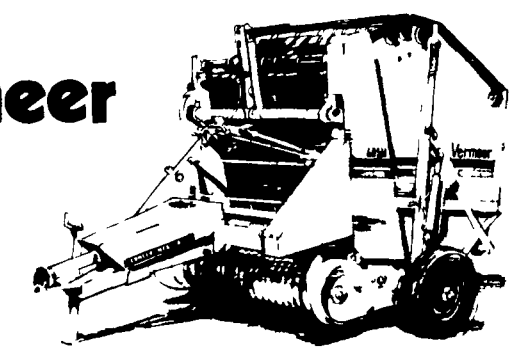
YOUR FALL TIME SAVER AND LABOR SAVER FROM VERMEER

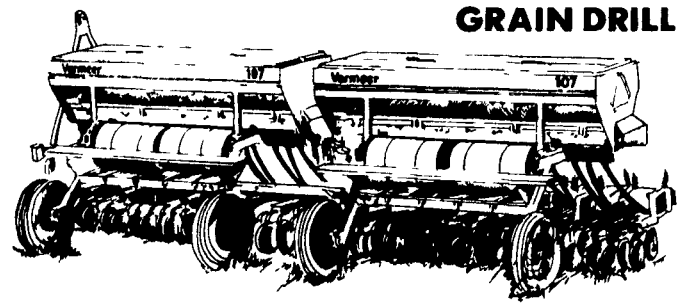
Vermeer 605 BALER



Vermeer can help you spend less time in the field. After corn harvest the Vermeer 605 and 504 Series Balers can turn that corn fodder into a package that is easy to handle and move. Solid and weather-tight the Vermeer round bale keeps its shape better than any other round bale package in the field today. And the best part, it's the most competitively priced baler in the industry.

CALL TODAY AND ASK FOR A DEMONSTRATION AND A PRICE. BALERS AND NO TILL DRILLS FOR RENT ON A LIMITED BASIS.

Vermeer 107 GRAIN DRILL



The Vermeer 107 No-Till Grain Drill gives you that important early start in seeding your fall grains. This rugged built unit gives you adjustable seed settings for any small grain with positive depth control for more even seeding. This unit has staggered double disk openers set at 7" spacings, and can be used for no till and conventional seeding.

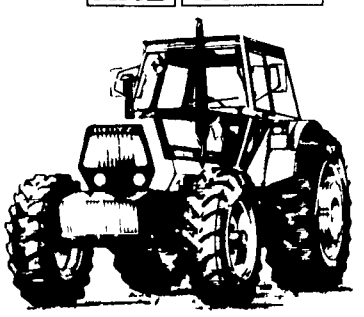
STAUFFER DIESEL, INC.

Your Ag Power Headquarters, Featuring Two Tractor Lines To Serve You Better

KHD DEUTZ FAHR



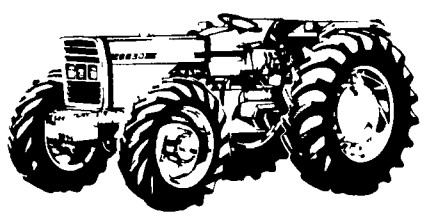
43 to 145 HP in 9 Sizes, 2 WD and 4 WD

Superior German engineering and craftsmanship combined with the advantages of the Deutz air-cooled diesel produced a premium quality product, designed for longer more economical service life. No water in the crank case — ever.

Known for superior PTO performance. They run better — they run longer — they run for less!

In Stock: D7007 (2WD); 68 Hp., D4.70 (2WD) 90 Hp., DX-120 (2WD) 111 Hp.

Landini



42-122 HP in 7 Sizes, 2 WD and 4 WD

Made by Massey Ferguson, SpA. Parts distributed thru M.F. domestic warehouses.

In Stock: 5830 (4WD) 42 Hp, 8830 (4WD) 68 Hp., 10,000 (2WD) 92 Hp.

Stauffer Service Keeps Them Running

Our master mechanics have the knowledge and the tools to handle the most complex service problems. Tractor service since 1969.

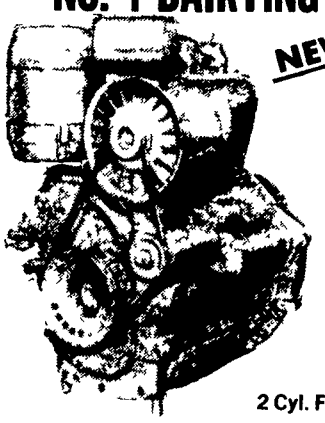
NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL



NEW!
LOWER PRICE

2 Cyl. F2L-912

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting. No electric heater plugs.

QUIETER: Runs quieter than most water cooled diesels. Very quiet exhaust.

F2L-912 SPECS: 20 Hp @ 1500 RPM
25 Hp @ 1800 RPM
32 Hp @ 2300 RPM

It has direct injection, lube oil cooling, and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

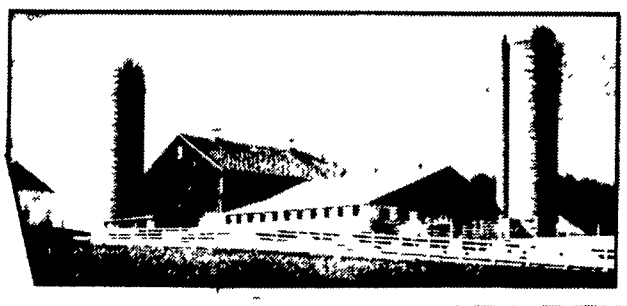
FICKES SILOS...

Dependable-Reliable
Systems That Assure Continuous Service Day After Day

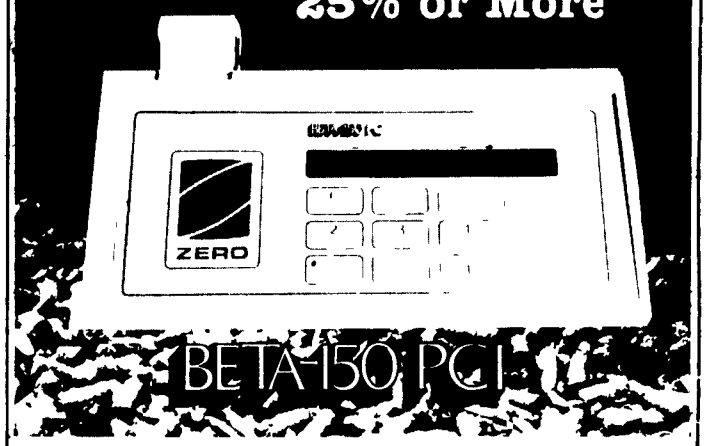
FICKES SILAGEMASTER
Silo construction is not only an engineering science, it is also an art. Fickes Silos exemplify these principles, with their fine stave design and strength durability. . and manufacturer's care in building.



SWING BACK HINGED DOOR
The hardware used in this door's construction is heavy duty steel with a double hinge system to allow the door to swing back against the side of the silo A double lock system holds the door against the frame for a sure seal

SILAGEMASTER

Increase Production 25% or More



This new dairy computer identifies your cows with high potential and allows you to feed them accordingly
— has increased herd average pro duction up to 25% —
— has paid for itself in less than a year in feed savings and increased milk & butterfat production — is easy to program and use
— produces more profits through managing both feed and cows
— interfaces with home computers

"Sure enough, when everyone finds out how I can wean early and still get 20 percent faster gains, it won't be so special.

"It's my pride, you know. I like feeding rations that are special...and this one is. It's Potency Formulated, and made just for early-weaning pigs.

"It's not like others...not adapted from an ordinary starter feed that baby pigs aren't even interested in. No sir, this stuff has baby pigs scrambling after it.

The secret to early weaning.

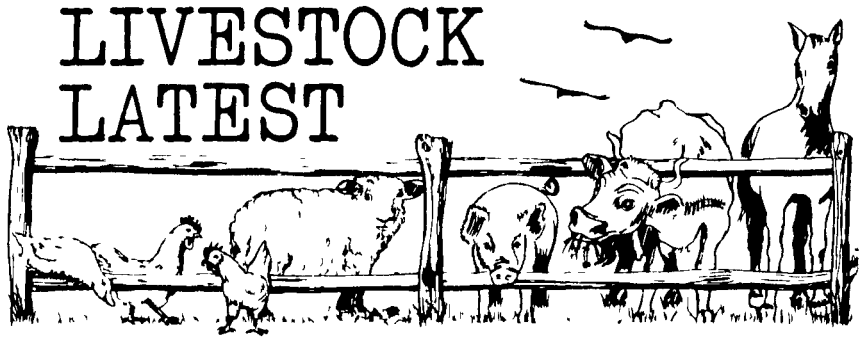
October is Pork Month



Technology no substitute for good management

NEWARK, Del — Biotechnology has given the pork industry some useful management tools, and several more are on the way. But instead of waiting for tomorrow's research results, University of Delaware extension livestock specialist Dr. Ken Kephart suggests producers take a hard look at their present operations to see if they're making good use of knowledge that already exists.

Pork Prose

by
Kenneth B. Kephart
Extension Livestock Spec.
University of Del.

"Over there's a sow that just weaned her third litter. She had nine pigs but raised only six. She weaned eight pigs each with her last two litters. Is it time to send her down the road?"

"And there's a gilt that farrowed seven pigs but only raised five. What do I do with her?" Have you ever asked yourself questions like these? Just when is the right time to cull a sow?

That's an age-old question that brings a different answer every time it comes up. The bottom line, of course, depends on why you're thinking of culling the sow.

If she's injured or has severe feet and leg problems, the decision is easy. She's got to go.

If she won't cycle or settle, there's also little sense in keeping her. But how long do you wait? If she isn't cycling, take a look at her condition. Sows in very thin flesh after lactation, especially first-litter sows, are often slow to come back into heat. So they deserve some time to catch up. A month is reasonable. That gives them at least three weeks since their last expected heat.

For those that cycle, but don't settle, most producers will breed twice before culling. That figures out, again, to roughly one month — or $12 to $15 in feed.

What about disease? If the sow has had a miserable case of MMA, many herdsmen won't think twice about sending her to market. That may be the logical thing to do. But if you talk with the folks who research this mastitis problem, they'll say you might be just as far ahead to keep the sow around. Sure, some lines of sows seem to have a predisposition to mastitis. But many of the mastitis cases we see are not the sow's fault.

And that way of thinking is true for some other diseases like Lepto and Parvovirus. Just because a sow's litter is affected at this farrowing doesn't necessarily mean she'll have a problem the next time around.

What about performance? Where should you draw the line? Some people will tell you there's no sense in drawing a line. Dr. Maurice Bichard of PIG (the Pig Improvement Company) contends in a recent article that the repeatability of sow performance is too low to justify culling on that basis.

He's probably right, for several reasons. Take this issue of repeatability and apply it to our first-litter gilt that raised five pigs. And we'll put her up against another gilt that you'd surely want to keep — one that weaned nine pigs. The difference in litter size between the two is four pigs. With the first litter (a single record), the repeatability for litter size at weaning is about 0.16. So the difference we would expect to see the next time around would be 16 percent of four pigs (0.16x4=0.64) — not even one pig.

Repeatability is telling us that, on the average, with the next litter the good gilt will wean .64 more pigs than the poor gilt. The difference is so small because there are so many things that affect litter size besides genetics.

If you've got more than one record, repeatability does get bigger. For example, the difference in litter size between two sows is nearly 50 percent predictable if they're on their fifth litter. But waiting for five litters to go by is a pretty long time to come to a decision.

Another sad fact of genetic selection is that the more you cull, the younger your sow herd becomes. Everyone who has pigs is fully aware that gilts have smaller litters than sows. So any improvements you try to make in litter size will be hampered by a higher percentage of gilt litters.

The bottom line to improving litter size at weaning is that you'll make little progress through genetic selection. A safer bet is to crossbreed for heterosis and keep the sow for at least three litters, the parity at which production seems to be maximized.

If you're still convinced you should select for litter size, then focus on your replacement boars. There are fewer of them and they account for half of your genetic base.

In the future, the specialist predicts, scientific breakthroughs in genetic engineering — recombinant DNA — may make it possible to grow more and better hogs faster on less feed.

Scientists using gene splicing may be able to produce vaccines to keep pigs healthier; growth hormones to radically improve growth rates and feed efficiency while yielding leaner, meatier carcasses; and synthetic amino acids to replace expensive soybean meal in rations. They can already take embryos from high performing sows and plant them in recipient sows, just as the cattle industry does.

Artificial insemination is another available technique, though it hasn't yet caught on to a great extent in the hog industry, Kephart says. Most producers find it impractical to breed artifically on a large scale, but a lot of folks are using A.I. to breed their best sows. By selecting replacement gilts and herd boars from these offspring, producers can close their herds, which is a big step in preventing disease transmission.

Sophisticated technology alone won't improve performance, Kephart says. He offers the following suggestions to help producers improve current management practices:

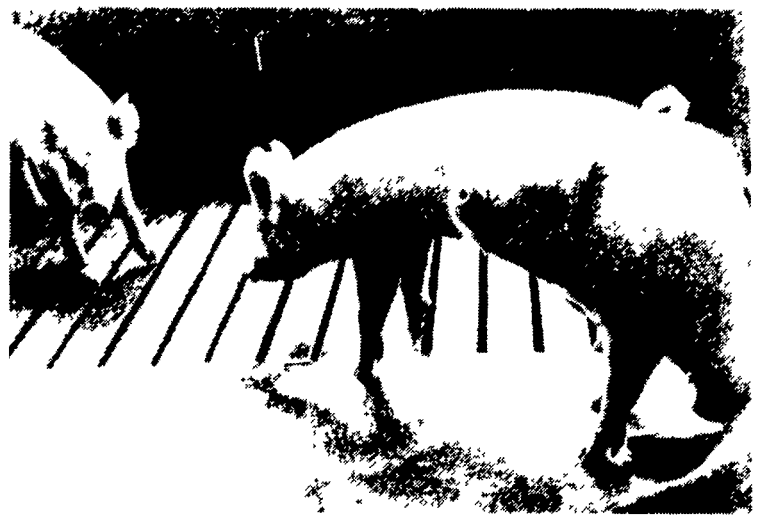
• Keep good records. "Total herd feed efficiency, breeding records, conception rate, number weaned, weaning weights and post-weaning rate of gain are just a few of the things you should be jotting down," he says. Use these records to spot problems and make decisions. If the numbers are too overwhelming for pencil and paper, a computer might help.

• Use performance-tested breeding stock. "Buy boars on the basis of looks and performance. Know how well the pigs do on your farm," he advises. "Then bring in the blood lines that will do even better."

• Make solid efforts at marketing. "Look at all the markets in your area. Consider grade and yield programs. And sell your pigs when the time is right, not just when it's convenient."

• Keep pigs healthy and comfortable. Mange, overcrowding, heat and cold stress can all cost a lot of money. They're also factors a producer can at least partially control.

"In short," concludes Kephart, "tomorrow's technology will offer a level of performance that our hog industry has never seen. But it will be useless without good management and attention to detail."



Using performance tested boars is one good way to improve herd performance.

Meadow Mist holds Angus dispersal

LOYSVILLE — Buyers from nine eastern and mid-western states converged on Loysville's Meadow Mist Farms on Wednesday, Oct. 10, for a dispersal of mature Angus cows conducted by the farm's owner, Dr. Burleigh Anderson.

"We had quite an active sale," said the well-known veterinarian and Angus breeder, whose 107 lots brought $133,400, for a sale average of $1,247 per head. The three top selling females sold for $7,900, $5,800, and $5,700.

Auctioneered by Mike Jones, the sale featured daughters of Schearbrook Shoshone, Ankonian Dynamo, PS Power Play, Bon View Winston 1342, Big Moose, Lucan of Wye, Band 174, and Meadow Mist Magnum.

"We're starting all over again with 87 heifers," said the veteran cattleman who began breeding Angus cattle 23 years ago. Since its beginning, Meadow Mist Farm has maintained a completely closed herd.

Anderson, who owns a total of 18 bulls in partnership, reports that most of his heifers are currently being bred by Meadow Mist bulls.

"The one we're most excited about is Meadow Mist Sunrider 350," says Anderson, adding that the bull has had cattle bred to him from California to Maine.

An advocate of performance testing, Dr. Anderson has participated in Ohio, Pa., and W. Va., bull test programs, and currently has 15 bulls on test in W. Va. In 1982, Meadow Mist had the highest indexing bull in the 10-year history of the Penn State test station.

NY Beef Cattlemen hold fall Meeting

SYRACUSE — The New York Beef Cattlemen's Association's executive council at its fall meeting called for development of a second three-year plan for the state-wide organization.

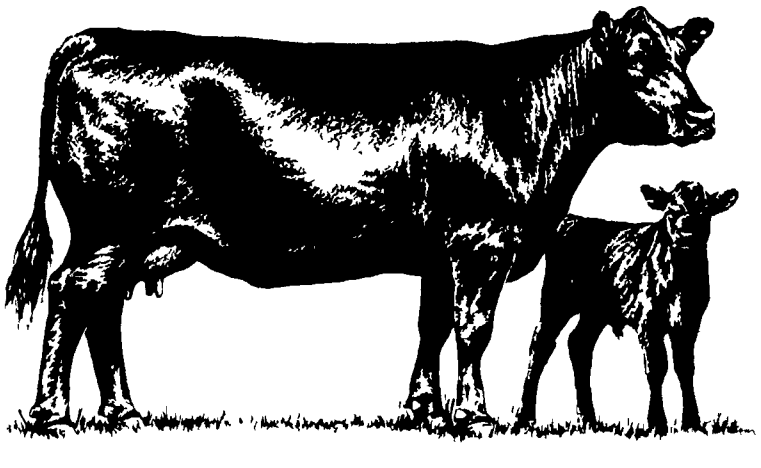
The advisory committee, headed by Steve Gotovich of Stanfordville, was directed to work on this plan which will consider marketing, producer services, promotion, research, membership, fund raising, setting goals and priorities for each year. The first three year plan for the Association was developed and implemented in 1981 and the goals were met.

The producer services and marketing committees were directed to consider development of a feeder calf direct marketing program and a brood cow sale as marketing alternatives and to report at the annual meeting. Such programs would be in addition to the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association Feeder Calf Sales and the Spring Sale of breeding cattle sponsored by the Southwestern Division through their Angelica Feeder Sales Inc.

Executive secretary Lee Kraszewski of Corning reported more than 130 new members have been enrolled to date. The Eastern Division and the Southwestern Division are currently in close competition for first place in the membership contest.

Jean Frost of Holcomb and Helen Patton of Bainbridge presented the final report of the 1984 Empire Farm Days Beef Barbecue. This fund-raising project is co-sponsored annually by the Cattlemen's Association and the New York CowBelles. Five thousand pounds of beef were sold during the three day agricultural trade show with more than 3,600 dinners and 1,000 barbecue sandwiches were sold.

Jean Shwartz of Earlville reported on the proposed New York Beef Check-Off. She said a final draft of the marketing order proposal is expected to be presented to the New York Farm Bureau and the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association at their annual meetings for approval as the first step in implementing the Check-Off. The prosposed order will call for a mandatory assessment of $1 for every bovine animal over six months of age at the time of slaughter. The order will also call for a nine member advisory board to recommend how Check-Off Funds are to be used. The Beef Council of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association is recommending that 60 per cent of the Check-Off funds collected remain in the state and 40 per cent be given to the National Livestock and Meat Board programs.



'84 a record year for Angus breeders

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Angus breeders set new records in 1984 by recording 231,574 birth, weaning and yearling weight records in the American Angus Association's performance records program, an increase of 10% over the fiscal 1983 year. New production records were also set in the Certified Angus Beef program.

During the 1983 fiscal year, Association members reported 78,808 birth, 106,380 weaning and 46,531 yearling weights in the Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) program, according to Richard Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association, headquartered in St. Joseph, Missouri.

The leading state in the use of performance records for the year was Montana. The 154 Angus Association members participating in the AHIR program reported 10,616 birth, 13,940 weaning and 9,195 yearling weights, all increases over the previous year. South Dakota was second with 90 participating breeders who recorded 5,840 birth, 7,813 weaning and 3,660 yearling weights.

Registrations of purebred Angus during the fiscal year ended September 30 were 174,539 head. Transfers totaled 106,790 head. The number of new Angus herds started last year as reflected in new memberships issued totaled 2,081. In addition 1,079 junior memberships were issued. These figures helped the American Angus Association retain its position as the largest beef breed registry association in the world in terms of active membership and annual registrations and transfers.

Some of the most promising figures to come out of the 1984 fiscal year was the growth in the American Angus Association's Certified Angus Beef program, according to Spader. During March of the 1984 fiscal year, one million pounds of Certified Angus Beef were sold, the first time ever that one month's production had hit this figure. For the year, some 8.2 million of certified Angus Beef were sold by participating packers. This compares with 1.6 million pounds in the 1983 fiscal year.

Van Horn retires at Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK — George A Van Horn, associate professor of agricultural communications, retired September 30 after 29 years with The Pennsylvania State University.

Van Horn served as editor of Science in Agriculture, the quarterly magazine of the College of Agriculture. Under Van Horn's direction, the magazine won numerous awards. He also wrote scientific news articles for the college. Many of his stories were published in newspapers and magazines throughout Pennsylvania and other states.

Over the years, Van Horn worked to show faculty members the style of popular writing as compared to technical writing. His efforts have made researchers aware of the need to make scientific information available to the public.

Van Horn spent considerable time working with student publicity committees for College of Agriculture events such as the Little International, Dairy Exposition and Horticulture Show. He saw the need to teach students how to publicize events and developed a promotion schedule for student use. His goal was to provide a learning experience for the students as well as to inform the public.

Van Horn was also involved in teaching state Future Farmers of America officers about the basics of public relations through the mass media. He instructed the officers during their annual leadership conferences held on campus.

He also had a parallel career in public affairs for the United States Navy. As a Navy commander, he conducted two media studies of pollution abatement efforts. When the submarine Thresher sunk in 1963, Van Horn directed public affairs activities for shore phases of the second expedition by the Bathyscaphe Trieste to locate the Thresher.

Before joining the Ag Communications staff, Van Horn served as agricultural extension editor at the University of Delaware. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees in agricultural journalism from the University of Wisconsin.

Van Horn's community activities include mass communications work for the College Area Council of Churches and the Nittany Mountain District of the Boy Scouts of America.

Conservation tour planned

FREDERICK, Md. — The Catoctin and Frederick Soil Conservation Districts in Maryland are once again holding their annual conservation tour on Nov. 13.

The tour will be by bus, boarding at the 7th Street Shopping Center behind Murphy's Mart at 9 a.m. and returing by 3:30 p.m. The stops will include sites showing conservation practices such as animal waste storage facilities, contour stripcropping, water supply ponds, spring developments and field diversions. The above practices were cost shared by Agriculture Stabilization & Conservation Service (ASCS) and the new Maryland Department Agricutlure funding progrlam.

Lunch will be provided on the tour. Please call in reservations by Nov. 8. Telephone 663-9111.

TUNKHANNOCK — More than 2000 cooperative member dairymen, friends, and guests gathered for the annual Sire Power Open House held recently at the Tunkhannock headquarters. Farm families from all over Northeastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, and New Jersey came to view the sires, facilities, and pay tribute to Bill Schaefer.

General Manager of Sire Power, DuWayne Kutz welcomed the crowd to the afternoon program. He expressed his appreciation to the crowd for their continued patronage over the years. With much expansion in the facilities, DuWayne emphasized that the co-op owns the facilities, and we as employees of a co-op are here to do the best possible job.

"The future of the co-op will be successful as long as you use their service," said DuWayne. "Sire Power is completing another successful year with an outstanding sire line-up and dollar average right near the top of the industry. The combination of an outstanding sire line-up with a high confidence level, a progressive young sire program, and a quality product with facilities second to none provide a strong foundation for Sire Power's future success," said DuWayne.

DuWayne concluded by thanking the dairymen for their continued confidence in Sire Power semen and services. "We as your employees will continue to strive to be better and to maintain the strong Sire Power position in the industry."

In addition to the afternoon program, President of Sire Power, Gary Rickard reviewed the past year's activities. He highlighted his comments by discussing the recent expansion of the Sire Power marketplace into New York and the New England states. This expansion was carefully considered by the Sire Power Board and became effective on August 1.

The morning program at Sire Power consisted of bus tours to the Valley View Complex for inspection of sires. There were (8) school buses constantly in transit to and from Valley View Complex, which is about 3 miles from headquarters. Lloyd Ebersole reported approximately 800 people participated in these morning tours. With three completed sire barns at Valley View, there is a fourth one under construction; and also a newly expanded isolation facility. Projected plans are for two additional sire barns, which will provide Sire Power with housing for 450 bulls, and should meet the housing needs for the next 10 years. "The investment Sire Power has made in the entire facilities were necessary and helps insure a successful future," said Gairy Rickard.

Case debuts more new tractors

RACINE, Wisc. — For the third time in twelve months, J I Case has introduced new farm tractors offering major technological advancements for the agricultural market.

The latest additions are two 96 Series two-wheel drive agricultural tractors in the mid-power class. These tractors feature the new Case turbocharged diesel engines and a new mechanical front drive (MFD) axle that is capable of handling popular 30-inch (762mm) row crop operations.

Models 1896 and 2096 are both powered by new Case state-of-the-art turbocharged 5.9 litre, six-cylinder diesel engines that were five years in development and testing. Model 1896, a new offering from Case in the 90 hp - 100hp (67kW-74kW) class, is rated at 95 PTO hp (70kW). Model 2096, rated at 115 PTO hp (85kW), is both turbocharged and after-cooled and delivers more power, improved torque rise and better fuel economy.

Turbocharging promotes increased combustion, which translates into better utilization of fuel at all throttle settings, faster response to power needs, as well as reduced smoke emission.

Called the "Tractors for All Reasons," the new 96 Series models are equipped to perform well in a variety of applications. A new MFD axle with centerline drive for maximum row crop clearance is adjustable from 60 to 89 inches (1524mm to 2261mm) to handle farm applications like haying, row crop work, choring,

A variety of hitch applications are possible with new 96 Series tractors from J I Case.

Three Beachley-Hardy Seed Company employees received awards. They were Donald H. Woland, ten years; Douglas Karper and Gary M. Weist, both five year awards.

The following Pennfield Farms Egg Division employees were honored at the luncheon. John Deimler, 25 years service; Kenneth E. Henry, 20 years; Richard J. Trees, Ethel V. Deimler and Gerald O. Brunner, ten years; Rodney D. Brendle, Glenn V. Zwally, Larry Weaver, Barbara A. Bachtel, Quyen Chau, Deborah A. Howe, Brenda K. Bilger, Donald G. High, Glen Weaver and Marshall G. Kester, all five year awards.

Fifty-one Pennfield Farms Chicken employees were also honored. They included Earl G. Winklebleck and Elmer J. Boltz, both with 35 years service. Honored for 30 years service was Kenneth C. Grimes. Receiving 25 year awards were Grace M. Sands, Leon F. Boltz and Robert Turner. A 20 year award went to Joseph P. Natale, and a 15 year award to George W. Michaels.

Receiving 10 year awards were Santos Castillo, Jr., Eusebio Arroyo, Dolores R. Lutz, Marlene J. Zechman, Genoveva Rodriguez, Juan Olan, Efrain Alicea, Lee Z. Ziegler, Helena M. Batz, Gloria J. Ney and Hilda I. Schaeffer.

Thirty-two employees were honored with five year awards. They were Arthur J. Brandt, Sr., Ivette C. Arroyo, Emilio Cortez, Jeffrey R. George, Donna J. McGarvey, Cameron V. Haynes, William A. Wolfe, Fernando Melendez-Tirado, Alicia Arroyo, Eugene C. Weaver, Anna L. Kreiser, Steve Trout, and Duane E. Putt.

Also receiving five year awards were Starlet E. Cheatham, James E. Zellers, Roberto Cruz, Harriet Cramer, Richard D. Stoner, Jesus Varela, Jeffrey L. Sharp, Rose M. Boltz, William Grumbine, Rebecca Barnes, Karen D. Roupp, Denise E. Hoffer, Faye A. Woodhouse, Gladys M. Boyer, Nancy S. Reb, Nancy A. Condran, Raymond L. Bohr, Yolanda I. Alicea and Jerry S. Little.

Honored at the same luncheon were four Pennfield employees who have retired within the past year. They were Joseph E. Gromling, who also received a ten year award, Richard J. Rudisill, Joel C. Habegger and Eugene Schlosnagle.

Lancaster plant to make new Purina dairy feeds

LANCASTER — The Ralston Purina feed plant in Lancaster has been selected by Purina to manufacture three new dairy products recently introduced by the St. Louis-based commercial feed company.

"These products embody the latest advances made by Purina's dairy research department," Tom Potterfield Director of Operations said. "They represent years of Purina research aimed at bringing the formulation of a feed as close as possible to the complex nutrition requirements of a high-milk producing cow."

This plant has been making Purina products since 1983, with the capacity for 187,000 tons per year of feed for area livestock and poultry producers. The plant serves dealerships in southeast Pennsylvania, and parts of Maryland and Delaware.

The new dairy products that will be offered at this plant include a maximum-performance supplement, Maxi-Tech 40; a high-energy very palatable top feed concentrate, High Octane Top Feed; a block for lactating cows, High Octane Milking Block; and a dry cow and heifer supplement, Easy Care Block.

He credits the strict quality control standards at Purina plants with the ability to maintain the precise mixing and balancing necessary for producing such modern technologically-advanced feed formulations for area livestock producers.

"Dairy Research determines what has to be in the formula to meet the cows needs," he said. "But then it's up to our plant to assure the actual processing is exact in each and every batch."

Learn during this year's harvest

MISSION, Kan. — Farmers can learn several yield-increasing lessons for next year's corn and soybean crop by analyzing plant and soil conditions at harvest time, says Trevor Bower, director of Agronomic Services for AgriPro Seed.

"Many cultural and pest problems, including disease and soil qualilty, are very visible from the combine this time of year," Bower says. "But farmers must know what to look for, and how to act now to maximize yield in 1985."

Detecting disease or pest problems during the fall is the first step farmers can take toward minimizing present and future yield losses, Bower emphasizes. "Farmers who identify the grayish-green mold caused by corn ear and kernel rot can change harvest procedures to minimize damage and loss, for example," he says. "By carefully setting the combine, many infected kernels will be discarded during harvest, while the rest will experience minimal damage. Careful harvest practices will protect healthy kernels and ears."

Field scouting can also help identify Phytophthora root rot, a soybean disease responsible for annual yield losses in excess of 5 percent, Bower continues. "Look for short, undeveloped plants with few pods in low lying areas," he says. "These plants were probably victims of Phytophthora. Although this practice won't reduce current losses from Phytophthora, it can help farmers recognize the need to plant one of several varieties which have field or race resistance to the disease."

A good mid Group II variety that exhibits field resistance to this disease is AgriPro's AP-240, according to Bower. "This variety also has good lodging resistance and is well-adapted for narrow rows," he says. "A late Group IV variety we recommend is AP-350, which has a very good level of Phytophthora resistance and is well-adapted to double-cropping," he says. "And, a good Group III soybean variety with field resistance to Phytophthora is AgriPro 26," he says. "This variety has done extremely well in our trials, as well as Ohio State University trials."

Soil Analysis

Fall soil analysis is an excellent diagnostic tool that all growers should use to avoid future pest and disease problems, Bower notes. "Nitrogen, potassium and potash levels should be determined, as well as soil micronutrients and pH."

Imbalanced soil fertility can cause plant stress, which predisposes crops to disease and pest infestation, Bower points out. "Low potash in relation to nitrogen levels, for example, causes corn plant stress that can lead to stalk rot." One of the worst disease in the Corn Belt, stalk rot is responsible for annual yield losses ranging between 5 and 10 percent, according to USDA estimates.

Soil pH also affects the rate at which plants take up nutrients, Bower points out. "Low pH soils tend to be low in potash availability," he says. "Uncorrected, this could increase stalk rot, lodging and corn leaf blight."

Using soil analysis results as a guide, farmers can change their fertilizer or liming programs, Bower says. "If tests indicate a need for potassium or phosphorus, these can be applied in the fall," he says. "This eliminates one more chore during the busy spring planting season." At present, he adds, it's not advisable to add nitrogen during the early fall, as it leaches from the soil quickly. "However, a one-time fall nitrogen application with a stabilizer is feasible on some soil types. Growers can check with their state university or extension office on the wisdom of applying nitrogen to their fields in the fall," he adds.

Crop Rotation

Crop rotation is an excellent tool to reduce next year's pest population and correct soil fertility problems, Bower says. "Soybeans and alfalfa, for example, are good non-host crops for such corn pests as rootworm, earworm and European corn borer. A cover crop like red clover, can increase levels of nitrogen in the soil for the following year," he adds.

"By paying close attention to soil and crop conditions at harvest, and making appropriate adjustments, farmers can reduce pest and disease problems in their fields, and increase yields," Bower concludes.

PTO applications are handled by an independent dual speed PTO with reversible PTO shaft for easy 540/1000 rpm changes. For hitch work, both the 1896 and 2096 feature Case draft-controlled three-point hitches that adjust automatically to ground contour and soil conditions for reduced wheel slippage and increased tractor productivity. A two-position upper link provides a maximum of 8250 lbs. (3742Kg) lift capacity for a variety of hitch applications. Non-hitch versions for wheatland farmers are also available.

Both models come equipped with an electrically activated standard 12-speed power shift transmission with three no-clutch power shifts "This transmission provides a low effort, consistent shifting sequence, regardless of temperature variations," Gottman said. "With twelve forward speeds and three in reverse, it offers a broad selection of speeds for a wide range of farming operations and tillage or crop conditions."

FARM CREDIT SERVICE

Farm Credit News

Lancaster Farm Credit names directors

LANCASTER — Last week, at their annual stockholders meeting, Lancaster Farm Credit Association elected three new directors to serve at area branch offices, each for a three year term.

James S. Owens, new general manager of Lancaster Farm Credit, gave a talk on the highlights of 1983.

Three sectional meetings were held in conjunction with the elections. The first, on Oct. 9, was held at Camp Hebron in Dauphin County, with 94 persons in attendance. A luncheon and dinner banquet announcing the new directors and the elected members of the nominating committee, were held Oct. 11 at the Historic Strasburg Inn, with 710 attending.

Elected to the Federal Land Bank was B. Musser Forry of Manheim RD2. Forry, with his two sons, maintains a 120-acre farm, which consists of hogs, steer, and broilers. An additional 78 acres also is included at Pleasant View Farm.

David M. Garber of Marietta RD1 was appointed director of Lancaster Production Credit office. He operates a 150 acre farm of steer and broilers.

Marlin Hitz was elected to the Lebanon County chapter of LPC. In a family partnership, Hitz operates a 495 acre dairy farm, and Dol-Mar Dairy Store. He resides at 525 Hemlock Lane in Lebanon.

Appointed to the nominating committee for 1984-85 were J. Wade Groff, Glenn C. Hershey and Kenneth S. Meck for Production Credit; and Ellis R. Denlinger, Robert C. Groff and Clarence D. Neff for Land Bank.

Marlin Hitz (left) David M. Garber and B. Musser Forry are the newly elected directors of Lancaster Farm Credit. Hitz is director of the Lebanon County chapter of Lancaster Production Credit. Garber will serve as director of the Lancaster branch of LPC, and Forry will direct the Federal Land Bank.

New rabbit feeder improves feed efficiency

NEW HOLLAND — Safeguard Products, Inc., introduces Conservall II, a durable new rabbit feeder built specifically to improve feeding efficiency.

Laboratory-tested for over a year, Conservall II features a specially-designed slotted bottom that sifts out fines to ensure each animal receives the optimum amount of feed in full-pellet form. This unique configuration also effectively eliminates bridging. And exclusive semi-tubular 3/8" lip on sides and front helps keep feed in the Conservall II to eliminate waste.

Conservall II incorporates the solid construction that goes into each product in Safeguard's respected Conservall line. Extra-large trough makes feed easily accessible. Heavy-duty 26 gauge galvanized steel and riveted joints make the Conserval II strong, yet easy to clean.

Lehigh Valley pays cash dividend

LANSDALE — Lehigh Valley Farmers paid its producer members a cash distribution of $275,000 recently as part of its annual patronage dividend.

At the same time the Lansdale-based cooperative announced that its members had shipped a record high 453 million pounds of milk during the six months of the year, an increase of 10 percent over the same period last year.

President Alpheus L. Ruth said, 'Our members look forward to these extra payments, which are good indicators of our growth and success of our marketing programs."

The $275,000 cash distribution was part of an overall patronage dividend of $1,375,000. The balance of $1,100,000 was issued in equity certificates.

On a per hundredweight basis the total dividend represented 16 cents for all milk shipped last year, with the cash portion amounting to three and a half cents For the average shipper the cash was approximately $225.

Funds for the cash distribution and the equity allocation were generated from operating profits of the Lehigh Valley Farmers cooperative and the Atlantic Processing federation to which Lehigh belongs.

(Lehigh Valley Farmers has a long-term contract with Atlantic Processing, Inc. of Allentown, Pa., for the purchase of all milk produced by Lehigh members.)

Lehigh's financial growth continues to attract new dairy farmers to the organization whose membership now totals 1,316. Lehigh's shipments to API have increased 100 million pounds a year in each of the last three years.

Ruth plans to cover these developments in a series of district meetings to be held throughout the cooperatives milkshed during November.

McMillen joins Umberger's

FONTANA — Umberger's of Fontana, Inc. announces the addition of Robert McMillan as a Farm Consultant.

He is a native of Indiana County and was raised on a dairy farm. He received his Bachelor of Science in Horticulture from Penn State in 1977.

After graduating from Penn State, McMillen spent three years working on the family dairy farm, gaining practical dairy experience. Following that, he was employed for three years with a farm equipment dealer in Indiana County.

As a sales representative for Umberger's of Fontana, Inc., a Ralston Purina dealer, he will be servicing farmers in Lebanon, Lancaster and Dauphin Counties.

He and his wife, Karen, will be residing in Annville, Lebanon County.

Alfalfa guide available

CHADDSFORD — "Management 2000", Dairyland Seed's farmer-oriented alfalfa management guide is now available through Servos Seed Corp., Chaddsford. What separates "Management 2000" from other alfalfa guides is its distinctive farmer-grower orientation.

The alfalfa guide is a major element in Dairyland's "Management 2000" alfalfa management program. This program is designed to give farmers the keys for alfalfa management for the year 2000, today.

"The state alfalfa average has been hovering around the 3 to 3½ ton level for too long. Our Magnum alfalfa is capable of generating eight to ten tons of alfalfa hay if properly managed on good soil", said Paul Sun, Dairyland Research Director.

Dairyland's alfalfa management guide outlines a program specifically aimed at raising eight tons of alfalfa. The "Management 2000" alfalfa management program can easily be adjusted for six to ten ton goals.

Dairyland called on its seven plant breeders, leading extension agronomists, and leading alfalfa hay producers from across the upper Midwest to write this extensive alfalfa management guide.

Art Dilley, Dairyland Regional Sales Manager, stated, "Dairyland felt a need to design an alfalfa management guide specifically for the farmer. Our research staff gave us the research perspective and area agronomists gave us the crop management perspective. However, the key was to talk to farmers and put the information into a logical sequence from the farmer's view. We felt this was the missing link in other alfalfa guides."

According to Dairyland Vice-President, Tom Strachota, "Many companies would like you to believe their alfalfa will solve all your problems. It just isn't so. In 'Management 2000' we have tried to separate the marketing of alfalfa from alfalfa management. Even the best alfalfa variety is not enough unless it is managed properly. 'Management 2000' can help."

Dairyland Seed is a family owned and operated business serving over 4,200 farmer-dealers in the upper Midwest. Servos Seed distributes Dairyland's Magnum alfalfa, Futura alfalfa, and Ruby Red clover in the Northeast.

For more information on Dairyland's "Management 2000" alfalfa management guide, write Dairyland Seed Co., Inc., P.O. Box 958, West Bend, Wi. 53095 or write Servos Seed Corp., 28 Ringfield Road, Chaddsford, Pa. 19317

Ground breaking ceremonies for Stauffer Diesel Inc.'s new building project were held on Friday, Oct. 12, at the Stauffer Industrial Development on Pleasant Valley Road in Ephrata Township. On hand to wield the shovel were (from left), Robert Staller, Ephrata Township Supervisor; Vincent J. Paparo, senior loan officer at the Blue Ball National Bank; Senator Noah Wenger; Stauffer Diesel president, E. Tony Stauffer; Deutz Corp. regional sales manager, Klaus Sanders; and Deutz regional service manager, Reiner Huppert.

Currently based in New Holland, the family-owned corporation sells and services Deutz industrial diesel engines throughout the state. Stauffer is also a dealership for the Deutz diesel and Landini agricultural tractor lines. The firm hopes to have its new building in operation by February, 1985.

DeKalb sales conference

At a sales conference held recently in San Diego, Cal., by the Poultry Division of DeKalb AgResearch, Inc., Frank Baber, of Lancaster, won the coveted John R. Nelson Award for the highest total volume sales during the 1983-84 fiscal year.

Bob Gohn, manager of DeKalb's York Hatchery received a special award for outstanding accomplishment during the AI outbreak in Pennsylvania.

The conference was attended by some 50 DeKalb production, sales, service and staff employees and their families.

Soil-mapping helps crop mgt.

DEKALB, IL. — Soil mapping should assist in making sound management decisions concerning soil fertility, weed control, tillage practices, cropping sequences, and variety selection. Detailed maps custom made to individual farm operations can prove extremely valuable to both the grower and crop service personnel.

Areas of soil fertility need to be mapped to scale. Soil sampling and testing should be done according to these maps. Fields are generally farmed as uniform units. Soil types and past management practices are not uniform.

Personalized maps constantly reinforce these differences. For example, a grower wanting to use a new herbicide on a field needs to check every soil in that field to see if application rate guidelines can be met. If crop service personnel are asked to assist in the decision, the map can quickly familiarize them with the field. This will usually result in a better recommendation.

To start the mapping project, a trip to the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office is helpful. The ASCS can provide aerial photographs of the entire farm operation. This map shows the perimeters of the field, the acreages, and other details such as creeks, ditches, shelter belts, and other location details.

While these maps are very good, an expanded scale is helpful. For example, an ASCS mapped quarter section may be 4 inches by 4 inches. Expanding this perimeter to 6 inches will allow for more details.

Tools needed to get started are white unlined paper, a #2 pencil, a straight edge ruler, and probably an eraser. A quarter section per map makes a good sizes unit, but almost any size can be used depending on the detail desired. The perimeter of the farm should be outlined with a dark solid line

Next the building sites and all other permanent details should be drawn to scale with lighter solid lines. Now permanent fences should be drawn. Broken lines with dots work well for this.

This is a good general map. Make photocopies for use in recording variety locations, cropping history, weed infestations, and many other useful details.

Some help from the local SCS office and some knowledge of the farm history comes next. Most areas of the nation have been mapped by soil types. County maps are available through the SCS and the land grant colleges. This information needs to be transferred to the general, expanded scale map. Dashed lines work well for this.

Now think about the cropping history. Where have the alfalfa and pastures been? Were any fences removed in the past 20 years? Differences in fertilizer, lime or manure applications, and irrigation water need consideration. Differences in soil color and elevation indicate different soil types. These need to be mapped if missed on the SCS map. Finally, those locations on the farm that for some unknown reason just never produce as well should be mapped.

A workable labeling system will complete the project. Most any numbering system will work as long as each soil type gets a different number and farms can be added in future years. Labeling each farm with numbers and each soil types with letters work well. For example, the home quarter could be Farm 1, with the old hog pasture Soil A. This could be simply labeled 1A. The next farm could be numbered 2 with soils A through H.

Maps should be stored in a three hole binder. Soil tests should be taken and numbered following your map. Using this system will result in a useful, organized system of fertility management. What surprises most people is how they farmed so long without it!

Manheim Farm Show finishes with record sale prices

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

MANHEIM — Manheim wound up its Farm Show on Friday, Oct. 12, with a record-setting sale of hogs, steers and lambs.

The seven steers that were sold averaged 1.07 a pound, nearly 40 cents above market averages.

And the 26 lambs that were auctioned off averaged a whopping $1.12 a pound – nearly double what they were bringing at market.

In all, it amounted to a very profitable evening for the FFA and 4-H exhibitors.

"What a way to wind it all up," was the way that Barry Geib described both the sale of his grand champion hog and his grand champion FFA sale steer. It was the last show that the 21-year-old could participate in as an FFA'er.

Geib grossed $712 at $2.85 a pound from Hatfield Packing for his 250-pound sow and $1,708 at $1.35 a pound from Country Table Restaurant of Mount Joy for his 1,265 pound steer.

The money will go toward a trip to the National FFA Convention where he will receive his American Degree.

J. H. Brubaker lumber yard bid $1.08 a pound for the reserve champion steer of Darvin Myer.

The third-place steer of Jan Waltz commanded a bit higher price at a bid of $1.10 a pound from Chuck Thompson Real Estate.

The grand champion lamb of Ellen Lewis, Mount Joy, brought $3.75 a pound from Bingeman's Restaurant, Lititz. The reserve champion of Lisa Sadler, Elizabethtown went to Willie the Butcher of Stauffer's of Kissel Hill for $2.00 a pound.

Hatfield also bought the reserve champion hog of Chris Chapman, R5 Manheim, for $2.10 a pound.

In addition to Hatfield and Willie the Butcher, traditional volume buyers at the junior livestock sales, other multiple buyers were Louis Lyons and Sons Inc. cattle dealer; John Kimbark, Elstonville; Clearview Farms Deli; Walter M. Dunlap cattle dealer and White Oak Mills.

Doug Clemens, of Hatfield, also buys reserve champion hog of Chris Chapman at Manheim Farm Show for $2.10 a pound.

Willie the Butcher, of Stauffer's of Kissel Hill, buys reserve grand champion lamb of Lisa Sadler for $2.00 a pound.

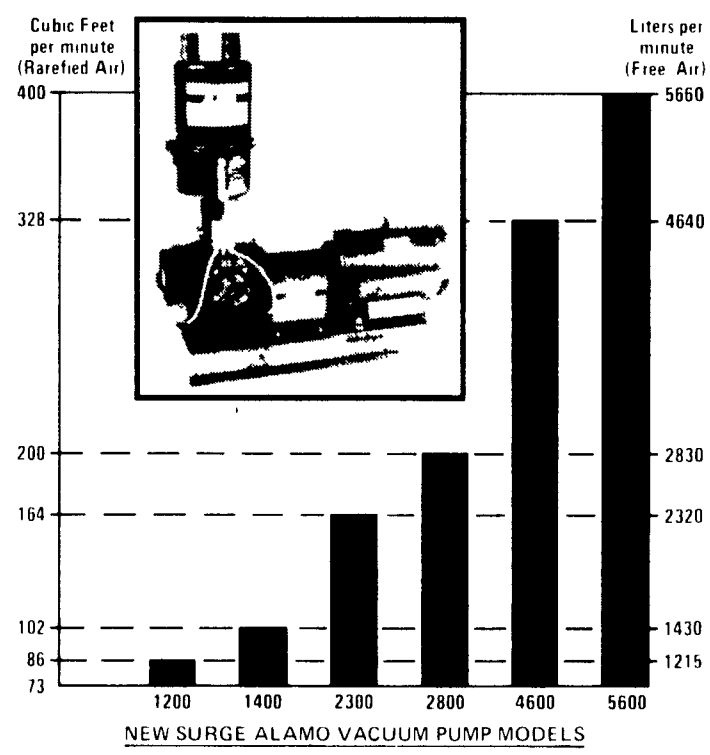
Vacuum pumps reported

OAK BROOK, Il. — Babson Bros. Co., builders of Surge dairy farm equipment, announce the release of a complete new line of Surge Alamo vacuum pumps. The six models in the new line range from the model 1200, rated at 86 C.F.M., up to the model 5600, rated at 400 C.F.M.

All of the new Alamo pumps are direct drive. No belts requiring tightening or replacement are necessary. They also use the Surge L3 oiling system which delivers proven consistent oil flow rates. In addition, several of the models are available for single or three-phase operation. A new high-efficiency rotor design has been developed that produces more C.F.M. and uses less power.

Also incorporated in the design are three-inch inlets and outlets which allow the free flow of air through the pump, insuring optimum C.F.M. per running amp. In addition, all of the Alamo pumps have filters on the air intake for maximum pump protection.



NEW SURGE ALAMO VACUUM PUMP MODELS

A lotta hot air

Leaders from farming and agri-business met at Argonne National Laboratory in Argonne, Ill., to experience, not hear, a lot-of-hot-air. A continuous blast of hot air sufficient to dry grain was produced by Argonne's solar pond, in the background. Heat collected from the sun during the summer was extracted from the pond by an experimental heat exchanger system developed under a State of Illinois grant. Farmstead solar ponds could help farmers cut energy costs, according to preliminary results from the solar pond experiment.

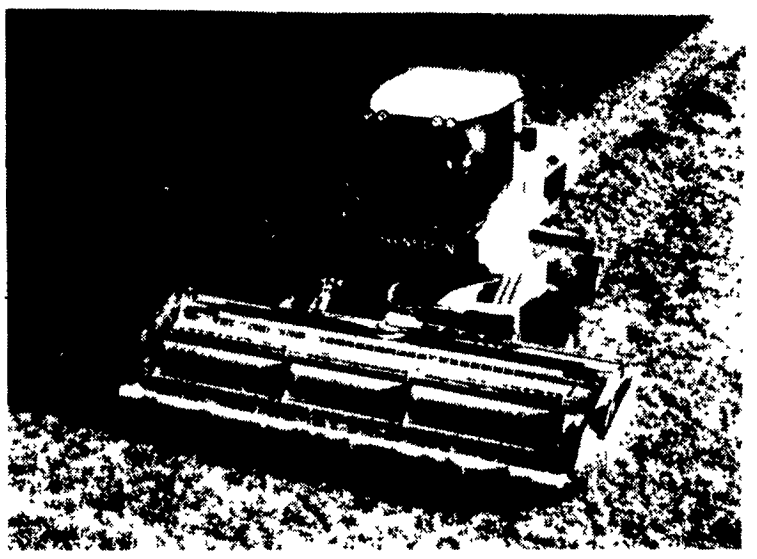
Windrower headers cited

HESSTON, Kan. — Hesston has given another boost to its hay harvesting equipment with the introduction of a new low-profile, two-sickle header for its 6455 and 6555 Windrower Models and a deluxe two-sickle header for the 6655.

Six different high-speed two-sickle headers are now offered to achieve outstanding capacity, convenience and comfort. The power units for these models are all high-capacity hydrostatic drives, featuring higher torque and lower maintenance.

The deluxe two-sickle header for the Model 6655 comes in 12-, 14- and 16-foot widths and reaches a cutting speed of 1870 spm. It has a redesigned double-swaybar drive for extra reliability and reduced vibration. The 6655's full three-inch overlapping strokes allow faster cutting, while avoiding stripping or overrunning of crop like some two-sickle configurations. Precision-machined steel-on-steel "crusher" conditioner rolls produce thorough crimping for fast drying. Because fewer leaves are stripped in this process, a higher quality hay is produced.

The new low-profile two-sickle auger header for Models 6455 and 6555 also come in 12-, 14- and 16-foot widths. A 20-inch diameter auger features 15-inch pitch flighting and rubber/steel bats for positive high capacity feeding of conditioner. These models are also equipped with a steel-on-steel "crusher" conditioner. Cutting speed is 1820 spm.



The Hesston Model 6555 self-propelled windrower features a new low-profile, two-sickle header.

Exclusive square-tube auger creates unique "pulse" action to thoroughly break up manure.

Sealed Uni-body construction stands up to hard use year after year.

Based on a whole new design-technology, Scavenger is built specifically for today's manure-handling needs. With Scavenger you can spread most kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack (even frozen)—all year 'round. And you'll do it more efficiently with a lot less bother.

Hoyt receives award

PLAIN CITY, OH. — Rodger S. Hoyt, Dairy Sire Analyst and Progeny Testing Coordinator at Select Sires, Inc. in Plain City, Oh., recently received the National Association of Animal Breeders Quarter Century Award for his 25 years of service in the A.I industry.

A native of New York, Hoyt grew up on a dairy farm. He received his Bachelor and Masters Degrees in Dairy Science from Kansas State University. From 1957 to 1959 he worked as a graduate assistant in Animal Science at Cornell University.

Hoyt began his career in the A.I. industry in 1959 working for Eastern A.I. Cooperative in New York. He spent 15 years with the organization as a Sire Analyst.

In December of 1974, Hoyt came to Select Sires in his present position. One of his primary responsibilities is administering the Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) young sire sampling system. This involves coordinating the sampling of some 150 bulls in over 2,700 cooperating herds located throughout the U.S. for Select Sires each year.

From 1971 to the present, Hoyt has served on the NAAB Dairy Sire Evaluation & Genetic Improvement Committee. He was chairman two of those years. He was also a member and chairman of the NAAB Ad Hoc Type Committee for three years in addition to being a NAAB Representative in Seoul, Korea in 1981.

New spreader announced

NEW HOLLAND — A new large-capacity slurry manure spreader from Sperry New Holland offers ten ton (2275 gallon) capacity. The open top tank with "fish-bowl" sides simplifies loading of any type of manure and minimizes spillage in transport. A flail-type expeller spreads the material which is moved to the expeller by an auger that floats to reduce damage or jamming from stones or other foreign objects. The auger can be lifted hydraulically to free bridged material and to avoid freezing problems.

The new spreader is designed for semi-solid and slurry manure. It will also handle lighter materials such as dry chicken litter, according to Phil Jaquith of Sperry New Holland.

Jaquith, who is product manager for spreaders at New Holland, explains that the new spreader will also handle pen-packed manure. But pen-packed manure with bedding and less than 30% moisture content is more efficiently spread by a conventional box-type spreader.

The new Model 307 Slurry Spreader from Sperry New Holland handles ten-ton loads of slurry. Manure with bedding can also be handled.

SCS employees honored

Marvin I. Marblestone, left, marketing director of BASF Wyandotte Corporation, presents a proclamation to Chief Peter C. Myers of the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) during recent ceremonies at the National Conference on Conservation Tillage in Nashville, Tenn. The proclamation heralds the dedicated service to american agriculture by all SCS employees upon the agency's 50th anniversary. More than 800 people nationwide attended the National Conference on Conservation Tillage.

Glatfelter cites Forest Week

SPRING GROVE — Trees are America's renewable resource. According to Thomas R. Wieland, Tree Farm Family Forester of The Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company, Spring Grove, the week of Oct. 21-27 has been proclaimed National Forest Products Week.

The forest industries of south-central Pennsylvania play an important role in the local economy. Thousands of jobs are provided by paper mills, sawmills, logging contractors and associated wood using industries. These businesses purchase much of the timber needed for their operations from local woodland owners thus providing additional income to the area economy.

Forest products are essential to everyday living and so is the proper management of our forests. Through sound forest practices the land can produce the necessary forest products and provide pure water, habitat for wildlife and a recreation haven for an expanding population. Woodland owners who desire assistance in the proper management techniques for their forestland can obtain it by contracting the nearest office of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry, Thomas Wieland at The Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company in Spring Grove or one of a number of consulting foresters who practice in the area.

Animals Produce Better, You Work In Comfort With White Heaters.

CHECK OUR PRICES BEFORE YOU BUY!

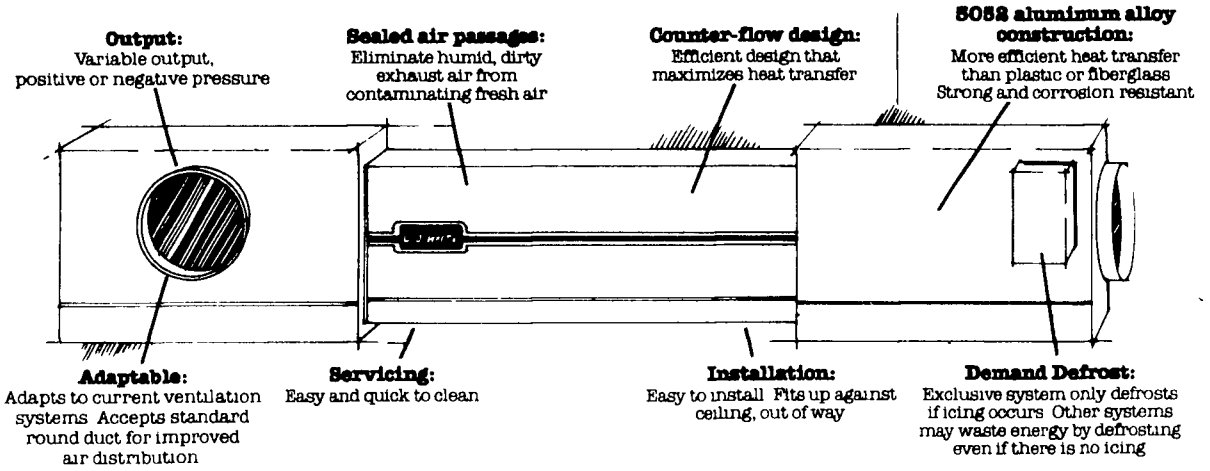
When you look into cutting animal confinement heating costs with a heat exchanger...you'll want to take a long, hard look at L. B. White's Heat Exchanger.

3-year payback and a healthier environment. An L. B. White Heat Exchanger can lower your heating bills enough to pay for itself in just three years.* Here's how: with the L. B. White Heat Exchanger, the warm humid barn air is exhausted out through the heat exchanger where its heat is transferred to the fresh outside air as it enters the building. You slash heating bills because frigid outside air is pre-heated.

Your animals will be healthier, too. An L. B. White Heat Exchanger lowers humidity, reduces odor levels, and helps maintain a consistent room temperature.

We understand animal buildings. We've been heating animal confinement buildings longer than anyone else, over 15 years. We know what it takes to survive in that demanding and corrosive environment. We have the expertise and advanced facilities needed to develop a truly efficient heat exchanger. L B. White Heat Exchangers proved themselves during the cold winter of 1981-82.

Compare heat exchangers. They are not all equal. We believe that when you know the facts, an L. B. White Heat Exchanger will be the one that ends up on your farm.



Output:
Variable output, positive or negative pressure
Sealed air passages:
Eliminate humid, dirty exhaust air from contaminating fresh air
Counter-flow design:
Efficient design that maximizes heat transfer
5052 aluminum alloy construction:
More efficient heat transfer than plastic or fiberglass
Strong and corrosion resistant
Adaptable:
Adapts to current ventilation systems Accepts standard round duct for improved air distribution
Servicing:
Easy and quick to clean
Installation:
Easy to install Fits up against ceiling, out of way

EBY

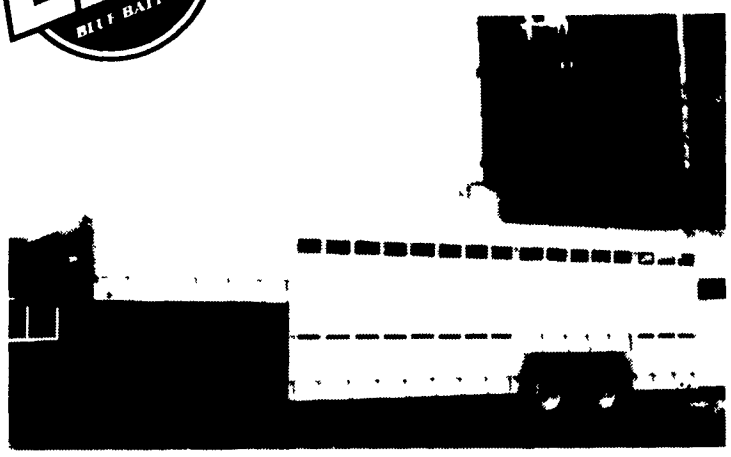
ALUMINUM GOOSENECK TRAILERS



This may be the last stock trailer you'll ever have to buy. An Eby all-aluminum gooseneck trailer is built to provide years of maintenance free service. Strong aircraft aluminum and Eby engineering provide the ruggedness that only an Eby trailer can offer.

CHECK OUR FEATURES:

- Weight - 25-35% less than comparable steel stock trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- Maintenance - Aluminum construction won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- Durability - Eby trailers are built tough. Extruded framework and ridged diamond plate floor.

Slash drying costs as much as 75% with the AeroDry™ System

Cut Energy Costs 75%—Uses the drying power of fan forced air. No gas to buy. And the only electricity used powers the computer con trolled fan system

Reduced Shrinkage—Shrink loss is cut up to 50% through natural moisture removal without high temperature heat

Better Grain Quality—With no high temperature heat to crack and damage grain, more starch, sugar, valuable nutrients and profit are retained.

It's All in the Computer—The AeroDry Computer automatically monitors dry down day and night—then holds optimum storage conditions to keep grain in top condition.

Farm proven from the Midwest to the East Coast, the AeroDry System can improve your grain drying operation Call or mail the coupon for more information and where to see the AeroDry System in action.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

CAN YOU TAKE ADVICE FROM OTHERS?

Sam is a sharp young fellow, with an easy way with words. He has a mind that is always thinking a step or two beyond, and seldom hears what anyone else has to say. Especially when he is arguing a point with his neighbor or his best friend. Filled with the enthusiasm of youth and backed by a lifetime of experience, although it be a rather brief lifetime thus far, he accepts very little advice from anyone. But his troubles are blamed on the Dairy, the Banker, the weather, hollow tail, and of course, Reagan.

You probably know someone like Sam. Almost any one of us are, or were like Sam at some stage of our career. The turning point in any life occurrs when the Young Sam in us decides to stand still and listen, even for a small amount. That other viewpoint often unlocks the door to greater wisdom and opportunity. Even the advise not heeded at that moment can be stored away in the mind for future references. Every bit of knowledge has a use at the proper time.

SHOULD YOU HAVE TO PAY FOR GOOD ADVICE?

'The best things in life are free', says the song. But, on the other hand, it also says that freedom has a price, and so does good information and advice. Like as not, the price is only the effort to seek it out from the right source. The poorest advice is that unsought mumbling from the mouth of a frustrated or disenchanted failure. It can't lift you unless it comes from a higher place.

We all need answers to complex questions at some time in our career. As farming gets more complex, the questions get more puzzling and the answers harder to find. The answer you need may require research and study, and if you don't have the time or the resources, you may have to hire someone to help.

You don't hesitate to pay a lawyer to research legal matters. You hire a mechanic to service the Diesel tractor or auto. There is no problem with paying an architect or builder to design and build a new barn. You even pay an accountant to keep your records and figure your taxes. But when it comes to making the really tough decisions that effect the business of farming every day, you are pretty much alone. The buck stops here, Harry.

WHEN CAN YOU USE A PROFESSIONAL?

Here are a few examples of the type that you might profit from the advice of a professional Consultant. Investing on capital improvements like expanding the barn, buying land, and buying machinery. Forming a partnership or renting machinery or even scheduling a profitable crops program are not easy, and can make or break you. A busy farmer seldom has the time or ability to monitor health and disease problems on crops and livestock.

Setting up an Estate Plan is a real sticky problem that every farmer should face squarely. It's pretty hard to go it alone with any of these.

There are professionals who can be called upon for help in making sound business decisions. The Veterinarian and Lawyer are trusted and proven, but the Farm Consultant is just beginning to be recognized on the same level. The questions asked of a Professional farm Consultant are generally of a nature that requires study, thought and research, as well as training and experience. Like any other professional he must be paid for his time and knowledge. The cost is minimal, and the returns on your investment in good advice and council can be very high.

My friend Sam don't need advice from nobody. Even the free advice he could get from his cautious neighbors is spurned. In another day he might have made it, but poor Sam is facing bankruptcy Which he might have avoided if he had asked the right questions and heeded the sound advice.

"More Than Just Another Big Hole In The Ground"

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Financial Management - A Sacrifice

Many farmers would rather go out of business than learn to be financial managers. They are producers or growers and would probably do a great job working for someone else. Especially if that someone else was a successful businessman. Every business needs someone on top who looks at the proverbial "bottom line."

Recently "Newsweek" magazine carried a very thought provocative article by Lee Iacocca. I believe that you as a farm manager could learn some business principles if you would read it. He tells of his down fall at Ford. He tells of hanging on too long there due to not wanting to lose the security the job gave him. He also tells of the tough personally heart rending decisions he had to make when he took over at Chrysler. One was firing a large number of people. Let no mistakes be made, despite his stated abhorrence for this task he did it because he saw his number 1 job being to save the business. he could rationalize that saving the business meant future jobs including his own.

But isn't that also your job. I guess the question is are you tough enough to save your farm? Are you really willing to go all out and become a manager if that would save your farm? Don't say yes to this question without considering the consequences.

The Consequences of Saying Yes!

If you say yes I do want to become a financial manager, you will have to make some drastic changes. You will have to forcibly budget time into a very busy schedule to work on, use, analyze, and project from your records. The minimum time a farmer should spend with records is 10%. That means 250 to 400 hours per year or 20 to 35 hours per month. Can you do that?

Second you will have to be willing to budget your income and expenses until you can see how to balance them. That will be part of that 250 to 400 hours. Is this a bunch of nonsense?

Third, you will have to be willing to do more than have an analysis run on your operation. You will have to be willing to tear it apart and ask where can I improve? No fair sitting there while your wife does it (and falling asleep when the figures become boring). Are you still there?

It is easy to say I want to farm. it is easy to complain about the government, the weather, prices, etc. It is even relatively easy to be on or near the top in DHIA or win a crop production contest. Notice I said relatively because for most of you it is easier to do those things than to keep and use records, analyze your business, use budgets, or project or plan for the future.

What About It?

In the 25 plus years I have been working with farmers, I have probably heard every reason why a farmer is in trouble. Most of them hundreds of times. I do sympathize with farmers. I have wanted to help people help themselves since I was a boy and traveled with my Dad who was a county agent. He told me when I started in as a county agent that the biggest criticism I would get was "if you know so much about farming why aren't you out there doint it?". He said "you won't have a good answer so don't bother commenting - for the most part the questioner doesn't mean it - he is just venting a frustration because something is not going right".

So say it to me if it helps then let's get down to the business of salvaging your business. I guess the bottom line question is "How about you - how bad do you really want to farm?"

Pen-Hort meetings scheduled

SALISBURY, Md. — Dates have been set for this year's Peninsula Horticultural Society Meetings. The program for greenhouse and nursery operators will take place Tuesday, Nov. 20, from 9:15 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury, Maryland. The session for commercial vegetable growers will be held at the same place on Thursday, Dec. 6, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

For further information on either session, contact county extension agents in Delaware, or Eastern Shore Maryland and Virginia.

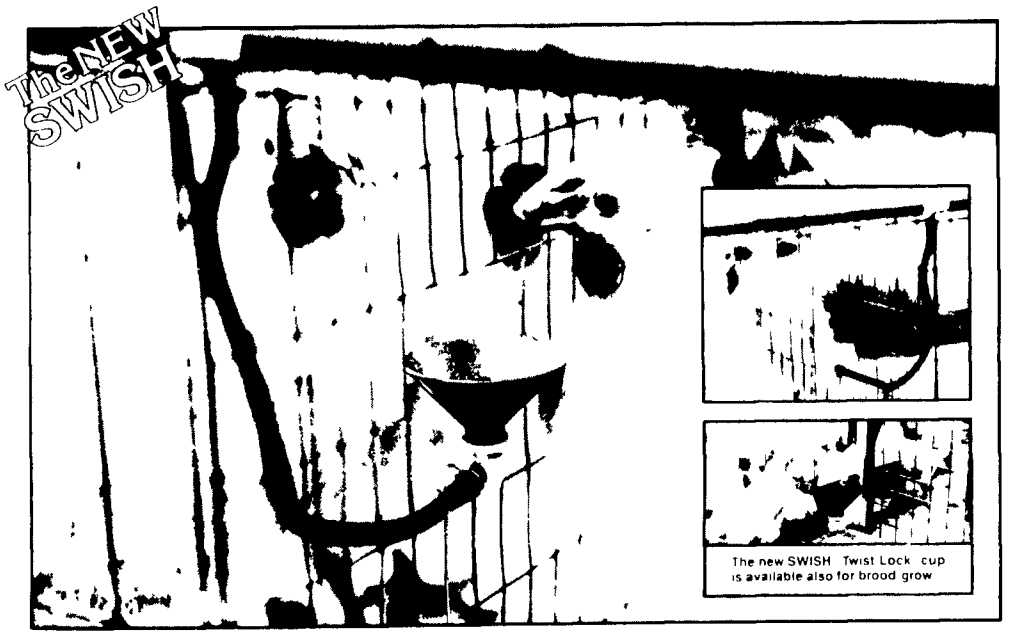
"Twist-Lock" cups: newest innovation from the new leader



The new SWISH Twist Lock cup is available also for brood grow

...another reason SWISH saves you more labor, more birds, and more money

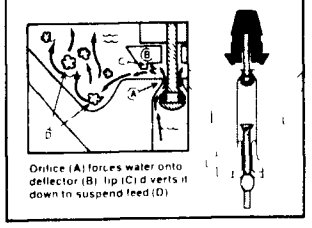
The newest twist in cage watering makes cup cleaning and maintenance a real snap it s SWISH s Twist Lock cups for cage layers and brood grow watering systems

Saves labor. No more contortions with hand tools inside a cage – one simple twist of the wrist unlocks and removes the unitized cup and valve It s that easy to maintain when necessary

But with SWISH it s hardly ever necessary That s because our cup is self cleaning Our patented valve keeps the cup clean by flushing any feed particles out so birds can consume them with the water

Installation is a snap too with SWISH s new cups they simply snap into the desired location and the hose attaches to the water line outlet These are some of the ways SWISH s new cup saves you labor – easy installation low maintenance and labor savings between flocks because our cup constantly cleans itself

PATENTED VALVE IS KEY TO OUR PERFORMANCE



Orifice (A) forces water onto deflector (B) flip (C) diverts it down to suspend feed (D)

Helps save more birds. Because our cup is self-cleaning algae and bacteria growth is not a problem as with cups that don t flush out feed particles Clean cups mean less chance of disease and less mortality And our big cup means good access to water for a good level of bird health

SWISH saves you money. That s the bottom line with a system that cuts labor and keeps birds alive and productive

Get all the facts about our new cup and other SWISH innovations See your SWISH distributor or contact us

"QUARANTINE ENDS"

This headline is good news for Pennsylvania poultrymen who have experienced many difficulties this past year. We still have many items of concern for the future such as:

1) How do I work with a pullet that might not have the quality we were used to in the past?
2) Market Orders! Yes or No?
3) What is the best way to market my eggs?
4) Financial Planning - Where to from here?
5) Feeding - How do I choose the right program for proper egg sized cost?
6) How do I maximize returns in my operation?

These and many other questions can be addressed by the Ralston Purina Co. and the Purina dealers who are ready and willing to serve you. Below are a few of the Accu-Line™ Programs For Profits that we work with at Purina.
